ELECTION CROOKS, BEWARE

THE GRAND JURY WILL WATCH FOR ILLEGAL VOTING TUESDAY.

In Resummononing the Men Who Have Been Serving, Judge Wallace Said That He Expects Them to Be a Factor in Preventing Fraud.

"The very fact, the very announcement itself, that you men will sit as a grand jury after the election next Tuesday will scare away from the polls many an election crook and many an illegal voter," Judge William H. Wallace said to the criminal court grand jury yesterday afternoon. He had just received the jurors' report for the end of the court term and had discharged them. After being informed by Al Heslip, county marshal, that the marshal desired to summon the same grand jurors again, the judge made the foregoing remark.

PRAISE FOR THE JURY.

"Whatever may be said of this grand jury," Judge Wallace continued, "it cannot be said that its members are the friends of the lawless element. It has to be admitted that it is a mighty good thing to have men of your ideas about strict law enforcement when election time comes and the people desire a fair vote and an honest count. The election crook and every other law breaker is afraid of you men and every one of them is careful when you men are in session as a grand jury."

All of the grand jurors except William L. Bryant and Albert Marty will return to-morrow and be sworn in again. Mr. Bryant and Mr. Marty were excused. The county marshal will summon men to fill their places.

The grand jurors investigated the registration in twenty or thirty bunkhouses and hotels in the North end and the West bottoms and checked many old names on the books that the owners and landlords said did not live there now.

TO GO OVER THE LISTS AGAIN.

The jury will go over the lists again after the election to see if those old names were voted. If an attempt is made to vote those old names indictments will follow. In its report the grand jurors said in part:

We found quite a number of names on the registration lists from rooming houses and like houses that are not entitled to register or vote. We do not believe those persons will be permitted to vote at the election. We could not finish our investigation in time to have the election commissioners have the fraudulent names stricken from the registration lists. We investigated twenty or thirty rooming houses.

The grand jury finds that a very vicious, bad custom has grown up in both the great leading political parties, that is the filing of hundreds of affidavits against legally registered voters without the slightest shadow of any evidence. This is a way of intimidating a voter and a stop should be put to its practice. Those who cause these affidavits to be made do not made the affidavits themselves but generally after they have had them written out select an irresponsible person to make oath to them. If our legal advisers could have made an indictment hold, we would have found a bill against the person making the affidavit and the instigator of it.

THE PLATFORM OF KETNER.

"Mickey" O'Hearn's Opponent Says He'll Support Beardsley's Policies.

The race for the lower house in the Second ward is one of the most interesting in the city because it is close and because of the elements involved.

"Mickey" O'Hearn, the Democratic nominee, is making a somewhat spectacular campaign along original lines. James Ketner, the Republican nominee, is a man of business ability and his friends believe he can be depended upon to be a strong supporter of Mayor Beardsley. He declared his platform yesterday in as few words as possible. This is what he said:

"I stand with Mayor Beardsley:

"On the West Traffic Way proposition,

"For a fair and effective Utilities commission,

"For clean streets and better lighted streets,

"For the rapid improvement of the city's parks.

"I believe the people of the Second ward want more street lights, the completion of West Terrace park and a new Union station on fair and reasonable terms. For these things I propose to work."

PULLED 31 SNAGS IN TWO DAYS.

Good Work on the River Is Being Done by the Missouri.

Captain E. H. Schulz returned yesterday from a short trip on the snagboat Missouri, which is now working up the Missouri river. The boat is working in fine shape, he says. A report from the boat says that thirty-one snags were pulled in two days between the mouth of the river and St. Charles. The boat will work mostly between Kansas City and Boonville until high water. This portion of the river was only skimmed over last year and it is desired that it be well cleaned out by the time the Kansas City boats go into regular service.

FOR TAFT IN MONTANA, TOO.

The Republican Central Committee Indorses the Secretary Without a Fight.

HELENA, MONT., April 4.—The candidacy of Secretary Taft for the nomination for President at Chicago was indorsed at the meeting of the Montana Republican state central committee to-night. No element of discord was in evidence at the meeting of the twenty-seven members of the committee. It was decided to hold the convention for the nomination of the delegates to the national convention at Butte, May 14.

THE MOTOR TOUR WAS SHORT.

A German Author Went Only a Short Distance Toward India.

MUNICH, April 4.—An abrupt ending was the fate of an adventurous motor car tour which was planned from Frankfort to India. The start was made today, the machine carrying Rudolph Zabel, an author, from Berlin and his wife and chauffeur. Not far along in the journey the car collided with a tree and was totally wrecked. Frau Zabel's jaw and the chauffeur's arm were broken. Zabel sustained a severe shock.

The Council to Meet at Noon To-Morrow.

The city council will meet at noon tomorrow in order to allow the members to attend the closing campaign rallies.

A DRY VOTE IN 1,200 TOWNS

ILLINOIS'S GREAT TEMPERANCE FIGHT DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

The Enemies of the Saloons Assert That They Will Win 900 of the Contests—Some Features of the Campaign.

CHICAGO, April 4.—More than 1,200 Illinois cities, towns and villages will vote on prohibition next Tuesday and April 21. If the "drys" win eighty of the 102 counties in the state must do without saloons. Leaders of the anti-saloon forces said today they would win in at least 900 of the 1,200 communities. There are only eight cities in the state where the question will not be settled, Chicago, Peoria, Quincy, East St. Louis, Streator, Ottawa, LaSalle and Galena.

The anti-saloon people are confident of winning in Rockford, Waukesha, Elgin, Rock Island, Galesburg, Bloomington, Danville and Decatur. Even in Springfield, Aurora and Joliet the rising wave of prohibition sentiment in the last ten days has given temperance workers hope of victory. The saloon forces are alarmed at the prospect of defeat and have been making a bitter fight. In many cities personal friendships of long standing have broken under the bitterness of the campaign, banks and business houses have been boycotted and even preachers have seen their congregations abandon them.

THE TELEPATHY SYSTEM TRIED.

To Aurora women belongs the honor of bringing a new force into the battle, that of telepathy. Each day they have pledged themselves to spend several moments in silent pleading with the obstinate ones. In addition they have formed an "endless telephone chain" with which they will compete against liquor, each woman having promised to call up daily at least five voters and plead for their ballot against the saloons. The saloon men combat this by calling up five women each day to learn if they have prepared meals for their liege lords and taken care of other household duties and their children. Both sides say they have the victory in sight.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN DRINK.

No less hard fought will be the war at Bloomington, where the climax will come on election day in a novel argument to be put forth by the "drys," who will place women and children wearing ragged garments, the wives andf little ones of drunkards, at the polls as mute illustrations of the effects of liquor. Children will parade and coffee and sandwiches will be served by the women at each precinct throughout election day.

Parades of women and children in the interest of anti-saloon work will close the contest in Joliet. Each of the 136 saloon keepers has pledged himself to close on that day and take at least five workers with him to the polls, making a force of over 800 to look after getting out the wet vote.

DR. MANGASARIAN TAKES A HAND.

Galesburg saloon keepers already see destruction for them at the polls, but are making a hard fight. The liquor interests have arranged for a mass meeting Sunday night in the Auditorium with Dr. M. M. Mangasarian of Chicago as speaker, while the prohibitionists will have a mass meeting for voters to be addressed by twenty-five business and working men. The parade of children of the city, carrying banners and cards containing the words, "Vote for Me," was the feature of yesterday's work. The women are arranging to take active part in getting out voters and may serve lunches.

So determined has been the fight at Monmouth that the license supporters have started a local semi-weekly newspaper called the Messenger, which advocate control of the saloons by high licenses. An interesting feature was the appearance of Margaret Isobel, "the girl preacher," who spoke for open saloons in preference to secret dives.

Registration for the election in Rock Island is the heaviest by several hundred the city has ever known. There are 175 saloons in the county. Both sides are thoroughly organized and well provided with funds. A feature of the campaign was "Stainless Flag day" exercises, at which the temperance people drew 5,000 at their meeting at the Rock Island rink last Saturday.

The temperance workers at Clinton are confident they will win in the battle. They will close the campaign on Monday evening with a parade of the school children. There are fifteen saloons in the city.

RING THE CHURCH BELLS AS REMINDERS.

During the entire time the polls at Elgin are open women members of the Anti-Saloon league auxiliary will hold prayer meetings. They will signalize the campaign each hour by ringing all church bells, thus urging their voting relatives to thrust out the saloon at the polls. Three thousand school children and women participated in a parade through the business district this afternoon with a brass band playing and banners and mottoes unfurled.

Give Them a Chance!

A House of Correction, in place of the Workhouse—that is the Beardsley plan.

Land already has been purchased outside the city for the new buildings, where the city's minor offenders are to be given a chance to learn trades and become decent citizens. A man experienced in dealing with prisoners has been put in charge.

Why not work out the Beardsley plan under Beardsley?

WEATHER TO BE FAIR TO-DAY.

A fair day with no important change in temperature is predicted for Kansas City for to-day. Rain is predicted for the other parts of Missouri and clearing weather for Eastern Kansas. The weather will be fair and warmer Monday in the vicinity of Kansas City and in Kansas and Missouri.

FOR A COMMISSION PLAN VOTE.

The Required Number of Names Obtained for the Petitions in Kansas City, Kas.

The 300 names necessary to complete the petitions asking for a special election in Kansas City, Kas., to vote on the question of adopting a commission form of government have been obtained. The petitions will be presented to Mayor Cornell Monday. They will contain 200 more names than the required 10 per cent of the qualified voters.

When the advocates of the commission plan met again last night it was found that with five petitions yet to report they had obtained 399 signatures, or almost 100 more than the number required. The five petitions yet out are expected to swell the grand total to 500, or 200 more than the number required.

The advocates of the commission plan found that the petitions were 300 names short of the number needed when they met last Thursday and they determined to obtain this number by last night. Sixteen petitions were placed in circulation.

After the petitions are presented to Mayor Cornell they will be checked by the commissioner of elections. If he reports that the required number of signers are registered voters the mayor will call an election to be held sixty days from the date the call is issued.

THEATER CASES THIS MONTH.

Judge Porterfield Will Try Three of Each Kind on Changes of Venue.

Judge William H. Wallace in the criminal court notified E. E. Porterfield, judge of the second division of the criminal court, yesterday that he would send several felony change of venue cases to him for trial and also twelve theater cases.

The theater cases will not be tried until after the felony cases, which will be taken up April 13. The theater cases will include three each from the Century, Orpheum, Gilliss and Auditorium theaters. A manager, a ticket seller and a stage hand from each theater will be tried on an indictment for working on Sunday.

Judge Wallace offered to try two-thirds of all other cases in which changes of venue were not taken and send the other third to Judge Porterfield for trial. If this is not satisfactory to Judge Porterfield he will divide the cases equally and each judge will try his half of the cases.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS UNEASY

CANNON'S SWAY IS IRKSOME TO SOME OF THE MAJORITY.

The Rules Adopted by the Speaker's Followers to Suppress the Democrats Are Remarkable for Their Severity—Fear a Long Session.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The special rules adopted by the Republicans to-day to defeat the filibuster led by John S. Williams, the Democratic leader, are the most stringent ever resorted to under the Cannon oligarchy. By a radical alteration of the procedure for the passage of bills the organization now hopes to put through the business it favors in about a third of the time it would have required under the former methods.

The special rules cut out roll calls at all possible points and permit the House to quit at the close of the day on a recess, without roll call, instead of by adjournment, which, under the Williams tactics, always occupied the best part of an hour.

The Republican leaders are angry clear through and are doing all they possibly can to make it appear that the Democrats are really delaying importnt legislation by factious opposition. Dalzell revealed their temper to-day by employing language such as has not been heard in the House in many a day.

DALZELL IN AN UGLY MOOD.

Williams objected yesterday when Payne called his tactics "puerile." Today Dalzell called them "idiotic," "asinine" and "a disgrace to grown men." He completed the demonstration by his response to Sulzer's request for two minutes.

"I wouldn't yield you two seconds," snarled Dalzell.

The enmity between the Republicans about the situation is becoming more manifest. There was a lot of doleful talk about the capitol and House office building today. To some extent it took the form of prophecy of delayed adjournment. There were some disconsolate Republicans talking about not getting away until the middle of July. Some of them went to the White house to see the President about it, but about all the satisfaction they got was a renewal of the demand for the enactment of the bills he has recommended.

It is becoming apparent that Cannon and his machine will endeavor to haul themselves out of the hole by means of special rules, and it is predicted that they will endeavor to shut off Democratic campaign thunder on public bills by requiring speeches to deal strictly with the measure under consideration. They have got to get out some way, for they cannot afford to adjourn without passing the bills as recommended by the President and then run the risk of being called back in extra session.

DANGER OF A REVOLT.

There is too much danger of an open revolt in the ranks before that stage should be reached, a revolt which would overthrow their organization and put through the bills against Cannon orders. There are forty or fifty Republicans who are facing the fight of their lives for reelection, and they are in no mood to submit to much further fooling with their chances at home.

More than half the Republican side wishes to follow the President's recommendations. Especially it is true that the Western Republicans want to take the duty off wood pulp and print paper. Cannon has gone on record as saying that this cannot be done at the present session. It will be up to Republican congressmen from the West to explain to their constituents on their return home how it happened that a Republican Congress had made no progress in this matter after the President recommended it in a message. The only truthful explanation will be that Cannon and Sereno Payne told a committee from the American Publishers' association that nothing would be done. And having said that nothing would be done, Sueaker Cannon will not permit the Republicans to consider the bills now pending.

WHAT THE SENATE MIGHT DO.

Victor Murdock, who, in common with other Westerners, wants the duty taken off wood pulp, called at the White house to-day. As he was leaving Mr. Murdock said to the reporter for a local afternoon paper:

"I believe that the House would favor putting wood pulp upon the free list if it was not feared that the Senate would tack on a whole tariff bill which would again delay matters."

CLEVELAND HAS WON

The City's Negotiations With the Big Street Car Company Practically Completed at Yesterday's Session.

ALL TO BE 3-CENT LINES

To-Morrow the Stockholders of the Large System and the Original 3-Cent Line Will Ratify the Agreement.

VICTORY FOR THE PEOPLE

Mayor Johnson Says the Cheap Fare Will Be Tested on One Line at a Time.

CLEVELAND, O., April 4.—Cleveland has reached a settlement of its vexed street railway question. To-day saw practically the end of the difficult negotiations. Monday the stockholders of both companies, the old monopoly and the "3-cent" company. Mayor Johnson's stragetic corporation, will meet and pass on the agreement now being finished by the public mediators.

Attorney F. H. Goff, the old company's agent, and Mayor Johnson, for the city, have worked unremittingly for four months. The last week they have worked all day and until midnight. Tonight they were still hard at it. A final and mighty effort will be made to-morrow to clear the last few details of the deal, so that Monday the finished result of their labors will be ready for conclusive action by the respective stockholders.

ALL TO BE 3-CENT LINES.

Of the stockholders' sanction to the plan Mayor Johnson and Mr. Goff have worked out, there is no doubt. Goff holds carte blanche from the Cleveland Electric Railway company and the company is bound to abide by whatever he decides upon. When Johnson and Goff agree, and they have agreed, that is the end.

By the terms of the agreement which Goff and Johnson have evolved, Cleveland will be given 3-cent fare. The old lines as well as the new will pass under the control of a holding company. The public peace mediators, Johnson and Goff, have selected a name for this new company. It will be known as the "Cleveland Railway company." The old company was known as the Cleveland Electric Railway company, while the new one was called the Forest City Railway company. This holding company will lease all the lines.

PEOPLE TO KNOW ANYWAY.

The 3-cent fare will be only an experiment at first. By the terms of the settlement, if 3-cent fare, on the lines adopted by the peace conference, fails to result in sufficient profits to pay stockholders a reasonable return on their investments, that is, 6 per cent, the lines will revert to the present control and a 3½-cent fare. To satisfy the old company on this score, a security grant, so-called, has been framed. This grant, the going into effect of which is conditional only on the failure of 3-cent fare, required infinite labor and many hot discussions.

Peace in Cleveland was brought about by the approaching expiration of street railway franchises, although some of them have several years to run, and by the decisive victory of Mayor Tom L. Johnson at the polls last fall. At this election, the question was squarely tried out, the people deciding between a very advantageous offer of 3½-cent fares from the old company and the proposal of Mayor Johnson to intrust the driving of a bargain to him. The people were overwhelmingly with Johnson. The old 5-cent company was defeated, but took its defeat so stubbornly that for a while it looked as if the fight would be one of agonizing and protracted determination, with the public getting the worst of it in impaired, neglected service.

PEOPLE STOOD BY JOHNSON.

The public wanted peace badly, but it wanted peace bearing the mark of Tom L. Johnson. At this point, a crucial one, Elbert H. Baker, a public-spirited citizen, took the matter into his hands. He declared the ugly warfare must stop. Business in the city had begun to feel the effects of it. F. H. Goff was his personal friend. He also was a man of unimpeachable motives and the highest standing in the city. His law firm, Kline, Tolles & Goff, is one of the leaders at the Ohio bar. Tom Johnson had tried ineffectually to work out peace with the company's president and directors. Goff was suggested by Mr. Baker as the man to negotiate for them. Mayor Jonnson trusted him. It was the right idea, conceived at precisely the right time by the right man. Its success was spontaneous and natural.

DAILY OPEN SESSIONS HELD.

Daily Attorney Goff and Mayor Johnson have held peace sessions in the city council chamber. The sessions were public. All could come—and criticise. Often Goff's patience was sorely tried by the extremely difficult position he filled—that of public buffer between an oppressive monopoly and the people who thirsted for its blood. He and Johnson, however, got along together famously, Johnson frankly conceding him to be the most formidable traction adversary with whom he locked horns. Goff brought about peace for the people, helped Johnson realize his ambition, and at the same time drove a better bargain for the old company than it had been able to drive by itself with an enormous campaign fund, a dominant political party as its ally and a member of Congress to make its plight his issue in a bitter campaign for mayor.

Mayor Johnson and Attorney Goff have made many concessions to each other. Several times it appeared as if they were hopelessly divided. Always, with once in a while a little lubrication from Mr. Baker or the press, they got back on their basis of hopeful negotiations. To-day they are done.

COUNCIL TO APPROVE TO-MORROW.

Monday's meetings of both companies' stockholders is the end. It is possible, barely, that the purely mechanical labor of putting the results of Johnson's and Goff's negotiations into the proper written form for approval by the stockholders may cause the two meetings to take a recess of a few hours before finally voting. But that is a remote contingency and negligible at that. The programme to-night is to finish the deal at the stockholders' meetings and at the council meeting Monday night receive the equally important approval of the public through its legislative body.

There is, however, no chance of a slipup. The only thing in doubt is the matter of hours.

TO THE 3-CENT FARES SLOWLY.

Mayor Johnson announced to-night that three-cent fares would not become universal the day after the signing of the final peace pact.

"It will be a cautious experiment and will be made gradually, not over the entire city at once," he said. "It will be tried first for a short time on one line and then on another, the result being carefully watched."

LAFAYETTE DIDN'T GO "DRY."

There Was Little Fight for Prohibition by Its Advocates.

LEXINGTON, MO., April 4.—Reports from Lafayette county, outside of Lexington, indicate to-night that prohibition has lost by approximately 400 votes. The township of Lexington outside of the city voted against prohibition with a plurality of 157.

There had been a spiritless fight in the county, practically all the campaigning being done by the saloon interests, and a light vote, polled mainly by their adherants, was cast. The result means that the twelve county saloons outside of Lexington and Higginsville will be undisturbed. Higginsville went "dry" some time since, and no election has been called in Lexington, where thirteen bars are operated.

MISS O'BRIEN CAN'T GO BACK.

The Board of Curators of M. S. U. Confirms the Faculty's Action.

COLUMBIA, MO., April 4.—The suspension of Miss Agnes O'Brien of Independence, Mo., has been sustained by the board of curators of the University of Missouri. The president of the university and the committee on student affairs had ordered that Miss O'Brien be suspended for refusal to make apology to one of the teachers. The suspension is effective for the remainder of the present session. Miss O'Brien may return next fall or for the summer term if she wishes and no apology will then be required of her.

Drive the Metropolitan Out of Politics

Here is a fine, capable Mayor opposed by the Metropolitan. For what?

Because he has asked for a Public Utilities commission to find out whether the Metropolitan is giving the people a square deal.

Think of the nerve of that corporation.

Its very objection to showing its books is evidence that its books will condemn it.

Its whole known record is that of a frachise grabber.

It has interfered in the Lower House against every square deal move of Mr. Beardsley.

For six months it has held up the Public Utilities commission ordinance.

Now this Metropolitan plunges into city politics. It fights Beardsley because Beardsley is in the way of its schemes. It slanders The Star because The Star is in its way.

Everything it urges against Beardsley is in the Mayor's favor.

The fact that the Metropolitan fights him is the best guarantee that Beardsley has been the right man in the right place.

A vote against Beardsley would be a vote for rotten corporation politics. A majority of such votes would undo the work of the past two years. It would give the Metropolitan its old strangle hold on city affairs. It would give it new power to corrupt politics and bulldoze Councilmen.

The Metropolitan's stake is enormous. The stake is only equaled by the Metropolitan's cheek.

NO BEER THERE—BEARDSLEY

A QUICK ANSWER WHEN ASKED ABOUT FOREST PARK LAST NIGHT.

Cheers of Approval Greeted the Reply—More About the Public Utilities Question—As to the Speedway Talk.

As Mayor Beardsley was closing his speech in a tent at St. John avenue and Hardesty avenue last night a man in the rear asked:

"Will you as police commissioner vote for a beer license in Forest park?"

The mayor answered:

"I will not, sir."

Cheers of approval greeted the reply.

"No dodging about that," said one man.

THE CROWD STOOD UP.

The rain came through the tent and made the canvas benches wet. So the most of the crowd stood up. If all had been seated there would have been few seats to spare, notwithstanding the fact the tent was pitched where it could be reached only by wading through mud.

In the course of his speech Mayor Beardsley said:

"One of the planks of the Democratic platform pledges the nominees to pass an ordinance creating a public utilities commission to be chosen by the mayor. A speech was delivered by an attorney for the Metropolitan March 28, at Twenty-ninth street and Prospect avenue. He is recognized as the campaign leader for this ticket. He has been giving directions to the speakers for that ticket as to the lines along which their argument shall proceed. He said: 'All this talk about a public utilities commission is largely rot, because the council always had substantially all the power that a utilities commission would have.' And again in the same speech he said: 'Nowhere in that law, by word, by letter, by syllable, by sign or by paragraph, is it hinted that any part of that power is vested in the mayor.'

"How then, are the honest voters to regard a pledge for the appointment of a commission, the provision of the pledge being that the members of the commission are to be chosen by the mayor?"

AS TO THE SPEEDWAY.

The mayor referred to the proposed speedway on Gillham road.

"There is only this in it," he said. "Harry Train came to my office when the speedway matter was pending before the park board. He said he had letters from many cities and could convince any one that the objections being made were unfounded. I told him he ought then to show his proofs to the property owners who were objecting. He says now Mr. Nelson's name was mentioned. My recollection is that I did not use his name. Mr. Nelson was one of the 174 property owners who were protesting and there would have been no reason why his name should not have been mentioned."

And again there were cheers when Alderman B. J. Fradenburg told how the Metropolitan had tried to crush him when he forced it to submit to an ordinance for the extension of the Northeast line from Hardesty avenue to Belmont street, under a threat to forfeit the franchise.

'You people asked for that extension," Fradenburg said. "Many out here have to walk nearly a mile to get a car. The Metropolitan has now stopped the building of the track until after the election, hoping to influence votes against me, I guess. But I submit to your verdict."

SPECIAL FAVORS THEIR AIM.

Corporate and Saloon Interests the Enemy, Beardsley Says.

"We are now nearing the close of the campaign and I am interested in the final lineup of the enemy," Mayor Beardsley said to a crowd in a tent at Twenty-third street and Troost avenue last night. The rain was beating down upon the canvas but the people in the crowd that had defied the elements leaned forward and listened intently to the mayor's final analysis.

"We find," he said, "that the party lines have been broken. The party which started out under the caption, Democratic, to oppose our canvass for votes is now resolved into two allied forces. There are those who have invested in great corporate enterprises and who are to ask for special privileges from the city together with those who transact business with those corporate interests. Then the second force is the saloon or brewery interests and those other interests whom they control because of their business relations. There are many saloon men, who are content and willing to obey the laws as they are written in the statutes, but there are others, who seek to ignore the law. We have those two forces combined against us. They are seeking to grasp from the people special privileges.

"I have always understood that the underlying principle of Democracy was a fight for the people and their support against the encroachment of the special interests. I think it would be a great mistake at this time to draw party lines and run the risk of permitting those interests to take from the people the power of our municipal government."

While Mayor Beardsley was speaking on the Bell telephone agreement, which was blocked by the same aldermen in the lower house of the council who blocked the public utilities commission, he was interrupted by an auditor, who said:

"Mr. Mayor, I heard a speech by a Metropolitan orator the other night. He said that you compromised in that proposed agreement the claim of the city for $73,000 for a tax of $1 on each telephone pole. How about that?"

"The ordinance assessing a tax of $1 on each pole was passed when that Metropolitan orator was mayor." Mr. Beardsley said. "His city counselor, R. J. Ingraham, said the ordinance could not be enforced and the tax collected. His counselor never attempted to collect it for that reason. The counselor in my administration thought the same thing about the ordinance and I agree with both of them. The ordinance was illegal and it was impossible to enforce that claim."

Then the auditor interrupted again, saying:

"That Metropolitan orator also said that the city has always had the power to make public service corporations show their books and that a utilities commission was all rot and bunc. What about that?"

"The city never had the power to make the Metropolitan show its books until that power was given it by the Enabling act passed by the legislature. The criminal court tried once to make the Metropolitan show its books and failed. If a criminal court could not do it I think the city need not have tried. A grand jury once tried to see the books in a jury bribing inquiry. The company pleaded that it could not be compelled to incriminate itself and the late Judge John W. Wofford dismissed the proceeding."

THE MAYOR IN BULGER'S WARD.

Public Utilities Plan Clearly Explained to the Voters.

Mayor Beardsley explained the benefits of a public utilities commission to a Fourth ward audience at Penn street and the Southwest boulevard last night. There were a number of Metropolitan employees in the hall and the mayor was vigorously applauded. His speech was devoted to a clear explanation of the public utilities question and the benefits to be derived from an effective utilities commission.

"When the 'peace agreement' was made with the Metropolitan the company was able, on the strength of the new contract, to issue 12½ million dollars more of stock without having put another dollar into the business. The interest on that extra capitalization amounts, at 6 per cent, to ¾ million dollars. Assuming that Kansas City then had a population of 180,000 the burden then placed upon this city amounted to a tax of $4 a year for every man, woman and child here during the life of this franchise.

"These are the kind of transactions we desire to stop. We will say to these corporations, 'We ask nothing but fair play. For the use of our streets we demand the right to regulate the service your shall give in return. Your investment will be protected, you shall have a fair return on it, but you must pay our citizens who work for you liberal wages and you must give the people the best service to be given at the lowest charge.'

"Street car fare is a large item to the large body of our people. With reduced fares many would be able to live in better homes in the suburbs who are now compelled to live in the crowded city.

"This is the issue presented to you at this election. We have striven earnestly to give you the benefits of this commission. We went to the legislature and got the power, and we stand pledged to carry it out if elected by your votes next Tuesday."

Brief addresses were also made by J. A. McLane and Dr. E. A. Burkhardt, candidates for the lower house from the Fourth ward.

An Uncontrolled Lower House

The Metropolitan is fighting desperately to retain control of the Lower House. It has two reasons:

A controlled Lower House could block the ordinance to create a Utilities commission.

It could prevent the regulation of street car service and the reduction of fares.

So far as may be judged by records—in and out of office—and by present affiliations, these candidates could be depended on to give Kansas City a square deal from the corporations:

Second Ward—James Ketner (R.).
Third Ward—G. P. Norton (D.).
Fourth Ward—E. A. Burkhardt (R.).
Fifth Ward—Darius A. Brown (R.).
Sixth Ward—Theodore Baker (R.).
Seventh Ward—J. G. Lapp (R.).
Eighth Ward—W. T. Green (R.).
Ninth Ward—F. J. Shinnick (D.).
Tenth Ward—E. E. Morris (R.).
Eleventh Ward—L. A. Ellis (R.).
Twelfth Ward—Frank Askew (R.).
Thirteenth Ward—W. E. Cary (R.).
Fourteenth Ward—B. J. Fradenburg (R.).

A Lower House made up of these men would help give Kansas City an effective Utilities commission and would co-operate with that commission to reduce fares and regulate service.

Ward Majorities in the 1906 Election.

The majorities by wards in the city election of two years ago when Beardsley and Gregory were the candidates for mayor, were as follows:

| | Beardsley. | Gregory. |
|---|---|---|
| First ward | .... | 869 |
| Second ward | 18 | .... |
| Third ward | 84 | .... |
| Fourth ward | .... | 415 |
| Fifth ward | 573 | .... |
| Sixth ward | .... | 606 |
| Seventh ward | 354 | .... |
| Eighth ward | 520 | .... |
| Ninth ward | .... | 84 |
| Tenth ward | 568 | .... |
| Eleventh ward | 223 | .... |
| Twelfth ward | 663 | .... |
| Thirteenth ward | 145 | .... |
| Fourteenth ward | 398 | .... |

Beardsley majority ..........1,622

The total vote cast was 37,953 of which 613 went to the Socialist candidate, Mr. Palmer.

At a Democratic Meeting.

Democratic Orator—Now for this West Traffic way problem. Mayor Beardsley vetoed a 4½ per cent grade and now he advocates a grade of 5½ per cent.

Inquisitive Man—Isn't that a 5 1-10 per cent grade?

Orator—Just a mistake in calling the fraction. But as I was saying the mayor admits that the 5½ per cent grade is too much for heavy traffic. What's the use of the traffic way, anyhow?

Inquisitive Man—But as I understand it, the higher grade is for light vehicles, while beneath is a lower viaduct for heavy traffic that has a grade of only 2.7 per cent. Isn't that right?

Orator, Nervously—Now look here, I am doing this talking. Now, a few words about The Kansas City Star-r-rh.

CANNON MAY GET 100 VOTES

THAT APPEARS TO BE THE SPEAKER'S LIMIT, HOWEVER.

The Candidacy of Mr. Taft Made the Usual Steady Progress Last Week, and the Secretary Now Has 166 Uncontested Delegates.

|---|---|
| Instructed for Taft | 166 |

| Uninstructed and unpledged | 22 |
| Total delegates elected to date | 298 |
| Total delegates in convention | 980 |
| Necessary to choice | 491 |

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Speaker Cannon had his Presidential inning in Illinois this week. He received instructions from ten Illinois districts, adding twenty delegates to his column. But the Speaker and the allies generally are far from satisfied with the result. One district, Congressman Madden's, instructed for Taft just because the delegates would not have it any other way.

When all the Illinois districts have been heard from the Speaker will have received practically all the instructed votes he will get in the national convention. It is difficult to see where his total vote on first ballot can exceed 100. Should some of the contesting delegations set up by the allies in the South be seated and it is deemed advisable to have them vote for Cannon his aggregate may slightly exceed these figures.

THE FIRST DELEGATES FOR HUGHES.

Governor Hughes for the first time also appears with delegates in the instucted column. That is because two New York districts held conventions. It yet remains true that no candidate except Taft has received instructions from any uncontested delegations except those given him in his home state.

Vice President Fairbanks added the four delegates-at-large from Indiana to his instructed column, bringing his total to thirty. The Vice President probably will get other instructed delegates from Kentucky. Just where he is to get any more instructed delegates is not apparent on the surface. There is nothing in the West for him, and the East has never taken kindly to his candidacy. His opportunity apparently is confined to the South. Kentucky has been claimed for Fairbanks because of the activity in his behalf of Senator-elect Bradley.

Aside from the delegates elected in favorite son states the week was one of uninterrupted progress for the Secretary of War. Contests have been instituted in two districts heretofore placed in the uncontested Taft column, but to compensate for these Taft captured the delegates from the Tenth Virginia district, the Eighth Ohio and the Third West Virginia.

TWO SIGNIFICANT "STRAWS."

More significant by far than the election of delegates in favorite son states was the result of the Massachusetts caucuses, which assure the Secretary of War not less than twenty of the thirty-two delegates from that state and the New York county primaries, which make it certain that Taft will be second choice in not less that eleven New York districts.

Just how it will be possible to defeat Taft when the West lines up solidly for him outside of the favorite son states and the East gives him more than half its vote outside the two favorite son states of New York and Pennsylvania, the reactionaries do not attempt to explain.

The entire effort of the allies is now centered in preventing instructions. Within a week every publicity agency which could be utilized has proclaimed that Taft's election means the defeat of the Republican party. The purpose is to frighten the uninstructed delegates. A Republican congressman from Ohio named Mouser was swept into office by the Roosevelt tide. Mr. Mouser comes from a district which is normally Democratic by a safe majority. He does not believe he can again be elected and has declined to stand for renomination. This announcement has been taken by reactionary newspapers as a text for pointing out the menace of Taft's campaign activity.

The election of Mr. Mouser in the first place was just about as indicative of the politics of his district as was the defeat of Clark in the Ninth Missouri district in 1894. There was a Democratic slump and Clark went out. There was a Roosevelt tidal wave and Mouser went in from a Democratic district.

THE "PERILS" OF TAFT'S NOMINATION.

From now on the press which can be controlled by the allies will picture in the darkest colors the danger to the "Grand Old Party" in the nomination of Taft. Accompanying this prediction will be a renewed appeal for Roosevelt to come forward and save the party from defeat. There is just as much sincerity in one proposition as the other. The President thoroughly understands that the influences which are once more at work are being used only for the purpose of complicating the Taft camapign, and neither he nor other supporters of the Secretary of War have entertained in recent months the slightest doubt either regarding Taft's nomination or his election.

THAT NEW YORK TAFT MOVE

The Secretary's Managers Have Nothing to Do With It.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Louis C. Hay, chairman of the executive committee of the newly organized Taft organization of New York state, said to-day:

"We wish it distinctly understood that the managers of Mr. Taft's campaign in Washington and Ohio have not had the slightest thing to do directly or indirectly with the Taft organization in New York, its foundation or its development. The Taft organization of New York arose out of the conviction in the minds of its founders that Mr. Taft is the best man in the country to be its next President The Taft movement here is natural and spontaneous.

"Any charge that the Taft organization of the state of New York is fathered by Wall street is without foundation. Many bankers and financiers and business men of repute and distinction have individually expressed their personal preference for Mr. Taft as a presidential candidate—as other such men have declared themselves for Mr. Hughes or Mr. Knox, Mr. Fairbanks, Mr. Cannon and others. The Taft organization has no quarrel with anybody. It wants the truth as to the choice of the people of New York state for the Republican nominee. It can be safely stated that its members generally, while believing Mr. Taft to be the best man for the next Presidency, will vote and work earnestly for the success of the chosen candidate of the Republican national convention in June, whomsoever he may be, as they are now working independent of any political alliance, earnestly and sincerely for the nomination of William H. Taft."

NO SUGGESTIONS FROM HUGHES.

New York's Delegates-at-Large Will Not Be Named by the Governor.

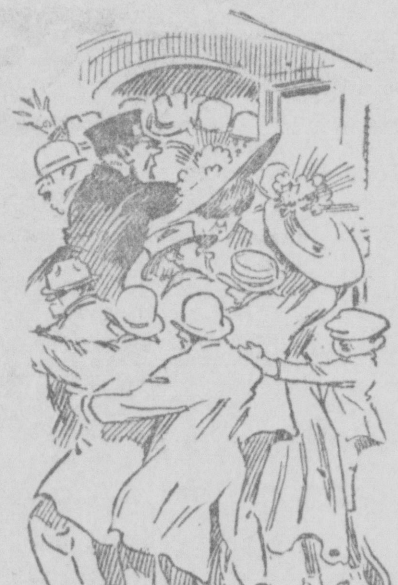
ALBANY, N. Y., April 4.—Governor Hughes has refused to make any suggestion as to the personnel of the delegation to be sent to the Republican national convention by the state convention, which will be held in New York city next Saturday. He gave out late this afternoon a letter to that effect addressed to Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff of the Republican state committee.

The letter is self explanatory and is as follows:

I have received your letter asking me to convey to you my wishes with regard to the matter of delegates-at-large to the national convention. As I telephoned you this morning, I do not desire to make any suggestion as to those who should be selected as delegates. Personally I should not care to express any preference as between individuals. I desire to adhere to the attitude which I have publicly announced that I should not endeavor to influence the selection or the vote of delegates to any convention. I know of no good reason for changing this position.

In the choice of these delegates the wishes of the Republican voters of the state, acting through their representatives in the state convention, should find free expression. The delegates to the state convention have been chosen for the express purpose of electing delegates to the national convention. They are fresh from their constituencies and know the wishes of the voters. They are responsible to the voters for their choice, and in turn the delegates-at-large to the national convention should be directly exclusively responsible to the body selecting them.

I do not believe it proper to intervene in any way, and in the assumption by the state convention of the responsibility not merely for the formal selection, but for the actual choice of the delegates-at-large, I believe the interests of the party will be best conserved.



The shades of night were falling fast,
In one Metropolitan car were fifty massed,
While thirty more were piled outside,
And yet that slim conductor cried:
"Move up the aisle!"

At every corner more piled on
Till every inch of space was gone;
No nickel-bearer was denied,
And still that meek conductor cried:
"Move up the aisle!"

BUT
One day a man of fearful might,
Packed all those people in so tight,
They stuck together in one lump
As solid as a hickory stump.

AN ANSWER FOR CONGRESS.

The President Sends a Message on the Canal Zone Government.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—President Roosevelt sent a brief message to the House in answer to a resolution inquiring by what authority he has exercised the functions of government in the Panama canal zone since the Fifty-third Congress, or by what right the executive, legislative and judicial functions in the zone have been performed since that date. The message follows:

Civil government has been maintained in the canal zone under my direction pursuant to the authority conferred by the treaty between the United States and Panama concluded November 18, 1903, and the acts of Congress approved June 28, 1902, April 28, 1904, March 3, 1905, December 21, 1905, June 30, 1906, March 4, 1907, by which the right to maintain civil government in the canal zone which granted the United States, the duty to maintain it was imposed upon the President, and its means for maintenance were from year to year expressly and specifically appropriated by Congress.

THE METROPOLITAN ISN'T ASKING FOR A THING—NOT A THING.

"Taxpayers," Including a Crittenden Utilities Commissioner, Favor the Street Railway Traffic Way Plan, but in a Public Spirited Way, of Course.

That the Metropolitan Street railway still hopes for an extension of franchises at a five-cent fare if Mayor Beardsley can be defeated is clearly shown by a circular received by many voters yesterday.

The document bears the signature of the "West Side Taxpayers' league," an organization that appears to include the rich property owners who believed they could reduce their tax for a tunnel by helping saddle a ten year extension of a five-cent fare "Peace Agreement" on the city. There are several interviews with these capitalists, who presumably compose the league, and some of them have expressed themselves in rather strong language in favor of the very agreement that was turned down two years ago when Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland said the company ought to pay at least 10 million dollars for the extension besides building the tunnel.

READ MR. SHIELDS'S WORDS CAREFULLY.

Conspicuous among those quoted in the circular is E. W. Shields. Mr. Shields is one of the men "of like character" Mr. Crittenden has promised to name as a member of his utilities commission should Mr. Crittenden ever be mayor and for that reason what Mr. Shields says is of interest. He is quoted as follows:

I favor the city agreeing with the Metropolitan Street Railway company on a plan for the construction of a traffic way and to commerce building it immediately. We need the traffic way now and we need it badly. I believe the city should get the best offer it can from the street car company, accept it and build the traffic way. The proposition which they made to the city to build a tunnel a few years ago seemed to me to be a fair proposition and I believe the city erred in not accepting it.

ALL LARGE PROPERTY OWNERS.

Another interview in the circular is by J. E. Lockwood, who is quoted as saying:

The city once had a chance to secure a tunnel instead of a traffic way at a very small cost to the city. The proposition was turned down.

A. A. Tomlinson is another quoted by the league as a high authority. Mr. Tomlinson says:

Another serious question is: How can a Metropolitan railway be compelled to join in the payment for the viaduct and the street grading? There are several legal complications involved in this traffic way.

Two or three others are quoted along the same lines and these appear to comprise the league. They are all large property owners who probably would not notice the difference between a five-cent fare and a three-cent fare, of seven tickets for a quarter, but object because the Beardsley plan of building the tunnel would cost them a little more in taxes than the Metropolitan plan.

DON'T FORGET THE CITY'S RIGHTS.

The league circular contains one statement not attributed to anyone in particular that is as false as it is absurd. It says that under the Beardsley plan the Metropolitan would not be called upon to pay any part of the expense of the viaduct and cut.

The truth about that is that the original franchise for West Twelfth street provided—and the "peace agreement" could not wipe it out—that whenever the city changes the grade of the street the company must change the West Twelfth street viaduct to conform to these changes and must also build the support strong enough to hold the city's part of the viaduct as well as the company's. Mayor Beardsley said last night:

"The Metropolitan will build its full share of the traffic way. The city has ample power to compel it to do so and will see that it does as long as I am mayor."

THE METROPOLITAN OPEN ABOUT IT.

It hardly seemed possible that the Democratic campaign managers would openly announce their support of the proposition of two years ago for the Metropolitan to build a tunnel, the people to pay the land damages and give the Metropolitan an extension of ten and one-half years on its franchises. But this circular does that very thing and commits one of Mr. Crittenden's proposed public utilities commissioners to that very plan in the most positive language. The Beardsley plan does contemplate the building of the cut and viaduct at public expense, but part of the expense was to have been paid by the people under the Metropolitan franchise extension plan which Mr. Shields favors. The difference amounts to only ten cents on some 25-foot lots in the district and to a few dollars on the most expensive ground in the business district. But for saving this small amount the Metropolitan asked for an extension of a 5-cent fare for ten and one-half years.

Sending out this circular now is in harmony with the Democratic platform which indorsed the "peace agreement" and promises to build the traffic way without cost in taxes. But the cost in car fares will be millions of dollars if the deal is ever made.

La Provence Makes the Slowest Voyage of Her Career on the Sea.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The French line La Provence and the Umbria of the Cunard line arrived here to-day far behind schedule after a passage of almost continual storms. The Umbria was held back by high seas and strong west and northwest gales and had to run at reduced speed at various intervals throughout the passage.

La Provence was twenty-four hours late and eight hours behind her slowest passage from Havre.

FOR EFFECTIVE RIVER WORK

BILLS IN CONGRESS WOULD TAKE CONTROL FROM THE ARMY.

The Present System Is Wasteful and Cumbersome in Its General Workings—Plans Are for a Separate Improvement Bureau.

The whole weight of army influence, and especially that of the corps of engineers, probably will be thrown against the bill in Congress to create a department, or bureau of one of the departments, designed to take over the control from the War department of the work of the improvement of rivers and harbors. The effort had its origin when General Alexander Mackenzie made a separate report, as a member of the inland waterways commission, opposing the majority in its recommendation that the commission be made a permanent body. A bill by Senator Newlands is now before the Senate to give permanent status to the commission, which exists now only by executive order.

One bill in the House was introduced by Representative Joseph E. Ransdell, chairman of the National Rivers and Harbors congress. Another bill of the same kind was introduced by Representative Slayden of Texas. That either of these or the Senate bill will become a law at this session is extremely doubtful, but it is more than probable that something of the kind will be passed by the next Congress.

THE SLAYDEN BILL A GOOD ONE.

The chief trouble with the Newlands Senate bill is that it proposes a commission which shall take up not only waterways, but every other subject under the head of the preservation and development of the natural resources of the country. Advocates of river improvement contend that to attempt under such a commission a river improvement plan that would be of any benefit to the people now on earth would be worse than useless and that the present plan is better. The present plan, however, is defective and the object of the House bills is to improve it.

The bill by Mr. Slayden probably would have less opposition from the army than the other two because it provides for an organization that would be a combination of the present Panama canal and reclamation service organizations, both of which have proved of the highest efficiency in the work in which they are engaged.

TO USE ARMY OFFICERS IN THE WORK.

The bill provides that the river and harbor work shall be done under a bureau of the Department of Commerce and Labor and that officers of the army engineer corps may be assigned to duty in the bureau. The effect of this would be to retain the invaluable experience of these officers on the work and at the same time give them an increase of pay while on such service. Such bureau would cut out much of the red tape with which the present system is bound up and be less cumbersome in its operations.

The principal thing the river improvement advocates desire is quick results, but under the system in vogue quick results are impossible. This is not the fault of the army officers themselves, for they have no peers as engineers, but it is the fault of Congress and the limitations which are imposed by the fact that they are army officers working under a system which admits of no improvement. Under the present system the officer in direct charge of any project must report through two other officers, who probably are wholly unacquainted with conditions and do not approve of all his report, before it gets to Congress. When it does get to Congress it must go first through the committee on rivers and harbors for approval, then to the board of engineers for examination and report, then back to Congress and through the committee again before there is a possibility of its adoption and of appropriations to carry it into effect. Then the appropriations do not become available until the beginning of the fiscal year.

This procedure has probably consumed two or three years and then in all probability another year will be required to get a plant together to do the work. Under the present system the river districts, such as the Lower Mississippi, the Upper Mississippi, the Missouri and the Ohio are separated as much as if they were controlled by private corporations. Each has its separate plant and while one district may be short of plants another district's plant may be lying idle and not available for use in the other district where it is needed.

NO STANDARD IN THE SYSTEM.

Such a system in its general workings is extravagant and wasteful. There is no co-operation, no standardization of methods, no co-ordination of projects. The Missouri river stands as a monument to the inefficiency of the old system. The fault was not with Colonel Charles R. Suter or wholly the fault of his successor, but it was the fault of the system under which they were compelled to work.

The same thing has been apparent in a lesser degree on other rivers so that the attack upon the system by Representative Ransdell is not surprising. The only wonder is that it was not made years ago. That practically every other river congressman will support Mr. Ransdell is hardly to be doubted. The sentiment in Congress is for river improvement at once—for this generation.

The result of the present movement in Congress probably will be the framing of a bill which will combine the best features of all the other bills and its passage by the next Congress. By that time the reports upon the Mississippi deep waterway project and the Missouri river project will be before Congress, in connection with the Ohio river nine-foot project which already has been made and the chances are that the reorganization of the work will be followed by an appropriation of not less than 50 million dollars.

The Real "Small Stockholders"—

In Kansas City there are some 400,000 "small stockholders" in the Metropolitan street railway. They're the ones that own the streets and pay the 5-cent fares. Every day they help the company, but they have never shared in the dividends Now these 400,000 "small stockholders" want to know if the time hasn't come for them to participate. They want to see the books of the partnership.

Will the Metropolitan let the "small stockholders" have a look?

THE VOTERS TO BE CHARITABLE.

Montgomery, Mo., May Stretch the Law to Give a Widow an Office.

MONTGOMERY, MO., April 4.—It is said to-day that Mrs. Gertrude Barney, the young widow and telephone operator nominated by the independent voters for the office of collector, is ineligible and cannot serve. It is held by the opposition that she must be a qualified voter to hold such an office in Missouri. Her election, however, is very probable, as her opponents will not likely push a technical law point against her. Her husband met a tragic death and because of her vicissitudes she may be allowed to stay in the race and hold the office if elected.

THE WORK OF AN EXPERT.

The last two years has shown a different tone in Kansas City's municipal affairs.

The city's business has kept pace with the private enterprises for which Kansas City has always been famous.

In spite of the Metropolitan's ceaseless interference, the city government has been a first class business organization. It has been up-to-date, honest and efficient.

Look at the streets. How much cleaner and better paved they are than they used to be.

There is a tenement commission at work—really at work. A new and well regulated workhouse regime, with land purchased for a new institution.

The water supply and the milk supply have been made safe—not as nearly perfect as a continuance of the same policy will make them—but safe by a high standard.

The people have not been annoyed and injured by Gamewell deals, by city hospital quarrels, by petty scandals over contracts and such things.

There has been a high class city government. The men in charge of departments have had enthusiasm for their work. Kansas City has really inspired pride in a civic way.

Everybody knows these things. The people have enjoyed government by an honest, hard working expert in municipal matters. They have not had too much of it. They have simply had enough to make them anxious for more.

EDITS HIS PAPER FROM A CELL.

Muskogee Gamblers Trying to Drive an Enemy Out of Business.

MUSKOGEE, OK., April 4.—Sitting on the side of his bunk in a steel cage in the county jail here, E. L. Strode, editor of the Midday Messenger, a daily newspaper, continues to grind out copy, and his paper comes out every day, despite the fact that Prosecuting Attorney Crump and Sheriff R. B. Ramsey have turned down all bonds that have been offered for Strode's relief.

In a recent issue the Messenger accused Crump of compounding a felony, the reference being to certain prosecutions relative to gamblers and saloon men. Crump swore out the warrant himself.

It is asserted here that the gamblers of the town have sworn a vendetta against the Messenger because of the part it took in the city election and that the gamblers openly declare that Strode will remain in jail and that the paper will be put out of business. It is also said, and a gambler made both statements to a reporter of the Messenger whom he did not know, that as soon as the Messenger is done for the Times-Democrat, which also made a bitter fight on the gamblers, must go.

The matter has caused a great deal of excitement here. There is a good deal of criticism because the county officers have failed to accept the bond offered by Strode and there is also lots of criticism against the attack which the newspaper made on the prosecuting attorney.

THAT IRRITATING QUESTION.

Why Should the Candidate Refuse to Answer "Yes" or "No?"

To The Star: Why should Mr. Crittenden fly into a rage when asked if he would vote for the granting of a beer franchise to the parks?

What support did the Democratic candidate fear he would lose if he answered the question in the negative, as did Mr. Beardsley.

What possible "trap" or "trick" could there be in a life-long Democrat asking the candidate on his own party ticket a question like that?

Beardsley said "No," when the question was put to him. What's the matter that Crittenden hesitates to say where he stands? EAST TWELFTH STREET.

A CONVENTION HALL RALLY

REPUBLICANS ARE TO CLOSE THE CITY CAMPAIGN TO-MORROW NIGHT.

Senator Warner to Preside—H. S. Hadley, Mayor Beardsley and Other Leaders to Discuss Issues in Short, Snappy Speeches—Good Music.

The last chance to hear about the real issues of the municipal campaign will be presented by the Republicans to-morrow night in Convention hall. No card of admission will be required. The doors will be open at 7:30 o'clock, the band will play to entertain the waiting thousands and every man and woman who cares for Kansas City will be welcomed, even if they have to stand.

There'll be no long winded, tiresome tirades in to-morrow night's closing rally. The speeches will be short and snappy and filled with concisely arranged facts that voters should carry in their minds to the polling places Tuesday. Senator William Warner will be there and probably will preside. Senator Warner will speak also. Mayor Beardsley, too, will have a speech and so will Herbert S. Hadley, attorney general, if he is able to attend. Mr. Hadley has been ill, but expects to come from Jefferson City for the big occasion. A. S. Van Valkenburgh, United States district attorney, and C. W. Clarke, surveyor of the port, also are to address the meeting.

Aside from the speeches the feature of exceptional interest in the Convention hall rally will be a series of especially prepared stereopticon pictures to be shown under the direction of Bryant S. Cromer, chairman of the Republican publicity committee. An especially constructed electric stereopticon has been provided. This machine is declared to be the most powerful of its kind ever used in the West. A 2,000 candle power arc light is used to throw the pictures on a screen twenty-five feet square. Special French lenses are used so that the pictures will be clearly seen from any part of the hall.

The speaking will begin at 8 o'clock and will be ended by 10 o'clock.

TORONTO FARES ARE CHEAPER.

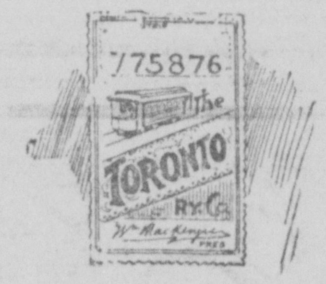
The Four-Cent Street Car Tickets Are Good at All Times.

Walter S. Dickey found in a book that he had carried in an overcoat pocket a block of Toronto street car tickets.

"I did not know I had them," he said, "but my business takes me to Toronto occasionally, and, though I don't stay there long I always buy tickets. These are four-cent fares, the highest rates charged there for tickets. They are good at any time and for all kinds of transfers to places away out in the suburbs and to the beaches and pleasure resorts."

The ticket here shown is from Mr. Dickey's stock that he happened to have in his pocket. In Toronto children ride for half fare. Everybody rides in the morning and evening on eight for twenty-five-cent tickets, but the four-cent fares are good any time in the day or night. In addition the Toronto railway pays all its taxes and a per cent of gross receipts on a sliding scale to the city. Its annual payments besides taxes approximate ½ million dollars. If the Metropolitan was made to pay on the same scale in Kansas City its share would be $800,000 a year. And another strange thing is that the Toronto railway pays dividends and the management doesn't attempt to name mayors in Toronto. Years ago the street railway was in politics, but it "got enough."



THE TORONTO FOUR-CENT TICKET.

SHOT INTO A LAW OFFICE.

Two Muskogee Men Luckily Escaped an Unknown Man's Bullets.

MUSKOGEE, OK., April 4.—Last night while D. H. Morgan, an attorney, and C. A. Linebaugh, a real estate man, were sitting in their office in the Iowa building, a stranger threw the door open and fired two shots from a revolver at the two men. Neither shot took effect. One of the bullets struck a brick wall, flattened and fell on Morgan's desk. Both bullets went between the two men. The man who did the shooting was a stranger to both men. Both saw him plainly and say that they had never seen him before. He slammed the door shut and disappeared in the darkness.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED.

A Transient Kansas Newspaper Man Probably Died of Heart Disease.

PITTSBURG, KAS., April 4.—J. R. Smiley, a transient newspaper man who had been in Pittsburg since the early part of January, 1908, was found dead in his room in the Courtland hotel here this afternoon about 2 o'clock by the porter of the house, who had gone to awaken him so the maid could clean his room. He had been dead for some time.

The cause of his death has not yet been determined and an autopsy will be held tomorrow.

VISIONS ARE HIS SPECIALTY

MAX HOFFMAN, SPIRITUALIST, DESIRES TO START A CHURCH HERE.

At 4 He Died, He Says, and a Few Days Later Came to Life—Some of His Prophecies—He Saw a Man Angel Here.

In a hundred trials you couldn't guess his occupation. He wears a gray felt hat and a brown checked suit with an Elk's emblem in the coat lapel. When he talks you notice first his German accent, then the humorous twinkle in his blue eyes. His name is Max Hoffman, and he registers from Chicago. Even now you can't guess it. He's a Spiritualist—a trance medium! At least he says he is. He believes that Kansas City is a good place in which to start a Spiritualist church, he says and he is here to investigate. In his room at the Midland hotel yesterday afternoon he told of causes that have operated to bring him here.

"The real starting point of the story," he declared, "is just after the time when I died at the age of 4. I don't know this part of my history for a fact—my mother told me about it—we lived very poor in Germany—in a little straw-thatched house like the Irish village at the World's fair.

ADVISED HIS MOTHER NIGHGTLY.

"I died and was buried four days, but I came every night of that time and advised my mother to have the casket opened. When she did there was seen a little red spot burning on one of my cheeks. So the doctor dropped me into a tub of hot water and I came alive again.

"At seven I made my first prophecy—that a neighbor woman would die. I led my mother to this woman's door and pointed at a piece of crepe that only I myself could see. The woman died a few days later."

The good-natured twinkle in Mr. Hoffman's eyes had vanished.

"Two years affer that I predicted that the grocery store in our town would blow up. Sure enough, it did. A clerk left a burning candle on a big tank of gasoline and, puff! Up went the grocery store."

The blue eyes twinkled—then turned grave again.

"It was soon after that that people began to call me a witch and show fear of me. Though why—my gracious, I don't know! About this time I saw in a vision an American flag—my destiny.

THEN HE CAME TO BALTIMORE.

"I did not know then, though, what the flag was. My parents had fourteen children. You know what that means in the old country. I never got beyond one reader in the schools. I hired out to a man to scrub floors in a hotel. I predicted his death a week before he died. He left me money and with it I go to Baltimore, America. As the ship sails into the bay, there I see the American flag floating from a masthead, the same as in my vision."

Mr. Hoffman opened a bureau drawer and exhibited a flag that he always carries for a mascot.

"I saw a negro when I landed," he continued. "I asked him how long he had worn that color. He told me 'all his life;' and that I would take on the same shade if I went to live in Chicago. My laundry, too, he said ,would change color."

"Visions flashed before my sight now and then, but I didn't make my living by them. I was scrubbing barroom floors. Then I predicted that the man who taught me English was soon to lose his arm. He was a press feeder. When the prophecy came true I was made a hero. I have been seeing things and lecturing ever since. Mine is not the darkroom and that sort. I just lecture in the open. I never can tell when the flash is coming—or why.

WHY KANSAS CITY IS HIS DESTINY.

"What makes me think Kansas City is my destiny? Well, I have not had the flash for here but it was here that one of my ambitions has been realized. All my life have I longed to see a man angel. The other day I walked into a news stand and looking idly at the covers of the magazines suddenly comes the flash—the man angel is pictured there inside."

Mr. Hoffman had the very magazine and opened it to show the visitor the place. The man angel picture was a reproduction of a cartoon of President Roosevelt, in which the President was equipped with an angelic smile, a pair of wings and a halo.

"Here, then, one of my ambitions has been realized," Mr. Hoffman repeated. "There must be special meaning in that. And besides, many people have asked me to locate here. Can't you see?"

The visitor gazed intently. But though he tried his best he couldn't tell whether the medium's blue eyes were sparkling with earnestness or twinkling with humor.

Higher and Fewer.

The Beardsley administration has increased saloon license fees from $250 to $500, giving the city $150,000 more revenue every year. It has closed saloons after 1 a. m.

Both measures are approved by law abiding saloon keepers.

In the crowd in front of The Star office, midnight, Friday night.

Gotch Rooter—Here is some more Star domination. Makes all of us come down here at midnight and stand in the street to read the wrestling bulletins.

Hack Supporter—Hear the fools cheering, too. You'd think they are glad to be here. The Star probably gets a million dollars for this out of somebody.

WEDDED HIS BROTHER'S WIDOW.

A Kansan and His Bride Had Been Playmates Fifty Years Ago.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Coleman A. Church of Olathe, Kas., and Mrs. Draria C. Church of Homer, Ill., were married at Joliet yesterday by the Rev. A. F. Clark. Mrs. Church's daughter and her husband were witnesses. The couple are well along in years, the bride being the widow of the groom's brother. They were playmates together fifty years ago. Church owns a farm in Kansas, where they will go to live.

THE DIARY OF A DEMOCRAT.

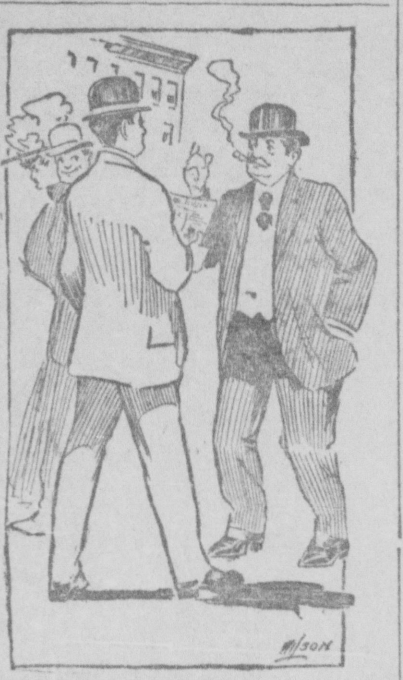
March 7—The party held its city convention to-day. I don't know many of the men nominated, but I am told they are all good Democrats. The platform rings true with those great principles of Democracy that mean government by the people, against the corporate interests. The plank which, I believe, will appeal not only to voters of our own party, but to Republicans as well, is the one indorsing the efforts of Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, Mayor William B. Thomson of Detroit and Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, who have succeeded in bringing about cheaper street car fares for the people of their cities. After the candidates nominated to-day pledge themselves to carry out the provisions of this platform nothing can prevent a great victory for the Democratic party in the city election.

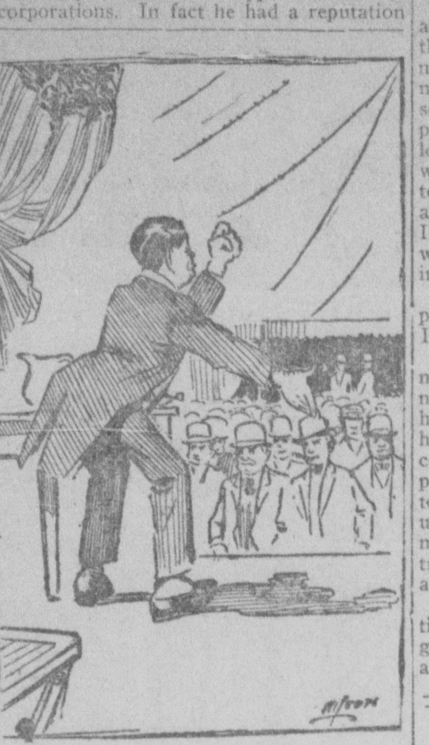
March 8—I was told to-day that the man who acted as chairman of the city convention and had most to do with framing the platform is an attorney for the Metropolitan Street Railway company. I can't see what place this corporation has in a Democratic convention. It surely can't expect much at the hands of the great party that has always stood for the people as opposed to corporation control. Well, anyway, the platform rings true. There's that low street car fare plank. The candidates, I understand, will pledge themselves to-morrow to carry out the platform's promises to the voters.



"THAT THE METROPOLITAN CONTROLLED THE CONVENTION! DENY AND RESENT IT."

Somehow I don't like that Metropolitan accusation.

March 10—I asked a campaign leader to-day about that charge that the Metropolitan controlled the convention. "Now, now," he said, "don't believe what you read in The Star. It's trying to deceive the people into voting against our ticket. The Metropolitan is giving excellent service here and there are so many hills in Kansas City that it costs more to operate the cars. Five cents is the fare charged in many cities where it costs less to operate. This Metropolitan attor—er—a—this leader of our party, when he was mayor, was very bitter in his opposition to the corporations. In fact he had a reputation as a corporation baiter. Of course he has not changed his attitude now.



THEY TALK EXACTLY AS IF SOMEBODY HAD HIRED THEM TO ABUSE IT.

"Whenever," he went on, "whenever you hear that charge that the Metropolitan controlled the convention, deny it and resent it. In making that accusation The Star is slandering the great Democratic party and hurting our cause terribly. Try to discredit The Star. Say anything you can think of against it. It hasn't any influence anyway. Didn't you read our platform?"

"Yes," said I, "but the candidates haven't pledged themselves to fulfill its promises and——"

"Oh, they will," he said, "they will, soon."

Now this may be good Democratic doctrine, but—well there appears to be something wrong with it. I've always found The Star a pretty good newspaper. I enjoy reading it. I wouldn't take it if I didn't. I haven't always agreed with it politically, but it's always got something going on that the people of Kansas City are benefited by when the thing is accomplished. Now going home from work I haven't had a seat in the street car since I don't know when and the cars run slow and lots of them are old. There's something about the attitude of my party this time that I don't understand. Maybe the leaders will explain it all later.

March 15—I went to one of our party's big tent meetings last night. As a result I'm deeper in the mire than ever. Not a word did I hear about the great principles of Democracy. Precious little was said about the platform. Practically all I received in return for the time I spent at the meeting was a tirade of abuse against The Star. And the language and manner of the speakers in talking about that newspaper was so harsh, so bitter and so vulgar that I was glad I had not permitted any of the women members of my family to acompany me to the meeting. The Star is certainly a powerful newspaper if it has aroused all this opposition. I don't understand how it can have so much influence, if, as these men say, it has so persistently worked against the people.

Why do these men hate The Star so? Why are they so bitter in their denunciation of it? They talk exactly as if somebody had hired them to abuse it. Now, who could that be? The principal thing The Star is fighting for now is to give the people of Kansas City the right to regulate the public service corporations. I guess that's the answer.

All the time the chief speaker wasn't abusing The Star he was talking about the advantages of an agreement he had made with the Metropolitan when he was mayor. Now, for the life of me, I can't see what that has to do with this campaign. He didn't say a word about the low fare plank in the platform. Not a word from him on the plank to reduce telephone rates and compel interchangeable service between the two companies. If anything was said about the plank to work for free baths, playgrounds and improving the Blue river it escaped me.

March 20—The candidates haven't pledged themselves yet, on the platform. I'm in serious doubt about this campaign.

March 25—I went to another Democratic meeting last night. Mr. Joseph B. Shannon spoke. He was the only speaker. And he didn't talk a bit as if he were being hired to do it. He talked about the three-cent fare plank, cheaper electric lights and power and cheaper telephones. And he told something about the value of public utility franchises when the grantee has a monopoly. It was good Democratic doctrine. But somehow Mr. Shannon doesn't appear to cut much ice in this camaign.

I heard to-day that if the Democratic ticket were elected, Mr. Shannon would be given the place of city dog enumerator as a reward for his services in the campaign.

March 30—Our side appears to have plenty of money. Wonder where it comes from. Now it can't be that our leaders have forgotten that plank in the platform denouncing the "scandalous Republican practice of soliciting and accepting campaign contributions from the corporations."

April 1—The candidates are still withholding their pledges of support to the platform.

In many ways this is the funniest political campaign I've ever gone through.

I've about made up my mind how I'll vote.

April 2—The betting on the campaign is quite lively—that is, "mind" betting. I overheard several conversation wagers today. Our boys are offering big odds on the Democratic ticket, but the cash is locked up in a vault with a time lock and the combination won't be released for a few days yet.

April 3—The campaign has reached the "vote trading" stage. A Republican friend of mine who lives in Tonganoxie, Kas., has a lot of property in Kansas City. He offered me a trade to-day. Said he would agree to vote for the next Democratic candidate for mayor of Tonganoxie if I would agree to vote for Beardsley.

April 4—The Democratic candidates haven't come across with that platform pledge, yet. Is the Metropolitan in politics? O! no. It is out—to beat Beardsley.

April 6—Am naturally an accommodating individual. Like to do anything to oblige. So I made that agreement with my Republican friend from Tonganoxie.

April 7—I kept my word.

MINERS WORK ON AGREEMENT.

Pending a Settlement of Difficulties All of the Miners Are Idle.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., April 4.—The joint scale committee of the operators and miners of Illinois spent the morning to-day discussing the clauses of the proposed agreement regarding the timbering of mines by the operators. They adjourned at noon until Tuesday morning, when they will resume their work preparatory to making a report to the joint convention of Illinois operators and miners to be held in this city Wednesday, April 8.

Many of the operators of the state, who wish to have some work done in their mines are much incensed at the refusal of the miners to work at this time. The miners have been informed by the organization that they may work if they so desire and when they desire during the present conference, but the miners refuse to do any work whatever unless they can work full time as usual, until the scale committee arranges the new agreement satisfactorily.

Inspection

Beardsley has made the contractors on public work submit to inspection that is really inspected.

The milkmen have had to show their dairies to health and food officers.

Mitkmen, grocers and everybody having anything for sale have had to conform to the examination provided by the Pure Food laws.

Every private water company has had to submit samples of its spring or distilled water to the city chemist for analysis.

Inspection is the keynote of an efficient administration.

Why should only the public service corporations—the Metropolitan, Electric Light, Gas and Telephone Companies—escape.

THE EFFICACY OF A WANT AD.

A Few Lines in The Star Brought a Reply From Cheyenne Agency, S. D.

The far reaching efficacy of Star want ads was demonstrated to the Electric Railway Training association this week. The association recently opened offices in the Temple block. Among the letters which came in answer to an advertisement in last Sunday's Star was one from H. W. Fielder of Cheyenne Indian agency, S. D. His Indian name is "Lost Dog." He sent his picture to Frank M. Robinson, president of the Electric Railway Training association, and came to Kansas City yesterday afternoon.

This cartoon was drawn by Herbert Rankin, 12 years old, who is a pupil in the Ashland school at Twenty-fourth street and Elmwood avenue. He is the oldest of a family of five children. His father, who was an iron worker, died from a sunstroke last summer and the mother, Mrs. Luella Rankin, uses all her resources in caring for her children and giving them an education. Herbert, therefore, has no chance to attend art school, though he has pronounced talent for drawing. His favorite subjects are animals that he sees on the street or in circuses. He draws quickly and has the happy faculty of putting "action" into his pictures. Lately, Herbert's work has shown much improvement. Herbert's home is at Twenty-third street and Denver avenue.

ALL MUST SPEAK GERMAN

THE REICHSTAG ENACTS A PECULIAR MEASURE RESTRICTING SPEECH.

For Twenty Years to Come Non-German Districts May Speak in Other Tongues at Meetings, but Then German Alone Will Be Allowed.

BERLIN, April 4.—The Reichstag adopted this evening by a vote of 200 to 179 section VII of the government's associations bill. The debate attracted the largest gathering of members reported in years, 382 out of a total of 397 being present, three of whom declined to vote.

This section elects that the German language is compulsory in all public meetings in every part of the empire, except in the case of international congresses or election meetings. Further exceptions will be permitted during the next twenty years, after the promulgation of a law for those districts where 60 per cent of the inhabitants speak a language other than German, but in these cases the authorities must be notified that a meeting is about to be held and also that language is to be spoken, so as to allow a competent police reporter to be present.

The debate on the section lasted throughout the day and until nearly 10 o'clock to-night. The discussion was sharp throughout and went on amidst continual agitation and interruption. The house was fairly evenly divided, the so-called "Bloc" supporting the government against the opposition of the Socialists, the Poles and the Center party. When the result of the division was announced, a scene of the wildest tumult occurred, the house separating in the greatest excitement.

The result of the house's action on this section has been awaited with intense interest throughout the empire, owing to the fact that it affects 4½ million non-German inhabitants, comprising the Poles of the Eastern provinces, the Danes in the north and the French in Alsace-Lorraine, in addition to the less important races not speaking German, the Wends, the Masurians, the Lithuanians, the Cassubians and the Czechs.

Bates County Democrats to Meet.

BUTLER, Mo., April 4.—The Bates county Democratic central committee met in this city this afternoon and called a county convention for May 2 to select delegates to the state convention. Township conventions were ordered for April 25. J. Emmett Hook resigned as chairman of the committee and Prof. P. M. Allison was chosen in his place.

WATERS GARDEN CITY FARMS.

The Unique Kansas Irrigation Plant Is Now in Operation.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The big irrigation project at Garden City, Kas., is now in successful operation. The reclamation bureau was so notified to-day by the engineer in charge. According to the bureau's advices the pumps of the great plant are working smoothly and water is running the entire length of the farmers' canal. The officials here were very much gratified over this information.

The Garden City project involves a unique irrigation system by which the underflow of the Arkansas river will be utilized. More than 300 wells were sunk along a stretch exceeding four miles. These wells are in groups of ten each and vary from twelve to fifteen inches in diameter. Each group will be operated by a pumping plant and all the pumps will receive electric power from a central power station. The water will be lifted from the wells into a concerte lined conduit which discharges into the main canal. It has been estimated that during the irrigation season the pumps will lift over 11 billion gallons of water. An area of 8,600 acres will be irrigated the coming season.

A TRAVELER ROBBED OF $6,000.

San Francisco Police Characters Suspected of Stealing From Merchant.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—F. S. Royster, a millionaire planter of Norfolk, Va., who has been touring the Orient and was a passenger on the steamship Mongolia when she came up to the Pacific mail dock last night, was robbed of $6,000 in Bank of England notes, his railroad ticket and $150 in gold. A number of local characters, well known to the police, have been arrested on suspicion.

LOST AN EYE IN AN EXPLOSION.

The Other Injuries Suffered by a Kansas Road Overseer Considered Dangerous.

ARCADIA, KAS., April 4.—F. M. Grimsley, road overseer in Lincoln township, was dangerously injured this afternoon by an explosion of dynamite under a big stump in the road. One eye was destroyed and it is feared he will lose the other. He was thrown several feet.

The Humane Society Honored Two.

At a meeting of the Humane society yesterday, certificates of honorable mention were given to Mrs. E. D. Hornbrook and W. H. Harrison, city license inspector. Mrs. Hornbrook was given honorable mention for organizing the band of mercy many years ago, and Mr. Harrison for his effective work in restraining the illicit sale of liquor.

ANOTHER LETTER BY STUBBS

MULVANE IS AGAIN DENOUNCED BY THE LAWRENCE MAN.

A Denial of the Charge That He Bolted the Republican Ticket in 1906 Is Made by the Candidate for Governor.

TOPEKA, April 4.—The Stubbs-Mulvane feud is becoming bitter. Stubbs issued another statement to-day in which he goes after Mulvane, but incidentally he at the same time attempts to make considerable medicine for Stubbs.

Some time ago D. W. Mulvane issued an interview in which he accused Stubbs of disloyalty to the Republican ticket in 1906 in that he refused to take part in the Hoch campaign. Stubbs comes back today and pleads good Republicanism for stating that he voted the ticket "straight."

In the meantime "your uncle Cyrus" Leland is sitting back silent and grave with just a suspicion of a smile of satisfaction while the others quarrel.

THE STUBBS STATEMENT.

The Stubbs statement follows:

The recent manifesto issued by Hon. D. W. Mulvane was in one respect commendable. It manifested a disposition to defend publicly the policies, aims and objects of the Republican machine organization in Kansas. This is the only time that I have ever known Mr. Mulvan or any of his machine associates to come out of the political underbrush into the open, and I have been beating the brush for some years.

Mr. Mulvane disclaims that he has been the head of the railroad lobby that has infested the Kansas legislature for the last few years. This statement must have been surprising news to the railroad, Book trust, insurance and other interests. I am now expecting Mr. Mulvane to deny that he and his machine associates have opposed the enactment of the general railroad law, anti-pass law, two-cent fare law, treasury deposit law, board of control law, primary election law and almost every other important measure that has been written into the statutes of Kansas during the past five years and without which the Republican party in Kansas would be discredited in this era of progress in American politics.

Will Mr. Mulvane deny that he has been the constant companion of the railroad attorneys and machine lobby in the legislature and state and county conventions during all this time and has been a leading spirit and guiding hand in the management of the opposition of these laws?

Will Mr. Mulvane deny that he used his influence with the United States postoffice department in Washington to prevent the issue of a fraud order and was paid $2,500 for that service? Does any one doubt that Mr. Mulvane's employment in work of this kind has been due, not to his eminence as a lawyer, but to his political office and power?

THE THINGS TAFT OPPOSES.

Secretary Taft denounced "Boss" Cox in Ohio because he was making merchandise out of politics in that state. The whole uprising in American politics is in rebuke of just such abuse of great political power. The utter ridiculousness of the old machine crowd of politicians who have grown rich on the spoils of office, "hollering" themselves hoarse for Taft and Roosevelt, both of whom condemn publicly and continually everything that machine politics in Kansas stands for, is apparent to even the unsophisticated citizen in politics.

Mr. Mulvane says in his statement that Stubbs has been working for Stubbs only in politics. In five years I have served in three regular sessions and two special sessions of the state legislature and served two years as chairman of the state central committee. More than four months of the latter time I spent in Topeka looking after the campaign. During all this time I have received from the state of Kansas and from all other political sources as payment for services rendered and expenses not to exceed $800. During this five years I have put in the greater part of my time in an effort to help place the public business of Kansas on a sound business basis and to eliminate graft and grafters from our political system.

Mr. Mulvane charges that I secretly bolted the last Republican state ticket. I did not bolt the Republican state ticket either secretly or otherwise in the last election and have never yet bolted a Republican ticket. I voted the ticket straight, and not only that, but I joined many other loyal Republicans in putting into our platform an amendment by petition three weeks after the state convention that saved many thousands of Republican votes for the ticket and prevented a humiliating defeat at the November election, and this condition of danger to the Republican ticket was the direct result of the old machine bosses combining with the railroads and controlling the state convention in the interests of the corporations and politicians who were opposed to progressive legislation.

AS TO DEMOCRATIC SUPPORT.

Mr. Mulvane says that the Democrats voted with me on the primary election law in the house, which is to their credit, and I will ask Mr. Mulvane if the Democratic senator and railroad attorney from Atchison was not one of the leaders of the Republican lodge against this measure and many others during the last four years?

I have been pretty busy and unable to attend to this correspondence before, but will be at Mr. Mulvane's disposal at any future time.

MILLER'S MIND NEARLY MADE UP.

An Announcement From the Osage Man Early This Week.

TOPEKA, April 4.—It now appears almost certain that Hiram B. Miller of Osage county will announce his candidacy for the nomination of governor upon the Republican ticket next Monday or Tuesday. Clyde Miller, who is his father's manager, was in Topeka to-day and while he would not say positively whether or not his father intends to become a candidate yet he gave the impression that he expects to announce.

"My father realizes," said Clyde Miller, "that he must make his decision very soon and for that reason he will make an announcement one way or the other next Monday or Tuesday. We have been waiting to ascertain the conditions over the state. My father has no leaders with him, and when his decision comes it will be a personal decision and not one suggested by one faction or the other. If he gets into the race he will have no fear of anyone being able to make the charge that he has been brought out by any one faction. Whatever record he has made that will he stand upon.

"If he becomes a candidate it will be because he believes there is a chance for a third man and because he believes he can win."

"How do you find the conditions over the state so far as your father is concerned?" Mr. Miller was asked.

"Up to this time," he answered, "we have found them very satisfactory. We have consulted no one regarding this matter. The only persons who are interested in the fight that we have talked to are Mr. Leland and Mr. Stubbs, and our conversations with them have been friendly. In fact, the conversations with both of these candidates have merely been a friendly understanding."

Although it is not absolutely certain that Senator Miller will become a candidate yet the politicians are already speculating as to whom his candidacy will injure the more—Stubbs or Leland. Senator Miller's home is in the Fourth district. Stubbs's greatest strength lies in the counties of that district. Miller is quite popular at home and this "district pride" will injure Stubbs materially in the Fourth if it does not lose him the district.

The effect on other parts of the state is problematical. There appears to be no question that Leland has the greater strength in the First and Third districts so far as Stubbs is concerned, but no one appears to know which way the Miller candidacy will cut. The Sixth district is apparently also strongly Leland and here again comes up the question whether or not Miller will injure the stronger candidate.

In the Seventh district the Long machine will largely decide the way the wind will blow there. Most of this organization has already declared allegiance to Leland, but it may flop if Long's personal interest requires it.

Like Leland, Miller is an old soldier, but he will have to make an uphill fight for support in that quarter as Leland has already much of it pledged.

Church Wouldn't Condone Father Crowley's Opposition to Parochial Schools.

SEATTLE, April 4.—It has transpired that Father Jeremiah J. Crowley, for many years a priest in the Catholic church, but whose relations with the church were severed by reason of his criticism of the parochial school system, was married to Miss Blanche McCleod a sister of Postmaster D. E. McCleod of Schuyler, Neb., March 9, at North Yakima, Wash., the Rev. S. J. Kennedy of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Mr. Crowley has lived in Seattle about nine months and has since that time been engaged in the real estate business. He is now a member of the First Presbyterian church.

To Have Druggists File Liquor Sales.

The criminal court grand jury in its final report yesterday recommended that the county clerk require druggists to comply with the law regarding the filing of all prescriptions calling for the sale of liquor.

UNFAIR, CRITTENDEN SAYS

A LETTER OF THE REV. ALBERT BUSHNELL IRRITATES THE CANDIDATE.

Though the Democrat's Name Isn't Mentioned in the Writer's Appeal for Moral Decency, He Declares It "a Vicious Attack."

Several thousand voters were surprised yesterday afternoon to receive a letter from T. T. Crittenden, jr., in which the writer said: "The letter sent you by the Republican committee signed by the Rev. Albert Bushnell, making an unfair and vicious attack on me, insinuates that I favor Sunday saloons."

Mr. Crittenden's letter goes on to say that the writer is, "opposed to the Sunday saloon and will stand resolutely at all times for this policy." As most of the voters had not received letters from Dr. Bushnell the circular sent by the candidate requires some explanation.

The Rev. Albert Bushnell is the Kansas City superintendent for the Anti-Saloon league. Nearly two weeks ago, after consultation with several ministers he sent letters to Mayor Beardsley and to Mr. Crittenden asking them these questions:

If you should be elected mayor of this city at the coming election will you, throughout your term of office, stand resolutely for the closed saloon on Sunday as required by law; for the enforcement of all laws pertaining to dramshops, and the safeguarding of our pleasure parks against the licensed sale of intoxicating liquors therein?

Hoping for a prompt reply, I remain, yours sincerely, ALBERT BUSHNELL.

The first mail the next morning brought the following reply from Mr. Beardsley written on the bottom of the letter of inquiry:

Dear Mr. Bushnell: I will do all the things suggested in the above question. That I have done these things during the past two years is proof of my position upon these questions. Faithfully yours, H. M. BEARDSLEY.

Three days later Mr. Crittenden answered as follows:

Rev. Albert Bushnell, Superintendent Missouri Anti-Saloon league, 506 Kansas City Life Building, city: Dear Sir—Your letter of March 24 received. I owe you an apology for not answering sooner, but you can readily understand how difficult it is for me to find occasion to even open my mail in these busy days of the campaign.

You ask me three questions. First, if elected mayor of Kansas City will I stand resolutely for the closed saloon on Sunday, as required by law? I answer yes.

Second—For the enforcement of all laws pertaining to the dramshop? I answer yes.

"IFS" IN CRITTENDEN'S REPLY.

Third—The safeguarding of our pleasure parks against the licensed sale of intoxicating liquors therein? In answer to that question I desire to say, if you mean the city's parks I am unalterably opposed to the granting of any license for the sale of intoxicating liquor upon any of the city's property.

If you refer to the granting of licenses to individuals doing business in or near parks other than the city's, my answer is this: that the board of police commissioners is vested with a wide discretion in the matter of granting or refusing licenses for the sale of liquor. It can and does refuse licenses whenever it thinks best for the interests of the community to do so, whether it be on account of the character of the applicant, the location of the proposed dramshop or for any other reason.

If I were a member of that board, as mayor of Kansas City, I would pass upon each individual case as it came before me and decide the same in the light of all the circumstances surrounding it, according to what I thought was best for the interests of the community. Yours truly, THOMAS T. CRITTENDEN.

THIS "THE VICIOUS ATTACK."

Later the Anti-Saloon league, not the Republican committee, sent a letter to its members and some of the church people over the signature of Dr. Bushnell. In that circular Mr. Crittenden's name did not appear, but this language was used:

In this campaign from our point of view the question is not whether a Republican or Democratic candidate shall be elected, but whether the liquor interests are to run the city or otherwise. A great moral issue is before the people. They are to decide whether vice or moral decency is to prevail. The saloon is pitted against the church. It seeks to ride high-handed over the Sabbath and put an end to restrictive administration against its own iniquitous devices.

The saloon men are backing the Democratic candidate because they believe that with him in the mayor's office they can obtain favors and licenses and lawless conditions and an open Sunday saloon, impossible should Beardsley be re-elected. For a similar reason druggists given to illicit liquor selling are joining hands with the saloon keepers.

This is probably the "vicious attack" the candidate charges that the preacher made on him. Dr. Bushnell said last night:

"I made no attack on Mr. Crittenden. I said the brewers were supporting him, evidently expecting favors if he were elected. He failed to answer my question when I asked if he would vote to place saloons in the parks. He did not answer when S. J. Hurst, founder of the Produce exchange, asked if he would favor licensing the sale of liquor in parks and places of amusement attended by women and children. In his letter to-day he again fails to say whether he will vote to license saloons in the parks.

A JUSTIFIED APPEAL, HE SAYS.

"I understand that he wrote a letter asking the police board to license Electric park last summer. I was justified in calling the attention of our people to his attitude because of recent developments in Kansas City.

"The Non-Partisan Citizens' league was organized with George H. Michaelis president for the avowed purpose of 'electing broad and liberal men to office, regardless of party.' This league is a secret organization with its membership limited almost entirely to liquor dealers. It has steadfastly advocated the defeat of Mr. Beardsley and the election of Mr. Crittenden. At a secret meeting last night this statement by a saloon keeper was heartily indorsed: 'It is for our interest to have Mr. Crittenden elected for he will stand by us.' At this same secret meeting Mr. Gehring at the head of the German American alliance in this city declared, 'the only way for us to have a good time in this city and an open town is to elect Crittenden.' All the speeches at the meeting were of this general order.

"Mr. Grau of Milwaukee, representing the National Brewers' association, has been in the city and organized a Manufacturers' and Dealers' club, made up of men manufacturing and selling articles used by the brewers. The object of the organization he declared to be 'to fight the Anti-Saloon league and that the first thing for it to do in this line was to try and defeat Mayor Beardsley in the coming election. This sentiment was indorsed by the specifically liquor men present at the meeting."

BREWERY INTERESTS BEHIND IT?

A Circular in German Asks Votes for Several Candidates.

There was organized in St. Louis three years ago an association known as the German-American league. It was not a strictly German society, but an organization of brewers and their employees to fight Sunday closing of saloons.

At that time there was a vigorous protest by Germans, who believed in law enforcement; against the use of the word German in a name to designate a society that had for its object the defeat of a law enforcement movement. The organization was on the theory that saloons had the right to run on Sunday and its name was used in the efforts made in St. Louis to defy the law.

Recently there has been circulated in Kansas City a document printed in German, purporting to come from the German-American league, urging all voters who favor liberty and pleasure to cast their votes in this election for these candidates:

For Mayor—Thomas T. Crittenden, jr.
For President Upper House—R. L. Gregory.
For Members Upper House—John P. Titsworth, W. C. Culbertson, Emmett O'Malley, Isaac Taylor, A. F. Barbe, J. C. Wirthman, J. E. Logan, Berry Dantzig.
For Treasurer—William J. Baehr.
For members lower house:

M'CUNE TO THE CITY CLUB.

The City Government Should Take More Interest in Charities, He Said.

In a speech before the City club at the Sexton hotel yesterday Judge Henry L. McCune of the juvenile court told of the work Kansas City is doing to save its boys and girls.

"The thing I must impress upon you is that this work doesn't go far enough," he said. "The burden of assisting the work of the court falls on private charitable organizations. The city itself isn't taking care of the children. A few words from the judge will not be remembered, but the work of the right sort of probation officer or a business man who acts as a big brother to the boy who doesn't behave may save the city from having another criminal. The work that is now being done by private charities ought to be done by the municipality and the county. Our new city charter ought to provide for the absorption of the present charities."

The judge commended the work the negroes of the city have done in subscribing $550 for a home for neglected negro girls. A building just north of the detention home on Oak street has been furnished and will be opened next week.

The Juvenile Improvement association, he said, had decided not to open anything but temporary quarters until next fall. During the summer the boys are to camp on Indian creek.

"In all the work of saving boys one of the most important features would be trade schools," the judge said at the conclusion of his speech.

One Chance in Two Years

No wonder it doesn't want an inquiry by a real public utilities commission that would bring a change.

The people have a chance to say something about this Tuesday. And they will not have another chance for two years.

A LIQUOR CASE WAS IGNORED.

So the Grand Jury Rebuked the County Court and the Police Board.

In its final report for the court term yesterday the criminal court grand jury criticised the county court and the police commissioners. The grand jury returned an indictment several weeks ago, charging that liquor was sold on Sunday in the Newport saloon, owned by Fitzsimmons & Maloney at 412 East Twelfth street. It was recommended that the license be not renewed, but the saloon is still open. Neither the county court nor the police commissioners took any action.

CHILDREN TOOK PART IN A GREAT PHILADELPHIA DEMONSTRATION.

The Campaign for Temperance Included a Parade in Which 5,000 Boys and Girls Marched and Carried Banners.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Singing hymns, waving flags and carrying banners on which were emblazoned their battle cry in the war on the liquor traffic, several thousand children paraded this afternoon down Broad street, the city's most magnificent thoroughfare, from Spring Garden street to the Academy of Music, in a unique and one of the most telling demonstrations ever inaugurated by the Woman's Christian Temperance union in their crusade for local option for Philadelphia.

Their faces flushed by a strong, chill wind, the boys and girls made a pretty picture and won many a vote to the cause of temperance.

MANY BANNERS WERE CARRIED.

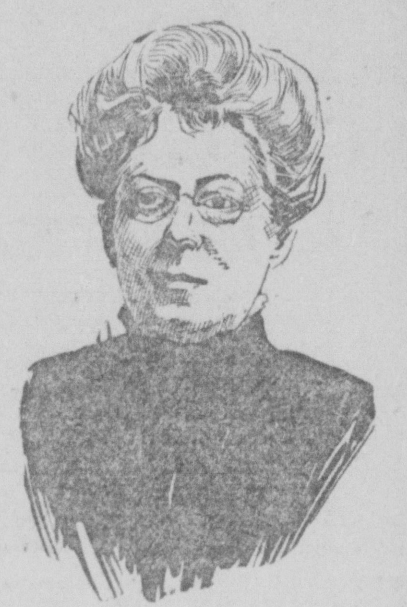
They marched in companies, twelve abreast, and each leader bore aloft a motto such as:

Vote for Your Child.

The Saloon Must Go.

No Compromise for the Keystone State.

The little marchers were members of the Loyal Temperance legion and were augmented by pupils from most of the Sunday schools of the city. There were more than 5,000 children in line, and embraced thirty-two legions. There were two sections to each legion of the parade, the boys and girls being separated with a leader for each company, marching about ten feet in front of the company.



MISS H. FRANCES JONES, WHO ORGANIZED A PARADE OF 5,000 CHILDREN IN THE INTEREST OF TEMPERANCE.

CHEERS FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

A feature of the parade which received an unusual ovation from the spectators who thronged both sides of the street was the kindergarten youngsters. Snugly ensconced in floats, stages and motor cars decorated with banners on which were inscriptions similar to those carried by their marching elders they made a compelling picture. The members of the Philadelphia Women's Temperance union brought up the rear in open carriages. As the parade rounded City Hall plaza it was reviewed by Mayor Reyburn, and at the terminus of the Academy of Music men prominent in the local option movement made addresses, and the marchers were dismissed.

Miss H. Frances Jones organized the parade and was its grand marshal.

A Pianola Concert Wednesday Night.

A pianola concert will be given Wednesday night at the New Casino, 1023 Broadway, under the auspices of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music company. F. A. Briggs will operate the pianola. The soloists will be Miss Callie Carke, soprano and Hans Abert, violinist. Admission will be free.

What Beardsley Has Done

Clean streets.

Better enforcement of sanitary regulations.

Twenty-five cent gas, with the city's right to purchase the plant or regulate the rates.

Saloon license increased from $250 to $500, giving the city $150,000 more revenue annually.

Saloons closed at 1 o'clock. Approved by law abiding saloon keepers.

A system adopted of periodical inventories of all of the city's property, including furniture and equipment.

In two years a deficit left over from 1900 to 1904 was paid and more than 1 million dollars spent for permanent improvements saved from the general revenues.

An effective department of food and milk inspection organized and equipped.

Competition and lower prices in street paving obtained.

Chemical inspection of paving material adopted to protect the property owner.

The water works reconstructed. The water made purer and the supply adequate for years to come and absolutely secure.

For a more humane house of correction and for free fresh air treatment of consumptives, 130 acres of land purchased near Leeds and the ground being cleared for buildings.

Water rates reduced 10 per cent and insurance rates decreased 25 per cent as the result of water works improvements.

A new code of building laws adopted for the betterment of Kansas City.

Proceedings under way for a great traffic way on West Twelfth street without giving the Metropolitan Street Railway company a 10-million dollar franchise extension.

Most of the problems in the new Union station project worked out so as to protest the city's interests. The remaining problems to be worked out along the same line.

Plans being prepared for the reconstruction of the drainage system to protect the running streams.

A tenement commission appointed, resulting in the improvement of conditions in the crowded parts of the city.

The mayor, with the aid of a municipal legislative commission appointed by himself, helped to procure the state legislation giving the city power to regulate the public service corporations through a public utilities commission. Because of this the corporations are now fighting the mayor.

An ordinance prepared reducing the rates of the Missouri and Kansas (the Bell) Telephone company and a settlement made with the company whereby it surrenders to the city's control and regulation, at the same time making valuable financial concessions to the city's revenues.

More than ¼ million dollars expended without a bond issue for new fire stations and fire steamers, hose wagons, trucks and other modern equipment for the better protection of life and property. Another reason insurance rates were reduced.

TO FORCE A COLLEGE PEACE

TEACHERS IN KANSAS STATE INSTITUTIONS "KNOCK" EACH OTHER.

Governor Hoch Will Try to Define the Fields of the State University, the Normal and the College of Agriculture.

TOPEKA, April 4.—Governor Hoch is going to take official notice of the differences between the state university, state normal and agricultural colloges. He will call a conference of the heads of these institutions and their boards of regents. The governor's object is to try and iron out the differences that exist between these places of public learning and attempt to fix bounds within which each institution shall work.

"It strikes me that these schools are growing farther apart all the time," said Governor Hoch. "That should not be true. They should co-operate. That there is a spirit of antagonism among the schools was shown last summer during the green bug scare. Prof. Hunter, at the state university, was sending out parasites to kill the green bugs, and I was trying to help him with my contingent fund. On the other hand, 'experts' at the agricultural college were writing the bitterest kind of letters to me denouncing Prof. Hunter and his work. They placed him in a class with the old time rainmaker and likened his efforts to kill the green bugs to an effort to dip the ocean dry with a spoon.

"Now, I don't like this sort of thing, and do not believe it should be permitted. If these schools had had their work well defined there would have been no such clash. The work of the state university, the agricultural college and the state normal should not overlap. It should be well defined in each instance and each should try to help the other instead of trying to besmirch each other publicly."

THREW COINS TO THEIR GOD.

How Financial Depression Manifested Itself Among the Japanese.

TOKIO, April 4.—A curious commentary on the depression at present prevailing in Japan may be found in an incident just recorded by the vernacular papers.

Just behind the Imperial hotel in Tokio hundreds of laborers are now engaged in the construction of an elevated railroad which, when completed, will undoubtedly rank among the finest things of its kind in the world. For some time past these men have been picking up in the mud of the excavation coins of small value, and there is hardly a man who has not collected a fair share of this currency. The coins are not very ancient, and belonged to the commonplace variety usually reserved for street beggars, to drop into the gigantic collection boxes placed at the entrances to Buddhist temples, and for the alms boxes for charitable institutions.

A few days since the mystery was solved. It appears that the proprietors of tea houses, etc., are wont to repair to this neighborhood at night and there throw these small coins into the excavations—formerly part of the outer moat which protected the city in days gone by—these paltry offerings being dedicated to the God of the earth, with an accompanying prayer for an early revival of business.

TO HONOR DR. LOWRY'S MEMORY

Special Services at the Calvary Baptist Church To-Night.

A special memorial service for the Rev. J. O'B. Lowry, who died in New Jersey last month, will be held at Calvary Baptist church to-night. There will be an address by the Rev. S. M. Neel and members of the congregation. The service will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

THE BIG FLEET'S SHOW BILL

A Programme of the Journey to the Golden Gate Given Out at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Secretary Metcalf made public to-day the details of the greatest naval show the Pacific coast has ever had, being the itinerary of the fleet from Magdalena bay to San Francisco. The fleet will sail from Magdalena bay a week from to-day. The following Tuesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon it will drop anchor at San Diego bay, where it will remain until 6 o'clock Saturday morning, April 18. Each night the "Big Sixteen" will be illuminated, and each day the ships will put on full dress. The details of the entertainments which have been arranged by the local committees are known at the department.

At San Pedro bay, which will be reached in the afternoon of Saturday, April 18, the fleet will divide. The first division will remain at San Pedro while the second will go to Long Beach, third to Santa Monica and the fourth to Rodondo, small places along the coast adjacent to Los Angeles. These visits will occupy the fleet until Saturday, April 22, when it will sail for Santa Barbara, where it will arrive on the same day and remain until the last day of April.

Santa Cruz will be the next show place, reached the first of May for a four days' stay and two days later, May 6, the triumphal entry to San Francisco harbor will be made and preparations begun for the review, which is to take place two days later, with Secretary Metcalf's flag at the masthead of the Yorktown as the receiving ship.

The schedule of dates, it is explained, is subject to change if rendered necessary for unforeseen circumstances. Hours of arrival and departure will depend on weather conditions and absence of fog.

HE MADE A STIR IN RUSSIA

CONSUL FISHER'S RESISTANCE AT HARBIN CAUSES CZAR TO HALT.

The Recognition of the Sovereign Rights of China in Manchuria and a Revising of Russia's Proposed Changes to Be the Outcome.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 4.—The Russian government is considering the issuance of a statement formally recognizing China's sovereignty in Manchuria in so far as is consistent with the purely administrative rights of Russia in the railroad zone.

This is believed to be the best way out of the Harbin difficulty, which has been brought to an issue by the refusal of Fred D. Fisher, the American consul at Harbin, to recognize the Russian administration of this territory. Russian diplomacy is anxious at all hazards to remove the impression that the reorganizing of the administration of Harbin and Chaelar involves further encroachment upon the integrity of Manchuria, and there is reason to believe that Russia would be willing to receive suggestions as to the wording of a statement acceptable to the United States and the other powers interested, which, while clearly defining the status quo under existing treaties, would permit Russia to institute necessary reforms in the administration of the railroad zone. These efforts are a prerogative of Russia under the treaty of 1896.

AN INTERNATIONAL INCIDENT NOW.

From conversations with foreign officers, officials and others interested, it would seem that the railroad administration rather than the foreign office is responsible for the new regulations which have been promulgated at Harbin without full appreciation of the possibilities of international complications. These regulations found general disfavor at Harbin, and the Russian residents were the first to protest against them.

The press comment of to-day raises the protest of Consul Fisher to an international incident of the first rank and several of the newspapers of the capital devote their leading articles to the matter. The Novoe Vremya says it is inconceiveable that the American protest can be directed against Russian privileges already recognized and that it must refer to some new pretentions included in the Russian scheme, the details of which are imperfectly known here.

OUR INTEREST THERE IS SMALL.

The dissatisfaction expressed even by Russians shows conclusively that the new regulations must fail to satisfy the needs of the local population. Inasmuch as American interests are concentrated in the south and not in the north of Manchuria, the paper continues, this American protest really concerns Japan rather than Russia. The way of Russia is clear. She must not complicate her position in the Orient, but she must maintain status quo and avoid any step that would involve a revision of the existing order of things, which are a guarantee of Russia's friendly relations with China and Japan.

The Slavo regrets that the conflict is spreading and fears that Russia and Japan can assert their interests only at the cost of establishing Germany and the United States in the first place of Chinese sympathies.

The Appropriations Trimmed by the House Are Put Back.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The army appropriation bill was completed by the Senate committee on military affairs to-day and will be reported to the Senate on Monday. It will carry about 15 million dollars more than was provided in the bill as it passed the House, making a total of approximately 100 million dollars. An item of about 7 million dollars was included to increase the pay of the army, revenue cutter service and marine corps, but excluding the enlisted men of the navy, in accordance with the provisions of the bill which was passed by the Senate.

For joint maneuvers of the regular army and the organized militia 1 million dollars is provided. An increase of about 5 million dollars has been made in the appropriation in the transportation of troops and the purchase and repair of ships to be used as army transports.

The item for the enlargement of the army hospitals amounting in all to about $265,000, which were struck out of the bill in the House, were restored. The House adopted an amendment which would bar officers of the regular army from taking part in the annual rifle contests and the Senate committee struck this out.

The increased appropriation for the pay of the army is made necessary by the fact that the committee added as an amendment the bill providing for general enlargement of the pay of officers and enlisted men, in all branches of the service except enlisted men of the navy, including the revenue cutter service and the marine corps.

This change necessitated an addition of money sufficient to pay not only the army but the other branches of the service. It is understood that the enlisted men of the navy will be taken care of in an amendment to be offered by Senator Hale.

ENATE SEES A COO STICK

NEW KIND OF WEAPON INVADES THE BIG STICK'S LAND.

e Mighty Warrior of the Crow Indians Tells Washington Statesmen of the Many Scalps He Has Taken in Battle.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Chief Plenty oos of the Crow Indian tribe testified -day before the Senate committee on dian affairs and in response to ques- ons by Senator Dixon denied many of e statements of Mrs. Helen Pierce Grey at many of the Indians were mistreated Major Reynolds, the government agent.

Two interpreters were used in the ex- nination, one repeating the question to e chief and the other giving the answers the committee. Plenty Coos explained e manner of the members of his tribe farming their lands and told of the lations of the tribe to the agent, Major eynolds. He expressed the belief that eynolds was the best agent the Crows ad ever had in that he helped the In- ians to help themselves.

The chief denied that Reynolds inter- ered with members of the tribe in sell- ng their stock and products for the best rice obtainable. In other ways he praised eynolds, but said that there had been ome complaint by those Indians who did ot like to work.

FOUGHT WITH GENERAL CROOK.

Senator Dixon brought out the fact hat Plenty Coos was with General Crook 1876 and fought with him just in ad- ance of the Custer massacre. He was sked why he had been named Plenty oos and explained that the name came rom the Coo stick on which deeds of alor are recorded by the cutting of otches, the driving of the nails or the anging of scalps. He explained that he sed to live in the center of fighting ribes of Indians of other nations and hat he amassed so many trophies in bat- le against hostile bands that his Coo tick would hardly hold them all. There- ore he was called Plenty Coos and made he big chief of all the Crows.

Senator Brandagee wanted to know hether the scalps on his Coo stick were hite or Indian. Plenty Coos said that he sallies of his tribe had been always gainst the Arapahoes, Cheyennes and ioux and never against the white men ho had always been the Crows' friends.

He declared that his scalping now is onfined to alfalfa and oats; that he had ceased to war and now shakes hands with everybody.

The members of the committee took great interest in Plenty Coos and his followers, about a dozen of whom were present. They appeared prosperous; and the chief, through the interpreter, explained that they were the flower of the tribe. In explaining the holdings of his family Plenty Coos excited some curiosity as to the number of wives he has had. He said it was unusual for him to talk about anything of that kind, but that before he came fully under the control of the government he had married ten women at various times and had a number of wives at one time. Now he believed in the white man's life regarding marriages, he said, and had only one wife.

The Indians came to Washington for examination concerning two bills of general interest to the Crow reservation and are only questioned incidentally about the charges that have been made by Mrs. Grey.

TEACHERS SEE LEAVENWORTH.

Kansas City, Kas., Will Entertain Kansas Pedagogues Next Year.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., April 4.—The Northeast Kansas Teachers' association ended its annual convention this afternoon. Most of the time of the visitors to-day was spent in sight seeing at the federal penitentiary, Soldiers' home and the Kansas penitentiary.

A business meeting was held to-day when E. T. Fairchild, state superintendent, spoke on the need of higher education. Prof. W. C. Wilcox of Iowa spoke on the trials and duties of teachers. It was decided to hold the next annual meeting in Kansas City, Kas. These officers were chosen: President, Frank P. Smith, Lawrence; vice president, J. B. Kelsey, Leavenworth; treasurer, J. W. Campbell, Atchison; secretary, Miss Minnie McCall, Topeka.

Had You Thought of This?

Under the Beardsley administration, the water works plant has been practically reconstructed. The water has been made much better than ever before through careful handling at the settling basins. The general betterments have resulted in reducing insurance rates in the business district 25 per cent. The price to consumers has been reduced 10 per cent.

A fine achievement—to cut insurance rates, reduce the cost of water and diminish the danger from typhoid fever.

You are asking for more of the same sort when you vote for Beardsley.

A PARDON ON STRANGE GROUNDS.

Clemency Sought for a Lansing Convict Because He Escaped and Sinned Again.

GUTHRIE, OK., April 4.—Governor Haskell has been asked to pardon John Spray, alias John Hill, for an unusual reason. In 1892 Spray was sentenced at Oklahoma City to eight years in the penitentiary for statutory assault. He was taken to Lansing, where he escaped in 1894. In that year a man who gave the name of John Hill was convicted for forgery in Neosho county, Kansas, and sentenced to seven years for that offense and to five years for passing the forged check. The latter sentence was to begin when the other expired.

At the penitentiary Hill was recognized as Spray and admitted his identity. The Society for the Friendless at Topeka became interested in Spray's case because of his impaired health. Governor Hoch remitted the five-year sentence in 1906 to enable the board of pardons to grant a parole. The board, knowing that Spray was a prisoner in both Oklahoma and Kansas, would not act until the governor of Oklahoma should pardon Spray. Governor Frantz said that Oklahoma had no record of such a prisoner as Hill and that the imprisonment of Spray was not being paid for by Oklahoma. He refused to grant the pardon.

DIAMONDS TO BE NO CHEAPER.

Letters to Jewelers Here Say the Rumor of a Reduction Is Baseless.

The jewelers' board of trade, which comprises most of the firms in the diamond business, is sending out letters to the trade stating that there is to be no reduction in the price of diamonds. It was believed that perhaps the ending of the contracts of the large diamond mining companies recently would reduce the price of diamonds.

HERE FOR HIGH SCHOOL IDEAS.

An Inspection Trip by S. L. Heeter of St. Paul, Minn.

S. L. Heeter, superintendent of public schools of St. Paul, Minn., inspected the public school system here yesterday The state of Minnesota has appropriated 1 million dollars for building four high schools in St. Paul, all of which are to have manual training features. One school is to be practically a trade school. In his inspection yesterday Mr. Heeter gave particular attention to the Manual Training and the new Westport High schools. Some of the features of those buildings probably will be embodied in the plans of the St. Paul high schools.

Mr. Heeter was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Goodenow of 3712 Main street, who formerly lived in St. Paul.

MISSOURI CROPS START WELL

The Wheat Condition Is 91, Oats Are Planted, Peaches Were Not Killed.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 4.—The green bug had not appeared in the wheat in Missouri up to the first of April, according to the monthly crop report issued by George B. Ellis, secretary of the state board of agriculture. Only a few correspondents reported damage to wheat from insects of any kind, but the lack of moisture has been felt in some parts. The top growth is not rank, but the root is good. The crop as a whole promises well. The average condition for the entire state is 91, which is three points lower than the high average of one year ago. The acreage sown last fall was 2,110,000, which is 8 per cent below that sown the previous year. The soil is in good condition for plowing and 32 per cent of entire corn land is plowed. Farmers will likely be careful about early planting, as last year a bad stand resulted.

Practically the entire oat crop is sown and in good condition and with a little more moisture will be started satisfactorily. Meadows and pastures are doing well and promise better than last year.

The fruit was not damaged up to March 27. Since then there has been frost and slight freezing almost every morning in various parts of the state. No doubt some damage has been done, but too late for this report. Five per cent of peach buds at experiment station here were killed April 3 with the thermometer at 24½ degrees above zero. Peach crop not materially damaged, as 5 per cent of buds will make good crop.

The crop season this year is opening up very much like that of last year. March was very favorable for farm operations. Stock has gone through the winter in unusually good condition, as there was an abundance of winter feed. Weather has been dry, but local rains the last few days have helped in some localities.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS MEET.

Kansas City Woman Attend the Conference at Mexico, Mo.

MEXICO, Mo., April 4.—The local and executive boards of the King's Daughters have closed a three days' joint session in this city.

The sessions were held at the King's Daughters' home for aged women at this place. The work of the local board for the past year was reviewed and discussed, and much work for the coming year was planned. Those present from a distance were: Mrs. Callaway, state secretary; Mrs. St. Elmo Sanders and Mrs. H. E. McKinney, Kansas City; Misses Jennie M. Greenwood, Marion Brokaw, Carrie C. Davis and Mrs. C. B. Piper, St. Louis; Miss Christene Schultz, St. Joseph, Mo., and Mrs. F. E. Nidermeyer, Columbia, Mo.

The local board has received assurances from the executive board that the various chapters represented by its members would materially assist the home for aged women here.

GUSTAVE KAMMERLEE OF "THE OLD HOMESTEAD" HAS A LIFE JOB.

Denman Thompson Told Him He Would Never Want for a Position if the Play Was a Success—William Hawtry Talks About Villainy.

Twenty-three years ago when Denman Thompson was organizing "The Old Homestead" company, Gustave Kammerlee, then an opera singer, applied for a position.

"Well," Mr. Thompson said, "I don't know whether this show is going to be a success, but I'll tell you what I'll do. I like your work and I'll sign you for a ten-weeks' contract. Then, if the show is a success—well, you'll have a life job, that's all."

The play is now twenty-three years old and Gustave Kammerlee is still with it. He is at the Grand this week.

"It appears as if I'm going to fulfill that contract," he said as he waited for his cue last night. "I knew after the first week with the company that the play would be a success. Why? Well, we did a $25,000 business that week, that's all."

Mr. Kammerlee pondered a moment.

"I've worked in just 8,280 performances of this piece. That's a good many, isn't it? And in all that time I've been treated fine. It isn't as hard work as I used to do, either. Before I accepted this part I was an opera singer. I created several of the Gilbert and Sullivan bass characters and I worked with such persons as Caroline Richings and Clara Louise Kellogg. They're forgotten now, but in my youth they were famous."

* * *

William Hawtry, at the Orpheum, said he was tired of being interviewed. Moreover, he flatly refused to talk about himself. But he was perfectly willing to gossip a little. "Show the visitor in," he said.

Mr. Hawtry rubbed cold cream on his face and asked the visitor to bring a chair closer. Then in the intervals between rubbings he gossiped. In a few minutes all of his make-up as a "heavy" was off and he was English William Hawtry. His eyes twinkled above the edge of the big Turkish towel.

"You don't look at all like a villain now," the visitor hazarded.

"The philosophy of this business of being a heavy is that the more villainous you are the more money you're worth," was the answer. "I don't care what I play so long as it gives me a chance to act and pays. This skit is a melodrama—so far as I know, the only melodrama in vaudeville. The villain is the central figure and all depends on him."

The star's dressing room at the Willis Wood theater was the scene of several receptions the first part of the week, when Hortense Nielsen of Kansas City was playing at the theater in Ibsen's "A Doll's House." Miss Nielsen was reared in Kansas City, and between every act friends came to see and talk to her.

"They have kept me pretty busy, but I'm mighty glad to talk to all of them," she said Monday night. "It reminds me of old times, when I didn't have to think of lines and stage positions and all that sort of thing. Remember how we used to play 'Run, sheep, run?'" she asked of an old palymate.

"I certainly do," was the reply.

Miss Nielsen smiled. "Those were certainly good times," she said.

* * *

"Would I rather be in opera than in vaudeville?" said Pauline Hall, in answer to a question after her act at the Orpheum theater the other night. "Sh-h-h! I'll let you guess. I'm going to stay in vaudeville. Puzzle: Which do I like the better?"

Miss Hall made her fame in "Erminie" and other light operas.

* * *

She stood in her dressing room at the Grand theater the other night, a rather thin, elderly, little woman.

"This place isn't like the town I used to know," she said. "When I used to come here there was only one street and we had to build our own stages."

The woman was Mrs. Maggie Breyer, the one remaining member of one of the famous old repertoire companies that toured this country fifty years ago. The company was called the "Breyer Comedy company" and played mostly Shakespearean attractions. It was made up of one family, all of whom had come from the county of Avon, in England. Mrs. Breyer plays Aunt Matilda in "The Old Homestead."

"I don't know where it was that we played here, all I can remember is that it was in the year of 1867," Mrs. Breyer said.

"I guess there's nothing too hard for that stage manager to give a fellow to learn," Reginald Barker of the Barker Stock company said yesterday. "Not content with giving us difficult parts to study Mr. Thompson has required two of us to learn the Morse telegraphic code just to use in 'Secret Service,' the play this week. But I suppose we can forget it afterward."

In the third act of "Secret Service" the scene is a telegraph office of the Confederate army. Wallace Worsley and Reginald Barker both send messages and receive them. The stage manager employed a girl telegraph operator and obtained several instruments from the Postal Telegraph office. The girl gave instructions to the two actors and at every performance sits outside the wings and sends the messages that are received on the stage.

"No monkey business about this," the stage manager told the players. "We've got to get this right. Too many persons in theater audiences know the Morse code."

AN OKLAHOMAN'S OLD SILVER.

The Knee Buckles of Kentucky's First Governor Made a Ladle.

GUTHRIE, OK., March 27.—J. W. Hamilton of Woodward, assistant sergeant-at-arms of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature, owns a silver ladle made from the silver knee buckles of the first governor of Kentucky, Governor Garrod, Hamilton's great-grandfather. The ladle bears the initials, "A. E. W.," those of Hamilton's great-grandmother, Elizabeth Withers. The ladle descends to the youngest daughter of each succeeding family. It has been in constant use more than 100 years.

THE SLANDER CAMPAIGN.

Significance of the Spirit Shown in the Metropolitan Canvass.

To The Star: As a man well advanced beyond middle life, and as a careful and studious observer of our national history, and of events in Kansas City throughout its creative period, I have been truly amazed to witness the real savagery which underlies the campaign against the proper regulation of public service corporations in this municipality.

Rancor without reason is the keynote of the journals and the orators that would deny to the people the just right of an accounting from the utilities that exist and operate by the consent of the public. Rancor without reason is a phenomenon that is always apparent where reason is powerless to justify and reinforce the demands of unfair advantage. Rancor without reason, as it has been constantly and intemperately displayed in the present campaign in behalf of the Metropolitan Street Railway company and interests in sympathy with that corporation, is now and always a plain confession of weakness and of the absence of a meritorious cause.

The coarse abuse of The Star and of its proprietor is proclamation as bold as could be made of the complete dearth of argument to support the crusade made against the principles of that paper, not now only, but in the past, and always without diminishing its power as an instrument of progress and as a consistent champion of popular rights.

To myself and to a multitude of other citizens who see incorporated on every hand concrete evidences of the force of The Star as a lever for uplifting Kansas City, it is shocking and revolting to note the indecent style of warfare that is now going forward against that paper. That these vulgar and untruthful attacks upon The Star are exciting popular resentment is not in the least surprising. That is the certain fruit of rancor without reason. Unwarranted abuse never fails to insult the American spirit of fair play. The people are too intelligent and too clean in their purposes to sanction it. In national politics they placed their quietus upon it in the Blaine-Cleveland campaign of 1884. They will not uphold it now. As one of many thousands who regard with disgust the daily output of vilification against The Star, I desire to make this personal remonstrance against the outrageous misrepresentation heaped upon an institution whose services to Kansas City have been are are beyond computation.

Master Clothes Builders

Ever since William Morris gave his great impetus to the revival of the Arts and Crafts, there has been a blind rush for all things "hand-made." In his zeal to conform with the artistic tendencies of the time the ambitious clothing manufacturer has overreached himself. He has placed on the market a very evidently machine-made product, has labeled it hand-made and posed as a patron of the Arts. For a time the trusting public was misled. The Master Clothes Builders undertook the task of disillusionment. To-day every man knows that "hand-made clothes" are a commercial impossibility. Every man knows that all fine clothes are made in part by machine and in part by hand.

If you don't know THE CLOTHES THAT ABT BUILDS you have yet to see the finest, moderately priced clothes the market affords.

MME. SEMBRICH'S CONCERT

THE GREAT SOPRANO HEARD IN A DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME LAST NIGHT.

There Is No Sign of Deterioration in Her Voice Nor Her Art—The Rise of Mr. Van Hoose, Tenor—A Very Interesting Young Pianist.

It was a dreary, drizzly night, but neither the inclemency of the weather nor the absorbing issues of the almost immediate election penetrated the Auditorium last night when Mme. Sembrich and her associates, Mr. Ellison Van Hoose, tenor, and Mr. Michael Zadora, pianist, entertained a large audience, which responded not only enthusiastically, but merrily, for there was the element of the brightest cheer on both sides of the footlights. It was an unusual occasion, as concerts go, for every number was conspicuously well sung or played, and the average excellence of the programme was quite extraordinary. As a rule a concert company has a weak spot. It is not unusual, in fact, that some contributor must be patiently tolerated for the sake of those who really represent the price of admission.

The programme was well designed to meet popular favor as well as to please exacting musical taste. And as this concert was the twenty-second of Mme. Sembrich's tour, everything was given with confidence and finish. Mme. Sembrich was in excellent form. Her voice shows no signs of deterioration. She is still entitled to the distinction she has won as an artist of the highest order. Without being impertinent as to Mme. Sembrich's age, it may be said that she has reached the time of life when singers, more especially sopranos, show the evidence of years. But Mme. Sembrich's voice, although never ranking among the most beautiful, retains all of its elasticity and freshness, and personally she is as vivacious and ingratiating as ever. Nor is this a surprise. For this singer has a method that is calculated to preserve vocal equipment to the limit. She may not be able to duplicate Mme. Patti's wonderful record of vocal endurance, but there it at present no sign of failing. She is a very great artist.

Mme. Sembrich's numbers included the florid and beautifully ornamented "Ah! fores e lui," from Verdi's "La Travaita," a group of German and English songs, a waltz song by Strauss and the beautiful duet from "La Boheme," sung with Mr. Van Hoose. She was recalled many, many times and gave several encores, the last of which was sung to her own accompaniment at the close of the programme, the audience remaining seated and declining to make preparations for leaving.

Mr. Van Hoose was a surprise to those who had heard him in other years in oratorio and with the Melba Concert company. There was a time when he was not a particularly satisfactory singer, and Kansas City heard him once in that time. It was said that Van Hoose, of whom great expectations had been based, was "going back." But for the last two years he has been singing with Mme. Sembrich a good deal of the time, and whether hard study or association with this great artist is to have the credit, he has come forward with a sure step and he now stands foremost among American tenors. At least, if he has a superior in this class that superior cannot be called to mind. Mr. Van Hoose's voice has gained in power, in beauty and in flexibility, and he uses it with fine modulation. He has a quality seemingly especially well suited to the temperamental music of the later Italian composers, although his best number last night was the romance from "The Huguenots." His other numbers were a Rubenstein song, an Eighteenth century song by Reinhardt, simple, but very effective; Ronold's "Love, I Have Won Thee," and Hammond's "Cupid's Wings."

The pianist did much to put the audience in the fine mood that characterized the occasion. Mr. Zadora is a Polish-American, only twenty-four years of age. He is tall, slender and altogether the limberest pianist seen in Kansas City. His entrances and exits are almost lackadaisical. His poses are strongly accentuated and his bows are sweeping. At the piano he often gets his nose very near to the keys, this attitude, together with his delicate manipulation of the keys, giving the appearance of a fastidious young man hunting dust and flecking it off the ivorys. But it soon dawns on you that this manner is probably not affectation, for it is accompanied by marked good nature, a boyish appeal to the audience, and, what is more to the point, he makes good with his music. He plays most exquisitely, both as to technique and interpretation. He has power, too, this seemingly limp young man. But his forte is the soft, delicate music that wants only the lightest, but the truest, touch. His numbers were well chosen, and he brought out their values most skillfully. So, it happens that Mme. Sembrich's pianist is something more than a proper accompanist. He is a big factor in her concerts.

AUSTIN LATCHAW.

FROM BROWN TO OLIVE GREEN.

Women's Fashions Will Favor Wine Color and Stripes Will Be Popular.

Women's dress goods for fall are to go back from smooth goods to cheviots, salesmen say. To vary the patterns of up and down stripes there is a tendency toward diagonals and chevrons. Dark wine colors and olive green are to be the favorite shades. Broadcloth is to have an inning, too.

A HINT OF SECRET UNIONS

GOMPERS SAYS LABOR WILL NEVER GIVE UP ITS ORGANIZATION.

If Laboring Men Are Forbidden the Right to Unite for Protection They Will Form Lawless, Oath-Bound Societies, Says the Leader.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Declaring that labor would not wait much longer for the legislation it demands, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced to-day to Congress that a desperate programme would be immediately adopted by the unions if their right to perform their former functions is not guaranteed to them by law. If it comes to a question of choosing between law and industry, said Mr. Gompers, industry will be the survivor, and to make good that boast the unions will stop at nothing.

Secret unions and far-reaching oath-bound organizations will be resorted to by the workingmen of the country, said the president of the American Federation. And he gave solemn warning that the secret organizations contemplated by himself and his followers would prove less conservative, less careful and vastly more dangerous than any of the unions that have existed openly.

CAME AS AN ULTIMATUM.

Mr. Gompers made his announcement in the form of an ultimatum which he delivered in an address before a subcommittee of the House committee on judiciary at a hearing of the Hepburn amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law. Representative Charles E. Littlefield, whose recent resignation from the House has been attributed by Gompers to his fear of labor opposition in his Maine district, presided as chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. Gomper's announcement of his ultimatum came out almost as if by inadvertence on his part. At the hearing were representatives of various labor organizations, the National Civic Federation and of industrial organizations opposed to the union movement. One word from James A. Emery, secretary of the Citizens' Industrial association, brought forth the torrent-like utterance of Mr. Gompers.

"Some people have expressed the hope," he said, "that the recent decisions of the Supreme court construing the anti-trust law to apply to labor unions and farmers' associations would result in taxes on the unions so onerous that they would become discouraged and in the end would be broken into pieces."

ONE WORD AROUSED HIM.

"Amen," said Mr. Emery.

Mr. Gompers turned on him fiercely. He said:

"You hope that the unions will be driven out of business. But I tell you now that they will never go out of business. We ask for a law permitting us to remain actively and openly in the exercise of our reasonable rights, but, law or no law, we are going to remain. If Congress does not pass laws legalizing unions, granting explicitly the right to strike and, in general, a right to be active through organization in our own interests, there will spring up in this country, as our successors, secret organizations bound by oath to the service of the cause of labor and to the fight we have already waged.

"Neither ukase nor injunction can drive us from this position. What we now enjoy, or what we enjoyed before the recent supreme court decisions, we enjoyed only after years of struggle. The workingman has undergore imprisonment and gibbeting for his loyalty to his laboring brothers. And whatever happens that cause will win.

THE DANGER OF SECRET ORGANIZATIONS.

"Labor unions, when conducted in the open, when they have consent of law, are bound to be more careful, more conservative than any organization bound by oath to eternal secrecy. And that fact sounds the warning for the ears of Congress. We want our legislation.

"The organized labor of this country has been and is the greatest conservator of public peace, and as such we wish to remain. There have been recent disturbances, demonstrations of a significant character. But what laboring man has taken part in them? The laboring man is for peace."

MORASCH JURY DISAGREED

THE BALLOTING YESTERDAY WAS 7 TO 5 FOR CONVICTION FOR MURDER.

The Prisoner Heard the Result Without Emotion—Bail Was Refused and She Was Returned to Jail—A Second Trial, Probably in June.

The trial of Mrs. Sarah Morasch, charged with the murder of Ruth Miller, resulted in a disagreement. After being out since 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in an attempt to arrive at a verdict, the jury was called into the district courtroom in Kansas City, Kas., at 8 o'clock last night by Judge Moore.

"Gentlemen, have you agreed on a verdict?" Judge Moore asked.

"We have not," Charles V. Sass, the foreman, answered.

On inquiry from Judge Moore, all the jurors answered that there was no hope for an agreement. They were then discharged. The jury stood all day yesterday seven for conviction and five for acquittal. The first ballot Friday was eight for conviction and four for acquittal. Dozens of ballots were taken. Only one of the jurors would talk.

ONE JUROR'S OPINION.

"I believe Mrs. Morasch guilty and I shall stick to it," E. C. Hartman, 1943 North Third street, said.

Mrs. Morasch sat in the courtroom with her 7-year-old daughter, Hattie, on her lap when the jury entered the room. She did not appear excited and did not look toward the jurors. When the foreman answered that there was no hope of agreement there was no change of expression on her face. She arose quietly and was led to the county jail to await a second trial. Judge Moore refused last night to grant bail. He said the second trial probably will be held at the June term of court.

Mrs. Morasch was accused of the murder of 4-year-old Ruth Miller, a niece by marriage. The afternoon of February 12, this year, Ella Van Meter, 14 years old, received by mail a boxx of candy at the home of her stepfather, Charles Miller, 634 Cheyenne avenue, Armourdale. Ruth, a half-sister, ate more than the other children and died half an hour later from strychnine poisoning. A week later Mrs. Sarah Morasch was arrested in Harrisonville, Mo. She left Armourdale the day after Ruth Miller died and walked the entire distance to Harrisonville.

HANDWRITING TESTIMONY.

The prosecutor relied mostly on the testimony of handwriting experts for conviction. In the trial Ella Van Meter testified she wrote the four middle lines of the address on the box of candy she received. She explained she wrote the address for the defendant December 2, while Mrs. Morasch was visiting at the Miller home, to help in the location of the house if the number were forgotten. By means of handwriting admitted to be that of Mrs. Morasch, Joseph Taggart, the prosecutor, attempted to prove to the jury that the defendant wrote the words "Ella Miller" and "From S. S. Girls," the words on the package Ella said she did not write.

The defense introduced witnesses in an attempt to prove the good character of Mrs. Morasch. The defendant was put on the stand and made a general denial of everything.

Dividends for All Stockholders.

The Metropolitan has two kinds of stockholders—the persons with the engraved certificates and the people of Kansas City.

The stockholders of the first class have bought their stock or have secured it as a rakeoff through some deal. Their dividends are paid quarterly in cash.

The stockholders of the second class have acquired their interest in the business by contributing one of its most important assets, the use of the city streets. Without this the company's rails and trolley poles would be so much junk, its earning capacity zero. These stockholders, then, have contributed an asset quite as important as cash and with a high cash value. They are entitled to dividends just as much as the stockholders of the firrst class.

How large are these dividends and how should they be paid?

An effective Utilities commission would answer the first question by examining the books of the company and by learning the amount of the actual investment and the earnings that would pay a reasonable return on it.

With the information thus obtained the council would answer the second question by providing for a reduction in fares after allowing for proper returns on the investment and liberal wages to employees.

The money saved by reduced fares would be the dividends paid to the second class of Metropolitan stockholders—the people of Kansas City.

A 4-cent fare last year would have returned to them dividends amounting to $950,000; a 3½-cent fare, $1,425,000; a 3-cent fare, $1,900,000. The amount of the dividends would depend on what the commission found the company had earned.

This is the Beardsley plan—that all the stockholders should get dividends and not merely one class. That is why the Metropolitan is fighting him.

CORNER HEARD A LAST AMEN

POLITICIANS SAID FAREWELL TO THE FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL.

Senator Platt, Feeble and Tottering, Was Wheeled to the Place Where He Was a Power for So Many Years.

New York, April 4.—At midnight to-night the Fifth Avenue hotel, one of the most famous hostelries of the city, ended its existence of half a century, but not until the old timers had once more sat upon the plush covered seat in the "Amen corner" and once more breathed an acquiescent "amen" to the words of the "easy boss" whose political plans, there promulgated, gave the spot world renown.

In the old days Tom Platt was secretive. To-night he confessed that the "Amen corner" had "made and unmade Presidents." Chauncey Depew spoke with caution when a part of the inner circle in days gone by. To-night he fairly boasted that he had known governors "who thought they did things from the executive chamber, but they were done from the 'Amen corner.'"

IT WAS A SAD FAREWELL.

It was a jolly, half sorrowful party that gathered to bid the old place good-by.

After forty-nine years of life as a hotel, during half of which time it served as the headquarters of the Republican party of the state, the house is to be torn down to make way for a monster office building.

Brought to the entrance in a wheel chair, and further assisted by a friend on either side, Senator Platt tottered to the "Amen corner" and again heard the shouts of "Platt, Platt, Platt." The aged senator was visibly affected, but managed to speak for some moments to the crowd that surged about him and was kept from pressing too closely upon the sacred spot only by a cordon of police.

Senator Platt, in a voice that was uncertain at times (though his eyes flashed as keenly as ever) said:

ITS MANY GUESTS OF NOTE.

"Any effort, the very slightest, to express what I feel at the thought of the removal of the historic landmark which was my home for all of thirty years would compel me to take my seat in silence, so I must avoid that subject and assume a cheerfulness which I have not got. This noble edifice, in its day one of the most imposing in our city, even now in its majestic simplicity is good to look at. The Fifth Avenue hotel has entertained in its day a larger number of the great of the earth whose plans for social and commercial enterprises and improvements were here matured and executed than has any other house in America, but perhaps its chief fame will remain in its long association with the Republican party. It is no idle boast to say that it was the judgment which collected in the 'Amen corner' and there threshed out the issues of the day which for a period of many years directed the destinies of the state of New York, wrote its statutes and decreed all its important acts of government.

"I shall not take this time to consider whether the changes that have latterly occurred are reforms or otherwise. At all events nobody can take away from the Fifth Avenue hotel the fame that it for years enjoyed and as the place where from every city and county in the state there came and met and conferred the best and strongest minds in the Republican party, and the place from which, when their combined judgment had been finally reached, there went the sentiment in accordance with which popular judgment was molded and put into effect.

"That sentiment born, as I say, of the large experience and considerable judgment of the popular leaders who composed the Republican organization and who habitually assembled here and from here dispersed throughout the state with a common purpose and a harmonious understanding, has made and unmade Presidents and governors, has determined party platforms and policies both in the state and the nation, and has exercised a controlling influence upon affairs for a period of time within which the Republican party achieved its greatest successes and the people of the state their largest measure of prosperity. That is a glory which will be associated with this spot for many years to come."

THERE WERE CALLS FOR DEPEW.

Then there were cries for "Chauncey," and Senator Depew stepped upon the historic bench.

"I have sat on this bench, on and off, for forty years. I have heard many great questions discussed as to what was the capital, and the capital has always been found in this corner. I know governors who believed they did things from the executive chamber, but they were done from the 'Amen Corner.' I know speakers who were looked up for the makeup of committees from the lower house of the legislature. They said they would consult with the members of their families in the rural regions, and I have found that the families they consulted were Senator Platt in the 'Amen Corner.'

"Historic memories like this should be preserved. I saw Blaine, Conkling, Grant and Arthur sit here. I have seen this corner filled with men in uniforms, but at other times by men who wanted to be decorated with uniforms. I do not believe there will ever be a spot in the state or country where so much of influence and power will go out to make for history as the 'Amen Corner.'"

HAD A TALK WITH HADLEY.

Walter S Dickey and Fred Dickey Are at Jefferson City.

Jefferson City, April 4.—Walter S. Dickey, chairman of the state Republican committee, and his brother, Fred Dickey, are here to-night. A conference with Herbert S. Hadley, attorney general, and other Republican state officials was held at Mr. Hadley's residence, but no one present would disclose the nature of the meeting.

FRANK BURROW ITS CASHIER.

National Bank of the Republic Elects the Kansas Bank Examiner.

Frank H. Burrow, national bank examiner for Kansas, has been elected cashier of the National Bank of the Republic. He will take up his duties to-morrow. Mr. Burrow is from Smith Center, Kas. where he was vice president of the First National bank, with which he was connected for nine years, previous to his resignation to become bank examiner. Mr. Burrow is a son of J. R. Burrow, former secretary of state of Kansas.

The officers of the bank now include William Huttig, president; J. H. Berkshire, Willis Wood, Joseph Lorie, vice presidents; G. B. Gray, active vice president; Frank H. Burrow, cashier; H. E. Huttig and E. H. Gregg, assistant cashiers.

THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS CITY

The larger cities in the country are being emancipated from domination by the public utility corporations.

This truthful observation by Judson Harmon of Cincinnati on the occasion of his recent visit to Kansas City, should lend to the contest which the people of this municipality are making for their rights, against the public service corporations that demand and exercise special privileges, emphatic and particular vitality. It ought to appeal directly to the pride of the Kansas City people, and to the loyalty that they owe to their town.

My movement affecting in a salutary way the life or the destiny of any important municipality in America, should show assertive force here. Kansas City is not, in any sense, obscure or obsolescent. For more than a generation its place on the map has been bold and conspicuous. It is no waystation to be passed by without observation. Its name stands out clear and high on the roster of American cities. Its population is metropolitan in its magnitude and is probably greater than that of any other town of its age in the Union.

"Kansas City," as a visitor to the town pertinently remarked, not long since, "is the biggest town of its size in the country." Judge by all of the criterions which bring it into comparison with the chief municipalities of the land, it is a great town. It belongs distinctly to the class of which Judson Harmon spoke. It should, by every law of analogy, be quickened and permeated by the progressive impulses which are enabling what Mr. Harmon calls the larger cities to achieve their independence and to rid themselves of the despotic influences of corporative politics and government by privileged interests.

What has been, during all of its remarkable and romantic career, the chief glory of Kansas City has been the high character of its people—the admirable fiber of its population. It is intensely and exceptionally American. In this admirable respect it is surpassed by no other city in America. The genius of freedom and liberty dwells in its air. It is as far from serfdom as it is from stagnation or decay. Thus, by its record, by its temperament and by its hopes for the future, it stands charged with the high responsibility of aligning itself, by a clear profession of faith, with the great cities referred to by Judson Harmon as being engaged in the splendid task of emancipation from the hardships and the indignities of government in behalf of special interests as against the rights, the convenience and the comfort of the people who are charged with the maintenance of municipalities and who own the grants which corporations habitually use as agents and instruments of public imposition.

A Soldier Injured in a Wreck.

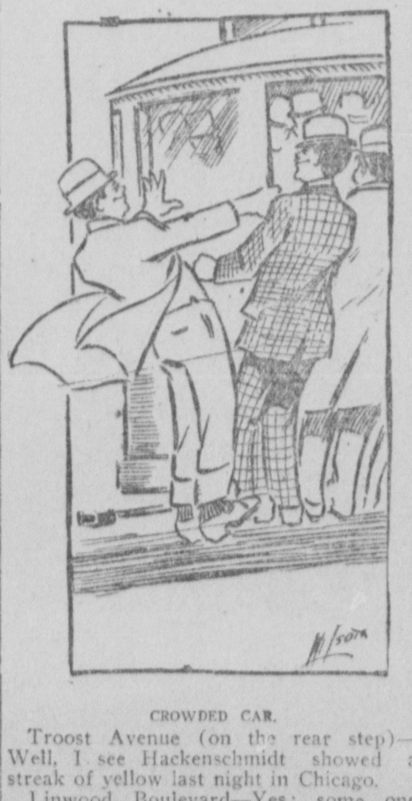
Leavenworth, Kas., April 4.—An electric car on the city line leading to the fort was wrecked to-night near a trestle by a drip pan dropping. The car was turned over and Sergeant Crane, Thirteenth infantry, suffered a broken leg. The car was loaded with soldiers, but only one was injured.



CROWDED CAR.

Troost Avenue (on the rear step)—Well, I see Hackenschmidt showed a streak of yellow last night in Chicago.

Linwood Boulevard—Yes; some one started the report that Gotch had been training on Kansas City street cars. That was enough for "Hack." He knew that Kansas City street car men had to have more rushing and pushing tactics than in any other city in the country. It'd scare anyone to go against that game.

A Proverb.

There is an old German proverb: "A community is like a vat of beer—the scum on top and the dregs at the bottom, with the good brew between."

"The scum on top" is the fellows that always want to get something for which they give no honest return, the Special Privilege man.

"The dregs at the bottom" are the "remnants" that have no interest in their fellow men.

"The good brew between" is that mass of good citizens who only want a square deal and have regard for the rights of others.

ALL OTHERS ARE SPURIOUS.

Nebraska Populists Say They Are the Only Real Article.

Omaha, April 4.—The Nebraska delegation which bolted the Populist national convention in St. Louis issued a statement to the press, on arrival home today, in explanation of its action. Its members declare that the old time Populists were for the most part absent from the convention and that the management of the gathering showed a total disregard for parliamentary usage and the rights of the accredited delegates.

The statement charges that when the national committee meeting was held the committeemen from "those states in which Populism had become a serious threat to corporation control" were not notified and the apportionment of delegates was made so as to give control of the convention to the delegates from states, many of which never cast a Populist vote.

Says the statement:

> We believe that the whole thing was financed (and they seemed to have plenty of money) by the men or man who has organized what is known as the Independent league, hoping thereby to effect the downfall of both Bryan and Watson.

Incidents are cited of what are termed "comic opera proceedings" and the delegates say that when they realized the "fraudulent character" of the meeting they withdrew. The statement closes with the assertion that Nebraska has the only legally constituted People's party in the United States and the announcement that when a convention properly called and composed of legally selected delegates is held they are ready to take part.

EVELYN THAW TO QUIT AMERICA.

Munich, Germany, to Be the Ex-Actress's Home in the Future.

New York, April 4.—Mrs. Florence Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will leave the United States next Saturday and has planned to make her home abroad for a number of years.

This announcement was made to-day by her attorney, Daniel O'Reilly. Young Mrs. Thaw will remain in seclusion in her present hiding place until she returns to the city Wednesday next, when her suit for the annulment of her marriage to Harry Kendall Thaw will be settled. Thaw is now in the New York state hospital for the criminal insane in Matteawan, N. Y., for the murder of Stanford White. She will remain in New York, shopping and winding up her affairs, until Saturday, when she will sail for Europe. She has arranged to make her home for the present in Munich.

"Mrs. Thaw is glad to be able to leave New York and will stay away as long as she possibly can," said Mr. O'Reilly. "The only thing that remains to be settled is her suit for the annulment of her marriage to Harry Thaw. That will be out of the way on Wednesday."

Mrs. Thaw's negro maid went to the Prince George hotel to-day and packed up her things, which will be sent to storage. There is no suit contemplated against the Prince George because of the treatment Mrs. Thaw received there, but Mr. O'Reilly says the suit for $50,000 damages for libel against James B. Regan, manager of the Hotel Knickerbocker, will be pressed.

ALDERMAN GREEN'S RECORD.

A Statement by the Eighth Warders Shows That He Did Good Work.

W. T. Green, candidate in the Eighth ward for re-election to the city council, has issued a circular letter setting forth the important points in his record of two years in the lower house. He says:

> I was and am with Beardsley for the Twelfth street traffic way to the West bottoms, which will obtain a proper grade for vehicles and traffic, as well as for street car travel; and I served on the council committee that supported the Beardsley plan.
>
> I voted for the increase of dramshop license, thus obtaining $160,000 additional revenue per year to the city. The new city hospital is being finished by this added revenue, and the taxpayers have been saved voting $200,000 additional bonds by this extra license money.
>
> I have always voted to obtain a good public utilities commission, so that the people and the city can have and hold their rights in the regulation of all public utility corporations.
>
> I have introduced the ordinance providing for the establishment of a free public bath house and I have consistently supported all ordinances for the improvement of the Eighth ward.
>
> I am in favor of a new Union depot. I am in favor of protecting the city in regard to switching rates and land damages, and stand opposed to any switch merging monopoly.

A WARNING TO ELECTION CROOKS

The State Has Offered $200 in Addition to The Star's Rewards.

It will be exceedingly dangerous to cast a fraudulent vote or induce anyone else to vote fraudulently next Tuesday. The penitentiary has furnished homes for a dozen election crooks in the last four years and has room for more.

The Star has offered two rewards and to both of them Governor Joseph W. Folk has added $200 on the part of the state of Missouri.

For information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person casting a fraudulent vote The Star will pay $100 and the state of Missouri $200, $300 in all.

For information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person inducing or aiding and abetting another in casting a fraudulent vote The Star will pay $200 and the state of Missouri $200, $400 in all.

CYCLOPEDIA OF APPLIED ELECTRICITY

Revised and Enlarged Edition—Increased to 6 Volumes.
This is a new edition just off the press. Every page has been carefully edited, revised and brought up to date.

Six Volumes, 3,000 pages, page size 7x10 inches, 2,000 illustrations; tables, formulas, diagrams, etc. Bound in half red morocco. Every section followed by practical test questions.

The new edition is now ready; thoroughly revised and absolutely up to date, the Cyclopedia is the connecting link between the man who knows and the man who wants to know. It puts into the hand of the reader the power and knowledge of the practical electrician. It will post the electrical worker on all the latest developments of his trade, and it will teach the student the principles of electricity and its newest applications. It will tell any man anything he wants to know about electricity, and tell it so simply, so clearly, so concisely that he cannot help but understand.

THE BLUES WERE BRILLIANT

CANTILLON'S TEAM TOOK THE COUNT IN YESTERDAY'S FRAY, 7 TO 5.

The Cross Athletes Stung the Ball and Fielded Like the Sensational Kids—Case Had Trouble With the April Zephyrs.

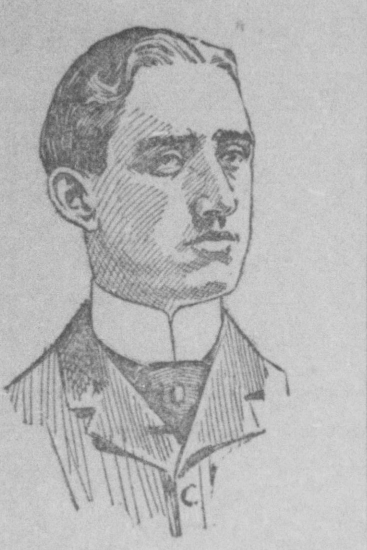
If Mr. P. Connor had tutrned loose the fair and sunshiny brand of weather yesterday that he tipped off to the baseball patrons this tale might have been set to different music. But Mr. P. C. changed his form chart at the last minute and dispatched a shower of rain that routed the wind storm and the dust malestrom and also the national pastimers. If Mr. Connor had kept the rain away Joe Cantillon's Washington basement diggers might have pulled out of the hole they were in and capered off with the spoils. But the water fell and Monte Cross's athletes scampered to the clubhouse with a six-inning 7 to 5 game dangling from their belt straps. Thanks to Mr. P. C.

Our athletes looked better in action yesterday both at bat and in the field than the party Joseph Cantillon is piloting. The Blues gathered seven hits and seven runs in five innings. The Cantillons bagged five hits and five runs in six innings. And the beauty of the Blue hitting was the timeliness of the swats. In the fielding several of our gladiators pulled off sensational bits of baseball brilliancies. The Blues chalked up two errors out of thirty-two chances. The Washingtonians registered five bobbles out of twenty-seven chances. Roy Brashear beat Ollie Pickering out of a hit in the fourth and Hugh Hill made one of his swell heaves to the plate in the third, completing a double play.

THE WIND STRAIGHTENED HIS CURVES.

"Canary" Case was the twirling gentleman for the Blues in the first four clinches. The Senators managed to work in a run or two in each inning the shoots of the "Canary" warbled o'er the meat dish. They were hitting Charlie's fast ball and the naughty wind blew all the curve out of his benders. That was tough luck. Charles should slip a tip to his Aeolian enemy and look for better things next time.

Delehanty's awful double, an infield out and "Buck" Freeman's single gave the big leaguers two in the first. Two singles and a wild pitch netted them another in the second. A base on balls, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice added another in the third. A walk, a steal and a long fly spilled them their last in the fourth.



ROY BRASHEAR, WHOSE STAB OF PICKERING'S HOT HIT WAS THE FIELDING FEATURE OF THE GAME.

THE LONELY THIRD.

The town lads were the E. Z. Marks in the first two, but they worked up enough business in the third attack to run them through one game. Murphy opened with a bunt that rolled tantalizingly along the third base line and finally, when Howard was safe on first, remained in fair territory. That was one lucky bunt. Hill hit a hot one to Delehanty and the second baseman in his haste to pull off a double "booted" the horse hide. Jake Beckley was up and the mob was pulling for a hit. Jake got it—on the thigh. The bases were nodding with no Blue athletes in the pickle. Brashear hit a low liner to right. Clymer dropped the ball, Murphy scoring. Krueger aimed a sizzling grounder at Freeman off first. "Buck" grabbed the ball and threw toward second to get Brashear. The throw dug into the soil ahead of George McBride and Brashear paddled home. Cross was passed. Pitcher Cates, who once worked in Leavenworth, had heard of Monte's great hitting in these exhibition games, and he refused to take any chances. With the bases again throbbing Tommy Leahey, already credited with one smear, hopped up to the hit box and laced a triple bagger beyond the city limits of left field. The three nags on the bags limped home. Case died, but Billy Hallman drove a solitaire, scoring Leahey. That was some six runs. Krueger's double and Cates's failure to handle Monte Cross's squeeze rap gave our athletes their seventh in the fifth. The rain arrived in the sixth. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The third and last mingle with Mr. Joseph Cantillon's Washington wonders will be called at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Wood and Brandom probably will maneuver the cannon balls for the Cross works. Murphy, Hill and Hallman will play the gardens.

"Canary" Case isn't all the record as the real kind hearted gent. Charles issued passes to Pickering and Delehanty, swatsmen who have been known to sting the leather. But he wouldn't open up his heart when Mr. Shipke was up. The unkind Charles.

Dr. Tommy Levi Leahy smote the ball two mighty smotes yesterday. One was a triple when the bases were thrilling. That was the loveliest triple of thy career, T. L. Leahey.

Mr. Howard Murphy had his glancers on his exhibition game hit-average yesterday. Three blows in three times up is excellent fodder.

Danny Kerwin worked out some of the kinks in his voice from off the first base coaching line yesterday. The line of gab sounded pretty good and all the better because it was so unusual. A little of the same every day would lower the price of ginger at the ball village.

Roy Brashear played a brilliant game in the field, accepting his seven difficult chances without the semblance of a "boot." His stab of Pickering's smart rap directly over second in the fourth was a bit of "genteel robbery" the fans appreciated. Roy stabbed the ball while running toward second, and turning whipped it to first in time to waylay his man.

It's a queer game when Billy Hallman doesn't register a hit of some sort. His smite yesterday was a fierce blow to right. Billy tried to stretch it, but was nipped at second. The bugs didn't mind that, though. Billy needs the running and he paddled down to second as fast as he could.

Wright, the rangy hurler who played with Dayton, O., succeeded in stopping the swatfest of the Senators when he loomed up in the fifth. They got only one single in the two innings Wright worked. That was after two men were down in the sixth and it counted for nothing. He has a lot of everything a pitcher needs in the way of speed and curves. Maybe he will prove a find in the manipulation of his accomplishments.

No Game at Oklahoma City.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK., April 4.—Rain prevented the Pittsburg National League team from playing here to-day. Manager Fred Clarke of the Pirates was advised by telegram to-day that the great player, Wagner, with President Dreyfuss would meet the train at Wichita, Kas., to-morrow.

KANSAS WON THE FIRST GAME.

Ottawa University Narrowly Escaped a Shut-Out at Lawrence, 5 to 1.

LAWRENCE, KAS., April 4.—In a drizzling rain and with the field too sloppy for good ball playing, the Jayhawkers opened their season to-day by defeating the Ottawa university nine by a score of 5 to 1. For seven innings the two teams raced neck and neck, the twirlers, Hoffman for Kansas and Rubeck and Coe for the Baptists, pitching in splendid form and being backed up with almost perfect support. Then the Jayhawkers' swatfest began. Jennings copped a single, and, after two outs had been registered, Gibbs followed with a pretty Texas leaguer. Rockerfeller, the Kansans' new catcher, then cleared the bases with a long home run, and the three runners dented the home plate. This put the game in the safely won column for Kansas.

Ottawa was dangerous in the seventh, when Hoffman hit Rubeck, who had been switched to center field to allow Coe to pitch, and the latter smashed out a three-bagger. A base on balls and another man hit filled the three stations, but Hoffman tightened and retired the side with only the one run across the pan. The game was played under too unfavorable conditions to get any real line on the Kansas strength. Hoffman, aside from being a little wild, pitched a splendid game, allowing only two hits. The team accepted well its chances in the field, but the traveling was slow on account of the rain and mud. The team hit well, few of the bingles being wasted. At the close of the Ottawa game the Jayhawkers attempted to pull off a postponed contest with the Emporia Normals, but after one inning of work in the rain and the score 1 to 0 in favor of Kansas, the game was called off. The score by innings:

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kansas | 0 | 0 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 3 | * | —5 | 7 | 3 |

Batteries: Kansas, Hoffman and Rockerfeller; Ottawa, Rubeck, Coe and Price. Umpire, Howell.

The Portly Billy Hallman.

We like the way you play,
Billy Hallman.
We're glad you've come to stay,
Billy Hallman.
We've seen that you can bat,
We've also noticed that
You're long on beef and fat,
Billy Hallman.

You're fast in getting down,
Billy Hallman.
But wobbly as a clown,
Billy Hallman.
Far from a human slat,
Or anything like that,
You positively are fat,
Billy Hallman.

You must get down to weight,
Billy Hallman.
And drop that excess freight,
Billy Hallman.
You're very round and fat,
But still we'll wager that You'll do ten seconds flat,
Billy Hallman.

THE INTERCOLLEGIATES LOST.

A Close Game Was Captured by the Fort Leavenworth Officers.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., April 4.—The officers of the fort and the intercollegiate team from Kansas City played a seven inning game on the west parade grounds under distressing conditions this afternoon. There was a high cold wind and dust blew so thick it resembled a blizzard. The game was witnessed by fully 500 officers, women and enlisted men. The best of good nature was manifested and there was enthusiastic rooting, most of it on the part of the privates for the officers' team.

The officers' team won by a score of 7 to 6. The first run scored by the officers was on a ball dropped by the opposing catcher, which was thrown widely to first and this was repeated once more in a vain attempt to cut the runner off. The pitching of Lieutenant Albright was good and he was the mainstay of his team.

The players in the officers' team were: Lieutenant Albright, pitcher; Tarbutton, catcher; Hensley, first base; Foulois, second; Jones, third; Captain Kerwin, short; Lieutenants Thompson, right field; Gallagher, center field, and Reed, left field.

The players for the Intercollegiates were: Stone, pitcher; Holmes, catcher; Birney, first base; Hanley, second; Pefkert, third; Bowman, short; B. Holmes, right field; Cook, center field, and Crabbs, left field.

The score by innings was:

| | | | | | | | | R. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Intercollegiate | 0 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 1 | 2 | 1 | —6 |

WAGNER JOINS THE PIRATES.

The Great Shortstop Will Perform for Clarke's Winfield Friends.

WINFIELD, KAS., April 4.—Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburg Pirates, accompanied by Hans Wagner, George Gibson and Harry Smith, arrived from Chicago this morning to meet the Pirates coming up from Oklahoma to-morrow.

The Birmingham story of trouble between Clarke and Wagner has no foundation in fact. The Star's correspondent here has seen several letters from Wagner to Clarke expressing the warmest friendship and his regret that his resolve to quit the business would separate him from the old bunch. It was Clarke's earnest solicitation that brought Honus here to play in the Wichita-Winfield games for the pleasure of Clarke's friends. It is believed that when Wagner gets the diamond dust in his calks again that he will stay the season through.

The game will be played here on Tuesday and the trip to Clarke's ranch made Wednesday.

NATIONAL COMMISSION RULINGS.

Brooklyn and Nashville Fined $100 Each for Illegal Drafting.

CINCINNATI, O., April 4.—Fines of $100 each were assessed against the Brooklyn and Nashville baseball clubs for illegal drafting of Player Finlayson from Lynn, Mass., and that player is returned to Lynn subject to class A draft, according to a decision given out to-day by the national baseball commission. Having failed to draft the player during the major league drafting dates the Brooklyn management requested Nashville to draft the player for them, offering to pay the expenses. This was done by Nashville and later Brooklyn sought to return the player to the Lawrence team of the New England league in which Lynn is located. The whole transaction is declared illegal, even the attempt to send the player to Lawrence being contrary to the national agreement if Brooklyn had drafted him directly and regularly.

THE MANUAL HIGHS LOST.

The First Game of the High School League Won by Kansas City, Kas.

The Kansas City, Kas., high school team defeated the Manual Training High school nine in the opening game of the high school league yesterday afternoon at Twenty-fourth street and Southwest boulevard by the score of 11 to 8. The game was interesting up to the seventh inning, the score standing 4 to 8 in favor of Kansas City, Kas., when Hamilton, the Manual pitcher, was knocked out of the box, being touched up for seven runs. Robbins then went in to pitch for Manual, holding the Kansas City, Kas., team down without a run.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Allman of Kansas City, Kas. He held the Manual team to four hits.

Cincinnati Defeated the Sox, 1 to 0.

CINCINNATI, April 4.—The Cincinnati baseball team of the National league defeated the Chicago White Sox in a ten-inning game here to-day by a score of 1 to 0.

No Game at Joplin, Mo.

JOPLIN, MO., April 4.—The Denver-Joplin baseball game was postponed on account of rain.

THE PRINCETON SWIMMERS WON.

Yale Was Second and Pennsylvania Third—Two Records Were Broken.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 4.—Princeton won the intercollegiate individual swimming championship here to-night, scoring 17 points to Yale's 15 and Pennsylvania's 18. Two intercollegiate records were broken. In the 50-yard swim E. E. Denniston, Princeton, lowered his own record of 26 2-5 seconds to 26 1-5 seconds. In the plunge for distance Edgar L. Beaty, Yale, plunged 72 feet, which is one foot better than the intercollegiate record made by him two weeks ago.

The Golf Championship.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4.—Open Champion Alexander Ross of the local country club was the winner of the thirty-hole model play, open event, in the eighth annual United North and South championship to-day. Ross made two clean rounds of 72 and 71, or a total of 143. John E. Porter of the Allegheny Country club led the amateurs with 160.

EASTERN ATHLETIC NEWS

A GENERAL TREND TOWARD FEWER INTERCOLLEGIATE CONTESTS.

Harvard May Soon Cease to Be a Factor in Football—The Basket Ball League Disbanded—The Rowing Outlook Bright.

NEW YORK, April 4.—If there is any basis of fact in some of the talk which is current in college athletic circles Harvard may soon cease to be a factor in football. The talk undoubtedly has arisen from the action of the Harvard faculty in passing a resolution urging a reduction in the the number of intercollegiate athletic contests. As the baseball, rowing and spring track and field programmes have all been arranged, football will be the first of the sports to feel the effect of the opposition of the faculty to the prominence given to athletics.

It is, of course, possible that the other colleges will pay no attention to the suggestion of the Harvard faculty, but the best opinion is that whether they do or not the Harvard football schedule will be materially reduced. It is among the possibilities that only two games will be permitted—one with Yale and one with Dartmouth.

Inquiries at the various Eastern universities as to the probability of action similar to that at Harvard leaves the question in doubt. As the athletic question stands at Yale at present, power and policy in the matter are practically vested in the general athletic committee, composed of graduates and undergraduates. That committee, it is said, is not likely to act unless under the spur of the faculty.

BEARDSLEY fights for the people.
For whom does the Metropolitan fight?

Columbia in 1905 by its abolishment of football shows that the sentiment there was in accord with that of Prof. Eliot, and although Prof. Butler, president of the faculty, is in Bermuda, a prominent graduate said: "Harvard, in my opinion, may depend on Columbia to follow in her steps in this matter."

As regards Princeton, Prof. J. B. Fine, head of the athletic executive committee, said:

"There are two questions involved in reducing the number of contests in athletics—the academic and the athletic. From an athletic viewpoint and that of developing strong teams the present system is needed, but as far as the academic side is concerned that is a question for the athlete himself to decide. At Princeton an athlete can compete in only two branches of sport, so that there has been little difficulty for the individual, although university teams have lost many a valuable man in this way."

As regards Pennsylvania's attitude at a recent meeting of the athletic committee a resolution was adopted in which the opinion was expressed that there should be less indoor athletics. In order to place some restrictions on the competitions it was decided that the track manager of the Pennsylvania team must in future send a schedule of winter indoor meets to the faculty committee before entering athletes. No action, however, has been taken on outdoor athletics.

It is possible that the breaking up of the Intercollegiate Basket Ball league is in line with this tenedency to curtail the prominence of athletics. The withdrawal of Yale and Princeton left the league with only three members—Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell. At the last meeting of the league it was decided, owing to the sentiment in the various colleges, to suspend operations for at least a season. By this arrangement, although college basket ball continues, schedules will be arranged independently and there will be no championship series.

All the crews are now able to do a full stunt of work in open waters, and they are doing it. It is not yet possible to get a line on the work. The coaches know pretty well how their crews will line up, but they are keeping their information strictly to themselves. It is said that Courtney has an unusually promising lot of youngsters this year, and is very confident that Cornell will maintain her athletic superiority. Rice of Columbia, however, is said to be sure that his crew will make Courtney's men pull with every ounce of their strength to best his boys. In fact, so far as can be learned all the coaches regard the outlook as bright.

Ray Ewry, the champion broad jumper, has been suspended by the national registration committee of the A. A. U. for exhibiting his prowess at unsanctioned meets, that of the West Side Neighborhood being taken as a specific incident. The testimony given by Ewry himself when first brought up on charges by the Metropolitan association registration committee was such that it left little doubt in the minds of those who followed the case that the general A. A. U. would suspend him if it ever took the matter in hand. Ewry, however, will not be out for long. He will immediately apply to the local association for reinstatement, and as he received no money compensation for his exhibitions, but committed only a minor offense, and that through ignorance, his application will be favorably acted upon as soon as it is filed.

A MEDLEY OF SPORT.

Courtney may coach the Olympic crew.

Wisconsin's skating association has 500 members.

Big league baseball costs 2 million dollars yearly, it is estimated.

The American Bowling congress will begin in Pittsburg on February 6, 1909.

The Chicago White Sox may visit Honolulu in addition to the Pacific coast next spring.

Catcher Jack O'Connor was a star in the old Cleveland days, and he is still on deck in St. Louis.

Cyganiewicy, the Austrian wrestler, is coming to the United States next month.

Umpire Johnston has signed a four-year contract with the National league. Some people are always borrowing trouble.

Among the giants of the diamond this season is Murch, one of the Brooklyn recruits. He stands six feet four inches and weighs 230 pounds.

William Sherring of Hamilton, Canada, winner of the last Olympic games Marathon race, has made formal application for the managership of the Canadian team that is to take part in the Olympic games.

The entry list for the Sir Thomas Lipton cup is swelling gradually. Ten boats are entered. The entries do not close until June 15. The race is under the auspices of the Brooklyn Yacht club and will be started July 4.

Four years ago Nick Maddock, the pitching wonder with Pittsburg, was clerking in a store at Baltimore at a salary of $6 per week. He played twilight ball and Sunday games and received his first professional engagement the following year.

Alfred De Oro, the former pool champion, has announced that he will enter the pool championship series at Chicago. The Cuban has experienced a change of heart, as he recently announced that he would never play pool again. De Oro will be compelled to meet "Kid" Hueston, his bitter enemy, in the series.

West Point football team will play Annapolis at Philadelphia November 21, instead of Saturday after Thanksgiving day. The army claims it has lost the annual football game for the past two years because the team could not keep in training until December. November 21 is the date of the Yale-Harvard contest.

Halifax has decided to hold a local trial of four-oared crews and send the winning crew to St. Catharines, Ontario, to compete in trials for a place on the Canadian crews for the Olympic regatta. Halifax will also be represented in the single sculls trial at St. Catharines, as St. Mary's will send John O'Neill, and St. Joseph's will send William Duggan. A new boat for the latter has been ordered from London.

So active have the members of the Michigan Association for the Protection of Fish and Game become in their efforts to secure better legislation for the protection of fish and game in that state, and especially, to have the use of the deadly automatic gun prohibited, that different members of the association say they have been approached indirectly by representatives from the manufacturers of these guns and offered inducements to discourage the crusade.

Arnaud Massy and Harry Vardon are to open the British professional golf match season at Deal on Thursday, and next week Braid and Taylor are to play at Brighton. Meantime the four have been on their annual tour to the Riviera. At Nice there were eight starters. Vardon led Massy, 143 to 147, and won 1,000 francs at medal play; Braid did 148, J. Cassiat of Baden Baden 148, Taylor 150, B. S. Calloway of Cannes 160, A. Covington of Nice 164, and Babiste Bomboudiac of Biarritz 104. Harry Vardon's rounds were 72 and 71, a gratifying opening of the season for the veteran.

John J. Shaab, president of the Southwestern Rowing association of St. Louis and a member of the executive committee of the N. A. A. O., says in regard to the selection of crews for the Olympic regatta: "The plans of the committee are to pick out twenty-seven oarsmen who show up the best in the regattas held before June 1, and these men will contest against one another until an eight and several 'subs' are selected, and the crew will be sent away early in July. An inquiry at Yale revealed the fact that an all-university crew was out of the question, owing to different methods in coaching in vogue, but they thought it a fine plan, nevertheless."

"Take away the foul strike rule, make the pitchers cut out the spitball, and you will see some hitting like there used to be four or five years ago," says Charley Hickman. "Those two things are responsible for the lack of hitting. A batter goes up there nowadays and fouls off two, and he has only one more chance left. The spitball causes fouls. There are always more foul balls knocked when there is a spitball pitcher in the box. You hear people hollering for more hitting, more slugging. Why, how can the hitters slug like they used to when the chances are all against them? That foul strike rule is all right for the pitchers, but it has surely cut down the hitting game."

The formal meeting to complete the organization of the British Columbia Amateur Athletic union will be held in Vancouver on April 10. The form of the new body has been decided on, also the essential point that the definition of the Canadian Amateur Athletic union shall prevail. The indiscriminate mingling of professionals and amateurs which constitutes the foundation of the federation, has been rejected, as it has been everywhere except among a few mixed organizations in Montreal and Ottawa, which exist for gate money purposes. With the organization of the Alberta union, which is now in the best of hands, and will soon be an accomplished fact, the whole country will be systematically covered by bodies holding a sane idea of the object and the field of amateur sport. No Federation members are recognized as amateurs anywhere in Canada, from Halifax to Vancouver, though they are received with open arms by President Sullivan in the states.

One event follows the other in rapid succession now in the automobile field, and the makers and those interested in automobiling from an amateur standpoint are working hard to make everything a success. The New York carnival, signaling the opening of the season this week, will be a grand affair, with every store in automobile row for a distance of two miles finely decorated. The parade will be one of the leading events, and the appearance in this parade of the first cars made by a number of makers will be one of the most interesting of the various exhibits. Following the carnival will come the Briarcliff race, and following that closely the hill climbs of May 25 to May 30, and track events in June. In July there will be the tour of the A. A. A., which under the new rules allowing the makers to enter teams representing each a maker, will be an even greater affair than in the past, with double the entry list of last year. The season is to be filled with endurance runs of all sorts, run in the local fields, but of national importance, and the great closing event will be the Vanderbilt cup race, which is to be run to a certainty, and in all probability over the Savannah course, with soldiers for protection.

CLOSING DAY AT SANTA ANITA.

Colonel Bob, the Favorite, Easily Landed the "Adios Handicap."

LOS ANGELES, April 4.—After a meeting extending over 100 days, the Los Angeles Racing association has closed up the Santa Anita track until next fall. The feature event of the day, the Adois handicap, five and one-half furlongs, was an easy victory for the favorite, Colonel Bob, at even odds. Jockey Goldstein was within the money in six of the seven events. The summary:

First race, seven furlongs—Lois Cavanaugh, 117 (Goldstein), 7 to 5, won; Artie Ripey, 112 (Blair), 60 to 1, second; Dally, 117 (Musgrave), even, third. Time, 1:28 4-5. Margie D., Fred G., and Albian H., finished as named.

Second race, four furlongs—Alice George, 102 (McIntyre), 16 to 5, won; Friese, 107 (Goldstein), 11 to 5, second; Lady Rensalaer, 107 (Rice), 9 to 2, third. Time, :47 3-5. Traffic, Frank Clancy, Ollie Ward, Sir Barry, Calera, Fred Maier, Knight of East, Hazlet and Louise Reggel finished as named.

Third race, six and one-half furlongs—Miss Himyar, 104 (Goldstein), 8 to 1, won; Lady Kitty, 104 (Martin), 20 to 1, second; Pepper and Salt, 104 (Callahan), 3 to 1, third. Time, 1:20 4-5. Slippery, Benevole, Daisy Frost and Kirkfield Belle finished as named.

Fourth race, five and one-half furlongs, the Adios handicap—Colonel Bob, 114 (Taylor), even, won; Botanist, 116 (Rice), 3 to 1, second; Mary F., 98 (Martin), 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:05 3-5. Kerry, LaChata and Port Mahone finished as named.

Fifth race, mile and three-sixteenths—Elie, 108 (Musgrave), 9 to 5, won; Huapala, 97 (Goldstein), 8 to 1, second; Matador, 109 (McIntyre), 4 to 1, third. Time, 2:00 4-5. Playlit, Hi Caul, Cap, Ormon des Right, Esther B., Sainrida and Sink Spring finished as named.

Sixth race, one mile—Vestme, 102 (Musgrave), 11 to 5, won; Montclair, 104 (Goldstein), 2 to 1, second; Friar of Elgin, 90 (Nelson), 25 to 1, third. Time, 1:39 2-5. Bonnie Prince Charlie, Stratmartin, Varieties and Wisteria finished as named.

Seventh race, one mile—Spohn, 86 (Martin), 10 to 1, won; Brawney Lad, 86 (Nelson), 6 to 1, second; Cobleskill, 98 (Goldstein), 8 to 5, third. Time, 1:40 3-5. Sharp Boy, Ed Sheridan, Rudabek, Arragon, Tar Baby and Rosemary D. finished as named.

Talks on Teeth

"This Alveolar Method Wonderful!"

Those who have had their missing teeth restored by the Alveolar Method are in every case enthusiastic about the work. The results obtained by us with this modern plan of restoring missing teeth and tightening loose teeth are so remarkable that it is small wonder we are in daily receipt of letters similar to the one we are publishing herewith.

Over a year ago Mrs. Hobbs came all the way from Wonder, Nev., to our office to have her teeth restored by the Aveolar Method. We had been in correspondence with her for some time, and you may be sure that it was no easy matter to satisfy her at long range that we could make a success of her work. The trip was an expensive one and her work was somewhat extensive, but the results fully justified the time and expense involved. Mrs. Hibbs's letter follows:

Wonder, Nev.
"G. Gordon Martin, D. D. S.
Dear Sir: In answer to your inquiry regarding the dental work which I had done in your office last May, can say I am more than pleased with your work. Can certainly recommend your new Alveolar Method, as I think it wonderful.
Trusting my statement will be a benefit to others in need of good dental work, and wishing you every success, I remain, Yours truly,
(Signed) MRS. F. S. HOBBS."

One reason why we published this letter out of the many on file in our offices is to show that in nearly every locality we can refer to some person who has had this work done, and it also goes to prove that a good set of teeth is worth going after even though the trip takes one clear across the continent. This lady is now equipped with a beautiful set of teeth, which will last, in all probability, as long as she lives. She not only has the satisfaction of having her looks improved, but her health also. Good teeth and good health go hand in hand.

The Alveolar Method differs from all other methods of restoring missing teeth. The only thing that approaches it is the ordinary bridge work, and this is so far inferior to the new plan that it is not fair to name them in the same breath. The bridge-work principle is wrong. It puts too great a strain upon the teeth which support the bridge, and it is only a question of time when the work must be removed. The only other resort is a partial plate, and this is nothing more nor less than a nuisance and is not to be considered at all in connection with the Alveolar Method.

In each of our offices is an examining dentist, a man well qualified to diagnose diseases of the teeth and gums, and if you are suffering from teeth troubles of any kind, or have lost some teeth and have two or more left in either gum, then the services of this expert are at your command. You will be told exactly what we can do for you, and the probable cost. The work is not any more expensive than any first class dentist would ask for first class work.

If it is not convenient for you to call at the present time, do the next best thing and send for our book entitled "Alveolar Dentistry," which goes fully into particulars. This book is sent free of any charge.

CAUTION—The success of the Alveolar Method has caused unscrupulous dentists to copy our advertising. Our Alveolar Method is controlled by this company under the strongest patents and it is not to be obtained in this country in any office outside of ours, address given below. Beware of the counterfeiter!

THE MECCA OF PUGILISTS

FRANCE IS THE LAND OF EASY MONEY FOR THE NEAR-CHAMPIONS.

An International Boxing Club Planned for New York—Unholz Will Meet No One but Gans—News of the Game.

New York, April 4.—France is now the mecca toward which the eyes of American near-champions in the pugilistic world are turned. The pioneers who have gone to "that dear old Paree" declare it the best place ever for a man who knows how to put up his hands and who is looking for easy money. Men who are glad of the chance to go on in preliminaries here, pose as champions in France and fight fans accept the wildest press agent yarns as gospel truth.

For instance, it is understood that Sam McVey is posing as having beaten Jeffries, and the admiring Parisians look on him as the greatest fighter in the world. We all know, of course, that at least one yoke of oxen would be required to pull Sam into the ring with Jeff, and nothing short of a three-inch steel cable would keep him there. The smoke, however, is working the game to the limit, and is said to be pulling down big money. Purses in France sound good, and probably there will be a big army of American second raters looking for them in the near future.

Bob Fitzsimmons, who visited Paris before the craze for "le Boxe" set in and who found the big French city pleasing, has concluded he can raise some of the easy French money, and will go to Paris soon. Robert is old, and his fighting days with good men are passed, but he should create a sensation like that of a dolphin in a school of flying fish among the present contingent fighting for the French. There are others.

New York is to have a new boxing club fashioned after the style of Peggy Bettinson's institution in London. Charley Harvey is to be the deus ex machina of the new club. Harvey is in the front rank of the importers of English jongs. He is American sponsor for Owen Moran, Johnny Summers, Pat O'Keefe and others. While he is not yet ready to take the public into his confidence as to his plans, he purposes to make his new club something of an international affair, matching the best English with the best American fighters. If he can bring over from the other side a few men like Moran he may make a success along these lines, but the quince market is poor in New York.

Rudolf Unholz, the Boxing Boer, has his nerve with him. He declares he'll fight no one but Gans, and will only fight him for the championship. Unholz has shown himself a pretty willing man in the ring, but just when he has demonstrated his overwhelming superiority over all the other aspirants for Gans's special niche in pugilism does not appear. From the best accounts of his fight with Nelson, the most he could fairly have claimed was a draw, and a man to beat Gans must be a much better man than the Battling Dane.

Jim Coffroth, the fight promoter of California, says that the fighting game out on the coast is in a more flourishing condition since the sport was resumed last July than it has been for many years. In a statement made recently Coffroth says that the prominent contests pulled off out there up to the beginning of this year drew as follows: Squires and Burns, $20,052; Joe Thomas and Ketchell, $8,700; Squires and Jack (Twin) Sullivan, $8,600; Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn, $7,200; Jack Sullivan and Al Kaufman, $4,500; Moran and Attell, $14,000; Britt and Nelson, $22,000; Kaufman and Shreck, $4,500; Gans and Britt, $36,000; Moran and Neil, $7,000; Ketchell and Joe Thomas (second fight), $8,000.

Jim Corbett, the retired ex-heavy weight champion, probably will be selected to referee the twenty-five round battle between Packey McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, and Jimmy Britt, which is to be decided in the open air at Colma, Cal., on Saturday afternoon, April 11. Matchmaker Coffroth has wired Corbett an offer to judge the contest, and it is expected he will accept, as his theatrical engagements will be finished by that time.

A FINE CROWD AT BENNING.

Hawk Wing Won the Feature Event, the Dinner Stakes for 2-Year-Olds.

Washington, April 4.—Beautiful weather, an excellent card and a prospect of fine sport today attracted the largest crowd to Benning of the present meeting of the Washington Jockey club. The feature of the afternoon was the third running of the Dinner stakes for 2-year-olds. The winner was Hawk Wing, owned by Samuel Ross, one of the stewards of the meeting. Hawk Wing was as good as 30 to 1 at one time. Hawk Wing went to the front at the start and led all the way, winning by three-quarters of a length, ridden out. Al Rush was second and Red Doe third. The favorite did not figure. The handicap steeple chase was productive of an upset, Touchwood, 4 to 1, winning, with Essex second, and the favorite, Percentage, third. The sixth race was won by Lally, the favorite, which got up just in time to beat Lady Karma, 30 to 1. Weather clear and pleasant. Track good. The results:

First race; selling; 4-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs; Columbia course—Right and True, 101 (Rowan), 18 to 5, won; Panique, 90 (A. Lee), 4 to 1, second; Workman, 101 (Quarrington), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:30 3-5. Clements, Venus and Listless also ran.

Second race; maiden 3-year-olds and up; seven furlongs; Columbia course—Call Boy, 102 (McCahey), 11 to 5, even; won; Wilton Lackaye, 119 (McDaniel), 12 to 1, second; Lamme, 99 (Mahon), 13 to 5, third. Time, 1:32. Strong Heart, Sherring, Hartford Boy, Oroonoka, Cartwheel, William Penn, Lena Delta and Alloy also ran.

Third race; steeplechase; 4-year-olds and upwards; 2 miles—Touchwood, 140 (Kelleher), 4 to 1, won; Essex, 150 (Mr. Dion Kerr), 4 to 1, second; Percentage, 145 (McInery), 8 to 5, third. Time, 4:13. Flying Virginian and Bersi also ran.

Fourth race, the Dinner stakes, 2-year-olds, four and one-half furlongs, old course—Hawk Wing, 109 (C. Brady), 20 to 1, won; Al Busch, 112 (Brussell), 10 to 1, second; Red Doe, 109 (McDaniel), 4 to 1, third. Time, 0:58. Young Roe, Sir Cannon, Dorsingham, Daly's Lune, Two Saints and Spencer Wells also ran.

Fifth race, 2-year-olds, four and one-half furlongs, old course—Taboo, 102 (McFadden), 13 to 2, won; Aralia, 102 (McCarthy), 5 to 1, second; Chaperone, 89 (Steele), 13 to 5, third. Time, 0:57. Personal, Juliet M. and Obdurate also ran.

Sixth race, selling, 3-year-olds and upward; one mile and 100 yards, old course—Lally, 106 (McCahey), 6 to 5, won; Lady Karma, 96 (Fairbrother), 30 to 1, second; Banker, 119 (Brussell), 12 to 1, third. Time, 1:54. Gilvedear, Obert, Denial, The Shaughran and Winning Star also ran.

AUDUBON STAKES TO GREEN SEAL.

Pedro Made a Game Finish, but Couldn't Overtake the Leader.

New Orleans, April 4.—Green Seal, the 9 to 5 favorite, won the Audubon selling stakes, $1,000 added, at the Fair grounds to-day. Green Seal took the lead at the start and was never headed, although Pedro, a well played second choice, made a game attempt to catch the leader in the stretch. Pedro did not get nearer than a length behind Green Seal. Next week the races will be held under the auspices of the Louisiana Jockey club at the Fair grounds track, and on Saturday next the winter racing meeting here will close. The holding of the final week's racing by the Louisiana instead of the Crescent Jockey club, which has conducted the Fair grounds races all winter, is a formality made necessary by the legal relations of the two clubs. The summary:

First race, five furlongs—Sim Coe, 109 (E. Walsh), 5 to 1, won; Intervene, 109 (Notter), 8 to 5, second; Alice, 100 (F. Burton), 25 to 1, third. Time 1:00 4-5. Brougham, Guy Fisher and Lady Leota also ran.

Second race, five furlongs—The Bear, 105 (Notter), 9 to 10, won; Frank Lord, 98 (F. Chandler), 40 to 1, second; Toy Boy, 100 (Rose), even, third. Time 1:00 2-5. Ben Strong also ran.

Third race, six furlongs, selling—Frontenac, 110 (Nicol), 11 to 5, won; Robin Hood, 112 (Notter), 3½ to 1, second; Belle Strome, 105 (Delaby), 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:18 4-5. Mr. Peabody, Shion, Jack Bratton, Chief Hayes, St. Valentine, Gold Proof and Rickey also ran.

Fourth race, mile and a sixteenth—Green Seal, 107 (Notter), 9 to 5, won; Pedro, 110 (S. Flynn), 2 to 1, second; Donna, 104 (V. Powers), 9 to 1, third. Time, 1:46 2-5. Zipango, Saylor and Good Luck also ran.

Fifth race, mile and a sixteenth, selling—Arrow Swift, 102 (F. Burton), 11 to 5, won; Severus, 105 (Notter), 7 to 10, second; Royal Onyx, 112 (V. Powers), 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:49. Three starters.

Sixth race, mile and three-sixteenths, selling—Coruscate, 105 (Notter) 4 to 5, won; Lord Dixon, 104 (W. Powers), 3 to 1, second; El Fall, 99 (S. Flynn), 8 to 1, third. Time, 2:01 4-5. You Win, Punky Lady, Bright Boy, Knight of Ivanhoe, Javanese, George Bailey and LaCaches also ran.

Seventh race, mile and three-sixteenths, selling—Gilpin, 112 (C. Booker), 9 to 1, won; Lady Esther, 104 (V. Powers), 3 to 1, second; Quagga, 107 (Notter), 3 to 2, third. Time, 2:00 4-5. Goldway, Belle Scott and Docile also ran.

THE FAMILY CUP HANDICAP.

Johnny Lyons Beat Out Sugar Maid in a Hard Fight at Oakland.

San Francisco, April 4.—The Family cup handicap to-day brought together some of the best horses trained at the Oakland track. There were two absent—Marster and Red Leaf—which left the field of eleven to face the barrier. Sugar Maid singled away from her field and made the running to the far turn, closely followed by Johnny Lyons. The weight told on the mare and Johnny Lyons receivd the lead and held it until the wire was reached. Cabin, neglected at the odds of 40 to 1, closed a strong second, followed by Cloyne. The summary:

First race, six furlongs—Pegg Oneal, 109 (Sandy), 16 to 1, won; J. W. Oneill, 111 (A. Welsh), 5 to 2, second; Senator Warner, 108 (Lycurgus), 9 to 2, third. Time, 1:14 1-5. Queen Alamo, Water Thrush, Phil Igoe and Peerless Lass finished as named.

Second race, six furlongs, selling—Lord Nelson, 116 (Butwell), 10 to 1, won; Belmere, 115 (Moreland), 16 to 1, second; Lee Harrison, 112 (Keogh), 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:12 4-5. Yada, Andrew B. Cook, Belle of Iroquois and Salvage finished as named.

Third race, one mile—Gemmel, 106 (W. Miller), 3 to 10, won; Ocean Shore, 99 (W. Kelly), 9 to 1, second; Gargantua, 100 (Lycurgas), 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:39. Timothy Wen, Bye Bye II, Dareington, St. Avon, Husky and May L. N. finished as named.

Fourth race, mile and an eighth, Family cup handicap—Johnny Lyons, 103 (Hayes), 8 to 1, won; Cabin, 105 (McIntyre), 12 to 1, second; Cloyne, 97 (A Walsh), 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:52 4-5. Sugar Maid, Rubric, Down Patrick, Veil, Janeta, J. C. Clem, Edwin T. Fryer and Logistilla finished as named.

Fifth race, mile and seventy yards—Henry O., 107 (Harris), 16 to 1, won; Silver Line, 104 (Gilbert), 8 to 5, second; Peligrose, 110 (Dearborn), 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:44 2-5. Wap, Steel Blue, Boloman, Etapa and Royal River finished as named.

Sixth race, mile and seventy yards—Markie Mayer, 110 (Dearborn), 15 to 1, won; Cardinal Sarto, 110 (Fisher), 7 to 1, second; Happy Rice, 106 (Butwell), 11 to 2, third. Time, 1:45. Paladini, Jack Payne, Eckersall, Sachet, Miss May Bowdish, Golden Wine, Lassen and E. B. H. finished as named.

HACKENSCHMIDT PRAISES GOTCH.

Says There Is No Man in Europe Who Has a Chance With the Iowan.

Chicago, April 4.—Frank Gotch, who last night defeated George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," for the wrestling championship of the world, seemed to feel little ill effect to-day from the two-hour battle.

"I am not fatigued," he said, "and was not tired when the battle ended. I could have gone on for hours. I would be willing to meet Hackenschmidt to-night. If he desires it I will give him a return match any time he wants it. Next time I will put him on his back."

Gotch will remain in Chicago all next week, appearing at a local vaudeville theater. He will then fulfill similar engagements in Wisconsin and Minnesota. A trip abroad for the new champion is also being considered, but no definite plans for this have been made yet.

Hackenschmidt looked as if he had been in a prize fight instead of a wrestling match today. The left side of his head was badly swollen and his left eye inflamed. His eyelids were swollen and lacerated. He said this was done by Gotch's thumb. As to plans while in America, Hackenschmidt said he was not decided on what he would do. Speaking of the new champion, Hackenschmidt said: "There is no man in all England who has a chance with your man Gotch. He is king of his class, the greatest man by far that I have ever met. After going nearly two hours with him my muscles became stale. My feet also gave way on me. I had trained so constantly against the toe-hold that I had strained the muscles of my legs. When I found myself weakening, I knew there was no use continuing. I had no chance to win. That was the reason I conceded the championship to him. I have no desire to wrestle him again. A return match would not win back my title."

A Nebraska-Minnesota Dual Meet.

Lincoln, Neb., April 4.—Arrangements were completed to-day for a track and field meet between the Universities of Nebraska and Minnesota in Lincoln on May 30. Nebraska is to enter a track team at the first meet of the Missouri valley conference in Kansas City May 23.

ANSWERS TO SPORT QUERIES.

Kansas City, Kas.—To The Star: How many times did Kid McCoy and Tom Sharkey fight, how many rounds each time, and who won?—M. J. Ronan.

Once, January 10, 1899, in New York. Sharkey won by knockout route in ten rounds.

Parker, Kas.—To The Star: Please give me the record for the running broad jump.—W. H.

Professional, with weights, 29 feet 7 inches; without weights, 25 feet 7½ inches. Amateur, with weights, 12 feet 9¼ inches; without weights, 11 feet 6 inches.

Kansas City.—To The Star: (1) What is meant by the term "life?" (2) How is it scored? (3) Is a passed ball charged as an error by the catcher?—Scorer.

(1) The term "life" means a base on balls. (2) Many scorers designate a base on balls by a capital "B." (3) A passed ball has no place in the error column, but is scored in the summary as a battery error.

Kansas City.—To The Star: Please give the record time of the following events: (1) Ten miles; (2) five miles; (3) one mile; (4) one-half mile; (5) 220 yards; (6) 100 yards.—S. S. S.

(1) Fifty minutes 40 3-5 seconds; (2) 24 minutes 33¾ seconds; (3) 4 minutes 15 3-5 seconds; (4) 1 minute 53 2-5 seconds; (5) 21 seconds; (6) 9 2-5 seconds.

Buckhorn, Wyo.—To The Star: What is the correct way to place chess men on the board?—Thornton Sanderson.

Place the board with a red square at right hand corner. Place a castle or "rook" on right hand square; place a knight of same color on next square to left of the castle; a bishop on next; the king next to bishop; the queen next to king; a bishop next to queen; a knight next to bishop and a castle next to knight. The eight pawns are placed on the eight squares immediately in front. The above are supposed to be the "white" men. The black men go on opposite side of board in same order, excepting the king and queen, whose positions are reversed; the queens must be placed on their own color.

Liberty, Mo.—What is a fall in wrestling, two shoulders and a hip or just two shoulders?—J. B. L.

Just two shoulders.

Cherryvale, Kas.—To The Star: (1) If one ball team wins one score and the other no score, does the one winning one double the score of the other? (2) Or if one wins two scores and the other none, does the one winning two win double the score?—Robt. Huddleston.

(1) Yes. (2) Yes.

Paola, Kas.—To The Star: Will you kindly explain how the game "indoor baseball" is played? What sort of ball, bats, and what is the regulation diamond?—H. A. Yeater.

The A. G. Spalding Indoor Baseball Guide explains these points. The price of the guide is ten cents.

Muncie, Kas.—To The Star: (1) With three men on the bases the batter hits a long fly over center and the umpire calls runner out after he reached second because he failed to touch first. The three men on the bases had already scored. Do their runs count? (2) How much cut is a runner allowed in running out a long hit?—Manager Muncie Baseball Team.

(1) The three runs count. (2) The runner is required to touch each base.

Geneseo, Kas.—To The Star: (1) First and second bases are occupied; the man on first takes second, and after touching second does he force the man to third and can he return to first if he is not touched or thrown out? (2) The batter hits the ball and the ball hits him as he stands in the batters' box. Is he out?—Z.

(1) He can return to first and must be touched with the ball to be put out. The runner who occupies second also must be tagged to be put out. (2) No.

Kansas City—To The Star: After counting out in a two-handed game of pinochle, is it necessary to take a trick to win?—J. Guilford.

Not if you can prove you have the necessary number of points in the tricks already taken.

Metropolitan Republicans

The lineup is unmistakable.

The friends of good government, the people who want nothing except a square deal, are for Beardsley, regardless of political affiliations.

The enemies of fair play, the seekers of special privileges, the men with grievances because good government has interfered with their schemes, are against Beardsley, regardless of politics.

A Republican who votes the Metropolitan ticket is secretly or openly against good government, against corporation regulation in the interest of the people, against the Square Deal.

He has a grievance, or a scheme or a corporation stock.

He wants revenge, or he wants the Best of it, against the rights of his neighbor, and he wants the city government to get it for him.

THE ART OF SPRINTING

INSTRUCTIONS FOR WARD SCHOOL ATHLETES BY MARTIN A. DELANEY.

Daily Training in Preparation for the Short Dashes Is Outlined by the Physical Director of the Kansas City Athletic Club.

[This is the first of a series of stories in which Martin A. Delaney, the athletic director of the Kansas City Athletic club, will instruct the young athletes of the ward schools in regard to training, form, etc., for the events that will compose the ward school indoor meet which will be held in Convention hall next month. These instructions are especially intended to convey information to the ward school athletes who are so situated that they cannot have the advantages of a coach. This story is relative to the "sprints." Instructions on the following events will follow: Middle distance running; long distance running; the shot put; running high jump; relay racing.]

BY MARTIN A. DELANEY.

The sprint is the favorite run for all boys and the hardest to get into condition for. It takes time and light work and not a short time and much work.

Do not depend too much on your legs. Watch the upper body and develop the back and abdomen and muscles. Take dumbbell and breathing exercise for the heart and lungs.

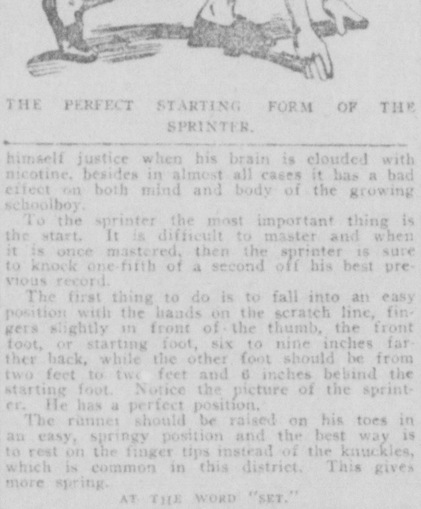
The favorite exercise for this is lying down, placing the hands back of the head and raising the legs to a vertical position a few times, then to keep the legs still and come to a sitting position. Try each six times and then increase the number as you see fit.

No boy should take a course of training in track athletics or any other kind unless he is 12 years old or over, so here we will not call this training, but getting the body in condition for a successful future.

As to the many questions as to what to eat, I will say for the schoolboy that he can have anything the stomach calls for, if it's plain and well cooked.

MUST NOT USE TOBACCO.

One word before we get to the sprints. No boy will be successful in athletic or in his class who uses tobacco in any form. He cannot do himself justice when his brain is clouded with nicotine, besides in almost all cases it has a bad effect on both mind and body of the growing schoolboy.



THE PERFECT STARTING FORM OF THE SPRINTER.

To the sprinter the most important thing is the start. It is difficult to master and when it is once mastered, then the sprinter is sure to knock one-fifth of a second off his best previous record.

The first thing to do is to fall into an easy position with the hands on the scratch line, fingers slightly in front of the thumb, the front foot, or starting foot, six to nine inches farther back, while the other foot should be from two feet to two feet and 6 inches behind the starting foot. Notice the picture of the sprinter. He has a perfect position.

The runner should be raised on his toes in an easy, springy position and the best way is to rest on the finger tips instead of the knuckles, which is common in this district. This gives more spring.

AT THE WORD "SET."

When the starter gives the word "set," the runner should lean forward as far as he can without losing his balance, his head lifted so he has a clear view of the track in front of him. With the pistol shot he shoots ahead with all the force of both legs, his first two steps are taken in a crouching position. Do not attempt to stand erect at the start. Let the head and shoulders rise along a slanting line to their proper attitude or there will be a hitch and a noticeable loss of time.

As soon as the runner has got into an erect position he should run with only a very slight forward inclination of the body, but with the chin well thrust out. The arms should be swung across the body rather than alongside as it gives a better form and an easier stride.

Never look backward. Many a race has been lost by this same act. Pay no attention to the others. Go for all you are worth. Breathe naturally. Do not stop at the finish line but run a few yards past before you stop or slow up.

The foot should come down flat on the ground. This does not mean the heel should touch, for it must not in any case. Yet a man does not run on his toes as it is commonly called, but on the ball of his foot, and in order that the spikes of his shoes may enter the ground to the best advantage the sole should strike flat.

For the beginner who has never taken part in athletics the following schedule is strongly recommended:

THE WEEK'S SCHEDULE.

Monday—Walk on ball of foot, swinging arms as instructed. Study form. No running at all. Walk four fifty yards, three minutes between each walk.

Tuesday—Practice start five times, running at speed, only fifteen yards. Finish the last End up by jogging fifty yards. Finish the last 5 yards as fast as possible.

Wednesday—Same as Monday; walk to study form and limber up.

Thursday—Practice start six times same as Tuesday. Finish up with a fast fifty yards.

Friday—Run fifty yards after limbering up. In five minutes run another fifty yards.

Saturday—Study your form on start and do only as instructed by special instructions from the principal of the school.

Now to the ambitious athletes this schedule may seem too light, but there are no words strong enough with which I can urge him not to attempt a bit more. And, moreover, at the slightest sign of fatigue quit work for the day. Always lay off the day before a contest, and never run your distance against time for a week before the race.

SPORTS ACROSS THE WATER.

The Grand National Steeplechase to an American Bred Horse.

London, April 4.—For the first time in its history, an American-bred horse has won the Grand National Steeplechase, which is to cross country racing what the Derby is to flat racing. He was a rank outsider, as much as 66 to 1 being laid against him. The winner was the 10-year-old Rubio, owned by Major F. Douglas-Pennant.

Rubio was bred by the famous American breeder, J. B. Haggire, on his California work farm. He was a son of Star-Ruby, a famous American sire. As a yearling he was shipped here to be sold, but had never shown any class So little did he develop that he was sold some years ago for $90.

There were very few bets on him, even the American contingent failing to recognize that he had any chance whatever to win.

The victory of Rubio was not the only American victory on the British turf last week. Martin piloted Mr. F. S. Barner's Kaffir Chief to victory in the Lincolnshire Handicap, the first of the big flat racing stakes. While Kaffir Chief was backed to some extent, he really was an outsider, starting at the long price of 100 to 7. Martin rode a fine race and the credit of the victory belongs chiefly to his good riding.

And the match between Tommy Burns and Gunner Moir has been talked of. There is very little likelihood of another meeting between the two. The "Pink Un" sums the matter up thus, tersely but comprehensively: "There seems to be no doubt that Burns will meet Moir in the ring again.—Sportsman. With what purpose? To grow vegetables between the Gunner's footwork, or to punch him to death in his sleep."

The Oxford crew has offended the ultra-jourists in British sports by holding a secret trial. It is regarded as unsportsmanlike in some circles here for a crew to find out just what it can do beforehand, and Oxford's lapse is attributed by some to the demoralizing influence of the American Rhodes scholars.

The Sportsman, protesting strongly against a secret trial, recalls the virtuous indignation of certain university oarsmen when Ten Eyck, the American, rowed secret trials at Henley. It says: "They did not spare remarks about the prostitution of English sport, but Ten Eyck's conduct was balanced by the Oxford crew. It is said that they condescended to Ten Eyck's methods."

Sporting Life, although admitting that such trials are usually considered unsportsmanlike, does not condemn it. It says that precedents exist, and cites one each on the part of Oxford and Cambridge years ago. The Field condemns the trial as regrettable.

In the meantime the Oxford rowing authors are saying nothing.

The racquet championship of the English army is now held by an American, no less a person than Lieutenant John Jacob Astor of the First Life guards, son of William Waldorf Astor, formerly an American, and at present owner of much of New York. Lieutenant Astor won the championship after a warm contest with Captain Luther of the Yorkshire light infantry. Young Astor entered the army two years ago.

The work in the great Stadium at Shepherd's Bush, where the Olympic games are to be held, is being rapidly pushed to completion, and everything will be in apple pie condition for the contests. This will be the greatest sporting arena in the history of the sport. Surrounded by tiers of seats capable of accommodating fully 70,000 people, is a huge grass plot some 235 yards in length and just under 100 yards in width. Round the edge of this arena is a cinder running path of three laps to the mile, laid out under the superintendence of the Amateur Athletic association, and outside this again is a cycling track, two and three-quarters laps of which go to the mile.

On the grass plot itself, which will be available for every kind of athletic exercise, and immediately in front of where the royal boxes will be placed when the structure is finished, is an enormous swimming tank, 327 feet long by fifty feet broad. Over most of the surface of this the water has a depth of four feet six inches, but a square section in the middle is carried down fourteen feet six inches. This part was intended for high diving competitions and a movable tower platform is to be provided for the purpose.

The games, which are expected to attract the greatest athletes of the world, will be divided into two parts—the main Olympic games, commencing on July 13, and the winter games opening on October 19. It is, of course, the swimming, the gymnastics and the athletics which will be the main feature of the Stadium from July 13 onward.

The Marathon race, however, must necessarily take place outside for the greater portion of its course, only the finish of the twenty-five miles being visible to the spectators in the arena.

Americans Won and Lost at Chess.

Vienna, April 4.—Marshall, the American chess player, made a draw with the Hungarian expert, Maroczy, in the tenth round of the international chess masters tourney to-day, while Johner, the other American, lost his game to Schlechter. The latter is again in the lead.

Prokus Defeated Blaker.

Prokus, the Greek wrestler, defeated Blaker, a student of "Farmer" Burns, at the Century theater last night in two straight falls. The first fall was secured by means of a hammer lock in fourteen minutes. The second fall was secured with a toe hold in eight and one-half minutes.

SAINTS ELECT NEW OFFICERS.

The Sunday School Convention in Independence Closed Last Night.

At the general Sunday school convention of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints in Independence yesterday afternoon these officers were elected: T. A. Hougas, Henderson, Ia., general superintendent; W. N. Robinson, Independence, E. H. Fisher, Boston, assistants; D. J. Krahl, Independence, secretary; John Smith, Lamoni, Ia., treasurer. After an address last night by Joseph Smith, president of the church, thirty-nine graduates were awarded diplomas. The convention then adjourned to meet with the general conference next year.

The Sunday School association will have charge of the services this morning at the stone church at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon a social service will be held, and the meeting at night will be in charge of the Religio society.

HOW TO TAKE MEDICINE

Follow printed directions, faithfully and persistenly, if you really expect benefit.

Remember, regarding Hood's Sarsaparilla, that it is a safe, pure medicine, a highly concentrated extract, therefore only a small dose is prescribed, to be taken three times a day before or after meals.

As a Spring Medicine—thousands upon thousands testify that it cures blood diseases, sharpens the appetite, relieves nervousness and debility.

No Equal—"I can say from experience that Hood's Sarsaparilla is without an equal." Emma L. Bowman, 11 Beacon St., Everett, Mass.

Humor—"My blood seemed full of humor, face was covered with pimples, decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and within two months was in perfect health." Hugh B. Thompson, 2 Southward St. Boston, Mass.

Do You Hear Well?

The Stolz Electrophone—A New, Scientific and Practical Invention for Those Who Are Deaf or Partially Deaf—May Now Be Tested in Your Own Home.

Responsible deaf and partially deaf people may now make a month's trial of the Electrophone in their own homes on payment of a small deposit. This is important, for a trial always proves to the most skeptical that at last, in the Electrophone, a perfect hearing appliance has been produced. Consequently, by this plan the selection of the one completely satisfactory hearing aid is made easy and inexpensive for everybody. The new discovery is a tiny electric telephone device (U. S. Pat's 855,458 and 858,984) that fits snugly to the ear and is worn with less publicity than eyeglasses are (see cut). Its purpose is to magnify the sound waves and throw them directly on the hearing nerves. This it does the instant it is applied, causing an astonishing change in the clearness and loudness of all sounds. With the Electrophone in place the deaf man or woman can walk the streets, mingle with strangers and visit the play, lecture or sermon with pleasure and profit, able to hear all ordinary sounds without strain or discomfort as naturally as an unaffected person. The only difference is that the Electrophone user wears a light, rich-looking black disc partly over one ear, the appearance of which is rather dignified than otherwise. To use the Electrophone is like getting a new ear. It works each moment, overcoming the inner buzzing and roaring ear noises, but making all outer sounds distinct and clear. At the same time it gives the hearing parts a constant delicate curative treatment. It exercises the deaf ear, just as well ears are exercised, by the passage of sound vibrations, so that after awhile most Electrophone users find their hearing has become as good as ever. In short, the Electrophone's superiority in every respect to such dangerous devices as ear drums, trumpets, horns, tubes, etc., is so great as to make the latter appear no better than toys.

"Electrophone" in Use Shows Less Than Eyeglasses.

The Electrophone Satisfies All

Read letter of Mr. W. M. Hoyt, millionaire wholesale grocer

SMALL BUT

VERY GREAT

Stolz Electrophone Co., Chicago: Gentlemen—I am pleased to say that the Electrophone is very satisfactory. Being small in size and great in hearing qualities, makes it preferable to any. I have had mine eight months. I can recommend it to all persons with defective hearing. W. M. HOYT, Michigan Ave. and River St., Chicago.

THEY SHOUTED ONCE

CAN WHISPER NOW

The Stolz Electrophone Co.: Gentlemen—Before I used the "Electrophone" people had to shout directly into my ear to make me hear anything. With it I could at once hear any person speaking in an ordinary tone 12 or 20 feet away. Now, after using the Electrophone eight months, its use so improved my natural hearing that I can hear an ordinary toned voice six to ten feet away without it. It is a wonderful instrument, and as there are so many worthless instruments on the market, I will show my appreciation to you by answering all inquiries from doubtful investigators. M. W. BENJAMIN, 5253 Prairie Ave., Chicago.

Write or call on us at once for particulars of our personal test offer. Call if you can, for we wish to give you a demonstrative test of this remarkable new aid to the deaf. If you cannot call, write. Do this without fail, for our plan is designed to work to your definite advantage. At the same time we will mail or give you our free booklet and a list of prominent and well-satisfied users of the Electrophone in Chicago and elsewhere whose word has weight and who will gladly indorse our statements. Physicians cordially invited to investigate. Address STOLZ ELECTROPHONE CO., 819 STEWART BUILDING, CHICAGO.

DRUGS RUIN THE STOMACH

Every dose of Drugs that you put into your stomach weakens your nerves. Every time you kill a pain or ache by unnatural means—by stupefying the nerves with poisonous drugs, you are hurting them, and anyone can see that in time, by steady dosing, your nervous system will be broken down completely.

Drugs not only weaken the nerves, but they upset the stomach, rendering it unable to supply the nourishment for the nerves and organs of the body. Drugs destroy the digestive juices of the stomach, therefore you do not get the proper nourishment from your food. You may eat heartily, but if your digestive apparatus is out of order you don't get much good out of your food.

ELECTRO-VIGOR CURES WITHOUT DRUGS

Why don't you don't you stop it? You are still doctoring? But changing doctors does not cure your sickness. You are trying one medicine after the other with the same disgusting disappointment. Patent medicines do you no good. You are a drug doser and the only change in your bodily condition is for the worse. Why don't you stop this drug habit? Why don't you avail yourself of the modern remedy? Proceed on nature's own lines. Use the life-giving, healing, strengthening forces of Electricity. This is the Electric Age. You can see on every hand the wonders of Electricity.

Electro-Vigor is a relief from the old habit—the drug habit. It does by natural means what you expect drugs to do by unnatural means. It gives real strength to your body, and when your body has its natural strength there can't be any pain, for there is no pain in a perfectly healthy body.

Electro-Vigor is a dry cell body battery, which you wear about your waist while you sleep. It is always charged, ready for use, and generates its own power constantly. Electro-Vigor is not like the electric belt you know—there is no charging to do—no vinegar or acid solution to bother with, and we have perfected it with a regulation device which makes the current mild or strong at will.

Electro-Vigor is the grandest invention of the age for sick people. The surest, easiest cure for all nervous and chronic diseases. Its wonderful power is directed to the seat of the nervous system, through which its vitalizing strength penetrates into all of the body, carrying new life to every function which has been weakened by excesses or dissipation, restoring energy to the brain and power to the vital organs. No sick man, no sickly or delicate woman will ever regret a fair trial of Electro-Vigor, which is nature's restorer of vitality. It will cure Rheumatism, Nervous Debility, Weak Stomach, Kidney and Liver Troubles, Lame Back, Sciatica and all ailments in Men and Women.

CONSULTATION FREE—FREE BOOK

We want to tell you more about Electro-Vigor. Can't you find time to call at our office? If not, send for our 100-page book, which is beautifully illustrated and is FREE for the asking, and you will learn more about our great invention and what it does. Send to-day for FREE BOOK.

WOMEN'S MANIA FOR DRESS

MISS GRACE GEORGE'S DECIDED OPINIONS ON THE SUBJECT.

"Money Sits Enthroned in Our Country and Dress Is the Power Behind the Throne," Says the Actress.

Miss Grace George, who comes to the Willis Wood theater for four performances begining to-morrow night, is compelled by stage requirements to wear many expensive and fashionable gowns in "Divorcons," but she has some decided opinions regarding the mania for dress which has seized the women of America.

"The dress problem," says Miss George, "is one of vital importance inasmuch as women's mania for fine apparel is largely responsible for man's mania for money making. The problem is almost a double header. Money sits enthroned in our country and dress is the power behind the throne. I honestly believe the average man, reproved by his wife for overattention to business, would gladly lessen the grind if it were possible for him to do so and still pay her bills. The average man has a normal longing for the simple life. It is the women who make necessities of luxuries. The cost of women's apparel, if the wearer wishes to keep up-to-date, undoubtedly is extravagant. When a woman pays $1,500 for a single gown and declares that she has nothing to wear if her wardrobe does not contain at least twenty or thirty creations, when boots cost $18 a pair, when an equipment of lingerie can run into the thousands, and hats cost from $50 to $100 each, it naturally follows that the man who provides them must work overtime or go into bankruptcy. Of course, he sometimes does both.

Work

Here is a point for wage earners to consider:

In the last four years the administrations with which Beardsley has been identified have expended nearly $800,000 for permanent improvements. Constructive work. Work that employed labor.

You may not have worked on any of these improvements yourselves. But if they hadn't been carried out the men who did do the work might have been hunting your jobs.

"Women are not so much to blame for extravagance. It is rather the conditions by which they are surrounded. Women do not really dress for the men—they dress for other women. The woman, who wants to keep up in her set and maintain her social status (and surely no woman can be blamed for that) must always be well-gowned. A man may have a decorative fringe at the bottom of his trousers, or they may be a trifle glazed and baggy at the knee, without being ostracized by his friends or black-balled at the club. Very few women have the moral courage to endure the polite sneers of their own sex because they are not strictly up-to-date in the mode or texture of their apparel.

"A tailor patronized by New York's fashionable set told me not long ago that she had received a letter from a widely known man begging her not to let his wife have any more frocks, as he had reached the limit of his means. I know of a woman perfectly sound morally whose dressmaking bills ran up to such a figure that sooner than present them to her husband she borrowed the money from another man. She expected to save the amount out of her allowance, but other temptations of dress followed and in the end, when the truth became known to her husband, she was in such a compromising position that he sued for a divorce.

"It is pitiful that what is worn outside of one should be such an important factor of life, but it is unquestionably true—not only true of wealthy people, but proportionately with the middle class. This condition exists in every city in the land. There are two fashion magazines published in this country to every one devoted to literature. It has become simply impossible for women to converse for twenty minutes without 'dress' becoming the dominant theme."

MORE EVIDENCE AGAINST CARR.

A Witness Says He Saw the Accused Man Hide the Bloody Overcoat.

NEWTON, KAS., April 4.—An important link in the chain of evidence against William T. Carr, who is in jail in Marion charged with the murder of Express Messenger Oscar A. Bailey and the robbery of the express car on train No. 115 last Sunday morning, was discovered by the police to-day when a witness was found who declares that early Tuesday morning he saw Carr hide the package containing the bloody overcoat with the jewelry in the pockets in the closet adjoining the Simmons billiard parlors. He also says he saw Carr with a cigar box under his arm but did not see him hide it. This may have been the box containing the money, found under the display window.

Carr was visited in the jail at Marion to-day by his wife and children, also his father-in-law, W. C. Simmons of Newton. He still maintains his innocence. The preliminary hearing will be held in Marion next Wednesday morning. Sam Burkholder, county attorney, will prosecute, and he will be assisted by W. H. Carpenter an attorney of Marion, who has been hired by the Wells-Fargo Express company. Carr will be represented by D. W. Wheeler of Marion.

STATE OFFICERS GO TO COURT.

A Suit to Test the Rights of the State Board of Education in Oklahoma.

GUTHRIE, OK., April 4.—Judge W. A. Ledbetter of Ardmore filed an action tonight in the Oklahoma supreme court in behalf of the board of regents of the state university to test the authority of the state board of education which recently named the heads of the state university and the Tonkawa preparatory school. Governor Haskell is chairman of the board of education.

Attorney General West held in an opinion that the board of education had such power and the appointments were made upon his advice. The suit is of a friendly nature and it is conceded that a decision by the supreme court is the only satisfactory means of settling the question of authority of the various boards. The regents have expressed themselves freely as being dissatisfied with the opinion of the attorney general.

BLACK HAND AFTER A SHERIFF.

An Oklahoma City Official Receives a Threatening Letter.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK., April 4.—Admitting that he had received a letter signed "Black Hand," threatening him with death, Sheriff Garrison to-day declined to divulge its contents. He said that he was satisfied that one or more Anarchists are now in this city. During the past few weeks Sheriff Garrison has waged a strenuous war on violations of the prohibitory law and gamblers.

EMALINE IS LOST AGAIN.

The Fudge Boils and Brings Disaster to the Junior Clerk.

There was a time when the junior clerk was the best mathematician in the office. But as the office boy gathered up the waste paper that had been thrown on the floor near the junior clerk's desk, he realized that time was passed.

"Mind ain't as clear as it used to be?" the office boy observed, addressing nobody in particular.

"Shut up!" the junior clerk growled.

"Oh, pickles, ain't you the grouchy guy?" the office boy bantered. "Say! whose fault was it; yours or Emaline's?"

No answer.

"Bad habit I got, talkin' to myself," the office boy mused. "Come on an' tell," he asked.

Slowly the junior clerk turned upon his chair and looked sadly at the office boy. "I'd like to choke you," he said, "but I won't. I'll save you for sometime when I'm madder. Then I'll step on your face."

"Guess it was all Emaline's fault anyhow," the office boy said. He wasn't afraid.

"Wasn't either," the junior clerk snapped, "none o' your business anyhow."

"Aw, go on an' tell," the office boy urged.

"Well," the junior clerk said finally, "if you go an' bawl this out on me, there'll be a smell o' fresh roses in your house. That's all.

"You see, Emaline got me out o' jail an' everything went along fine. Then last night, I goes out to call. Emaline played everything she knew on th' piano an' then we held hands for a while. Then Emaline gets hungry.

"'Let's make fudge,' she says. 'All right, says I.' So we goes to th' kitchen to get th' chafin' dish. I'm carryin' it in and Emaline she goes ahead through th' swingin' door. Th' door slips from her hand just as I'm goin' through and it didn't do a thing to that chafin' dish. I got a swat on th' front of my dome that nearly laid me out and I'd ought to known better right there than to keep goin'. Something was about to happen. But you can't do anything with a fool.

"Course Emaline she kissed th' bump to make it well and—but that aint any of your business.

"Well, I straightens out the chafin' dish and we goes ahead to make fudge. We had it boilin' away fine."

"Then what happened?" the office boy asked.

"Quit buttin' in, will you?" the junior clerk said testily. "Aint this bad enough without you workin' your lungs overtime? You're worse'n a cuckoo clock—always howlin at th' wrong time."

"Ain't sayin' a word," the office boy replied. "Honest, you've got th' meanest disposition I—but go on, I won't stop you."

"Well," the junior clerk continued, "I had on one o' Emaline's aprons an' we was waitin' for the stuff to boil. So I just thought I'd see if Emaline'd marry me. I puts my arm around her. 'Do you love me?' I asks.

'Oh, mush!" the office boy exclaimed.

"Shut up," the junior clerk snapped. "Then Emaline looks kinda soft and says of course she loverd me.

"'An' will lovey pet marry me?' I asks.

"'Y-a-a-h-h-h,' Emaline bawls out, 'it's a-boilin' over!'

"I jumps toward the dish to take th' fudge off an' I tripped on the apron. Course I started to fall an' my arms was goin' like a flock o' wind mills. One o' my fists hit th' fudge an' knocked it off th' table. Th' next minute Emaline was singin' th' anvil chorus in 'Tanhauser' at th' same time an' jumpin' around like a frost-bitten shanghai. Th' whole kettle o' fudge had gone on her feet. I got excited, an' grabbed th' water pitcher an' threw th' whole thing on Emaline. Maw runs in an' asks what's th' matter.

"'Get me a boat,' Emaline yells, 'he's a-drownin' me!'

"Paw runs in an' grabs me around th' neck an' throws th' chafing dish out th' door.

"'Get out o' here,' he yells, an' he kicked me after it."

The junior clerk paused for a moment and took a small object from his pocket.

"It's her ring," he said sadly, "got it back this morning. But I'm going to marry that girl yet!"

The office boy didn't laugh. He was becoming used to misfortune.

A WARNING AND AN ASSURANCE

At every recurring election the apprehension arises lest fraud may be perpetrated against the ballot. With the record of this board of election commissioners as an assurance, it ought not to be necessary to say that every precaution within our power is being taken to prevent all such frauds and that no effort will be omitted to bring to just punishment every species of fraud against the ballot. No man who votes or attempts to vote illegally need expect to escape the penalties of the law which are properly made extremely severe.

No qualified voter need fear that the secrecy of his ballot will be exposed. For an election official to pry into the manner in which any man votes is made a felony punishable with imprisonment in the penitentiary and should any such case occur the offender will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

In order for a man to vote without committing a penitentiary offense, he must not only be duly registered in the precinct where he offers to vote, but he must also possess all the qualifications of a legal voter, and in cases of previous conviction of any crime which deprives a man of the right to vote, he cannot vote unless he shall have been duly restored to the rights of citizenship according to law.

Music and Musicians

A Grand Opera Star at Lindsborg.

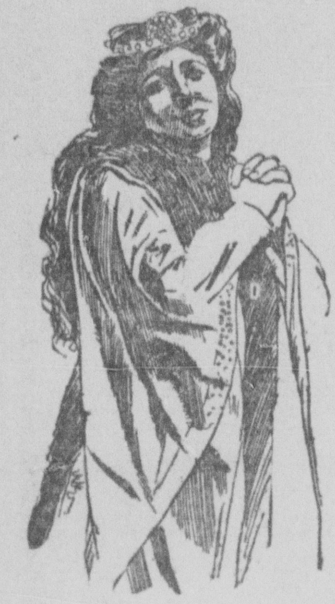
A new star will arise at Lindsborg the y of "The Messiah" opening April 12. pollo Musagetes, presiding over the reat musical festival, has let down the olden bars for other luminaries of equal agnitude, perhaps; none with the pe- liar distinction that attaches to Mme. rieda Langendorff. She is pre-eminent- a Wagnerian singer. To bring poetry to the vocalization of that composer's onorous classicism is achievement. To re from the ponderous majesty of his eroic and romantic themes a rhythmic d beguiling strain is realization. To italize with his own personality his ately and imposing phrase and quicken with the beauty of his intention is one ith miracle. All this it has been re- erved for Mme. Langendorff to do. The oyal seal was set upon her voice when erratic Mme. Cosima Wagner, "queen of Bayreuth," heard it in "Die Walkure" and descended from her throne's rarefied elevation to crown the singer with bay leaves from Wagner's immortelle.



MME. FRIEDA LANGENDORFF.

Mme. Langendorff will return to Bayreuth next summer. Whether or not she will again be persuaded America way from the people who acclaim her their true prophet is a riddle of futurity. It is indeed doubtful if another occasion, other than "The Messiah" festival, will be big enough to bring her to the Middle West. Possibly not even "The Messiah;" for it is only by courtesy of R. E. Johnston, impresario, thatt she has been detached from the Metropolitan Grand Opera company long enough to meet her three engagements, Sunday, Wednesday and Friday, in Lindsborg. So it is not strange that in musical circles there is more than usual stir; gathering of the clans for hegira to "The Messiah" mecca, to hear the supreme Wagnerian interpreter in the full glory of her favorite roles.

The Last Salon Concert.

Mrs. Ella Backus-Behr will conclude her series of five chamber concerts the afternoon of Friday, April 10, in the salon of the Willis Wood theater, with these Beethoven numbers:

Trio, Op. 1.
Adelaide.
Trio, ten variations.
Sonate, Op. 27.

She will be assisted by Frederick Curth, violinist; Afred Buch, 'cellist, and Paul C. Baltz, tenor.

A feature of these concerts, which began in December, has been a group of solos by Mrs. Behr, an artist whose brilliant rendition has brought her ever widening audience into closer harmony with the characterization of the master she has interpreted. A special treat in the promise of Friday's programme is that Beethoven particularly excelled in chamber music, which Mrs. Behr's concerts have made so popular here. He is the greatest exponent of the symphonic classical. The independence and originality of his compositions, united with his interesting individuality and his melancholy history, make subtle appeal to lovers of music.

The Sunshine Circle's Concert.

A concert for the evening of Friday, April 10, has been arranged by the Sunshine circle of the First Presbyterian church, Tenth street and Forest avenue; Mrs. Darnell, contralto; Miss Barbee, soprano; Roy Hall, baritone; Lawrence Robbins, organist; Mrs. McCarty, harpist; Miss Gladys Myers, pianist; Miss Alma Eaton, violinist. There will be two illustrated songs—"Good-bye, Sweetheart," by Miss Zeline Morrell, and "Rock of Ages," the solo parts by Miss Ruth Twing and Miss Annis Elliott, with the assistance of other members of the sextet, Miss Zeline Morrell, Miss Majorie Brooks, Miss Ethel Arnold and Miss Gladys Logan. In addition to musical numbers, which will inclue a duet, "Crimson Glow of Sunset," by Miss Pearl Collins and Mrs. Davis Ware, much entertainment will be furnished by the circle's humorous drill.

The Sunshine circle, organized last October by Mrs. Edna Ragland, is an association of fifteen high school girls pledged to carry sunshine into the lives of others, to promote home happiness, to say the cheery word and do the kindly deed wherever opportunity permits. They meet weekly. The first Friday afternoon in the month is occupied with circle business and sewing; the second with physical culture; the third with charitable work, visiting hospitals, relieving affliction in any form; the fourth with spiritual lectures. Mrs. Edna Ragland is president of the Sunchine circle; Miss Ruth Twing, treasurer; Miss Mary Walker, secretary.

Francis Rea Macmillen, the distinguished young American violinist who is making his second tour of his native country this year, will play in the Willis Wood theater Sunday evening, April 12. He bids fair to outrival any of his competitors in the matter of assisting artists, carrying with him Mme. Rosina Van Dyk, the Dutch soprano, and Herr Richard Hageman, the celebrated pianist, also of Holland. Mme. Rosina Van Dyk is a soprano of reputation and attainment, her latest engagement being colerature singer at the Amsterdam Royal Opera. She comes from artistic stock, her mother being Frau Van Ophemert Schwencke, at one time one of Germany's greatest dramatic sopranos. Mme. Van Dyk was a pupil of Frau Selma Kempner, the famous Berlin singing teacher. She made her debut in Berlin in 1901 in the part of the Queen of the "Huguenots," scoring instant success. Herr Richard Hageman's family occupied for several generations a prominent place in the music of Europe. His father was a director of the Royal Conservatoire of Amsterdam, and his mother was court singer under King Wilhelm III of the Netherlands. At the age of 16 he was engaged as accompanist at the Royal opera at Amsterdam, and at 18 conducted for the first time the opera "Herodiade."

Miss Frances Donovan, a pupil of Rudolf King, will play the following programme at her studio piano recital on the evening of Thursday, April 9:

| | |
|---|---|
| Sonata in E minor | Scarlotti |
| Reverie | Brassin |
| Soaring | Schumann |
| Etincelles | Moszkowski |
| Valse de Concert | Arensky |
| Grand Etude | Jaell |
| Renonveau | Godard |
| Nocturne op. 15 No. 2 | Chopin |
| Le Bal | Rubinstein |

Another musician of note has opened studios here, Mme. von Hampsen, a German aristocrat, a soloist well known in European centers, and a teacher of rare experience. She comes direct from Berlin, where she sang "Freischutz" with "Musik corps des Fus. Regis Konigen," "Rigoletto" with Funk's Symphony orchestra and a repertoire of German songs. Mme. von Hampsen sings in German, English, Italian, Danish, Swedish and Norwegian. She studied the piano, harmony and composition with Walter Petzet and was also a pupil of Lili Lehman in Berlin.

Hans Albert, for years concert master of Theodore Thomas's orchestra, will be the violin soloist at a pianola concert given by the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music company, in the New Casino hall, 1023 Broadway, Wednesday evening, April 8. Miss Callie Clark, soprano, will assist. F. A. Briggs will be at the pianola.

Monday evening, April 13, Alfred H. Lough, concert organist, will play in the Auditorium, Topeka. The organ there is the largest in the Middle West. It is composed of four manuals and has a set of chimes. The formal opening of the instrument was by the eminent organist, Clarence Eddy, several years ago.

William H. Sherwood, whose playing has been designated the rarest treat of pianistic excellence since the days of Rubinstein, will be heard in the Willis Wood theater Friday, May 1. His last appearance here was in the old Coates, ten years ago. This recital will be under the direction of Miss Josephine Ridgeway Rea.

Friday, April 10, in the auditorium of the Kansas City conservatory, Prof. E. D. Phillips, principal of the Manual Training High school, will talk on "The Art That Fails and the Art That Endures," a lecture he has several times delivered with manifest success. The entertainment will be opened and concluded with musical numbers by Miss Georgia Maurice and Miss Posie West.

Prof. W. H. Luettke, the West Side's talented pianist, will give a recital in the Central Avenue Methodist church, Tenth and Central streets, Kansas City, Kas., the evening of April 24. He will be assisted by Clyde Pickell, baritone, and Mrs. Joseph Landry, violinist.

Miss Zella May Collins, pupil of Miss E. Geneve Lichtenwalter, will be heard in her introductory piano recital at Lee's Summit, Mo., Thursday evening, April 9. She will be assisted by Miss Nina Martin, reader, and Joe Mullen, baritone.

A Grandson for "Ironquill."

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Ware, 650 Oakland avenue, Kansas City, Kas., announce the birth of a son—a grandson of Eugene Ware.

The Death of Edward Hartman.

Edward Hartman, 84 years old, died last night at the home of his son, 3005 North Nineteenth street, Kansas City, Kas.

Walnut Street Easter Sales!

The big Walnut Street Store, with nearly an acre to a floor, has not even had its opening yet. It has simply been busy selling, selling, selling with all the power and drive and incentive of a big enterprise with big ideals and big purposes.

Like that great naturalist, Agassiz, we "haven't had time for display."

We will have an opening some day. And it will be an event that you will remember for many a day thereafter. In the meantime, with Easter close upon us, the swing and the beat of the crowds on our pavements and on our floors, the call is to business, not display.

The merchandise must be sold, because people are demanding merchandise. Later on, we'll have the bands of music.

Now, to-morrow, the next day and the next, we're going to give you the highest grade silk and other dress fabrics, hats and shoes at the Lowest Known Cost.

WHEN WINGED DRAGONS SAILED OVER KANSAS.

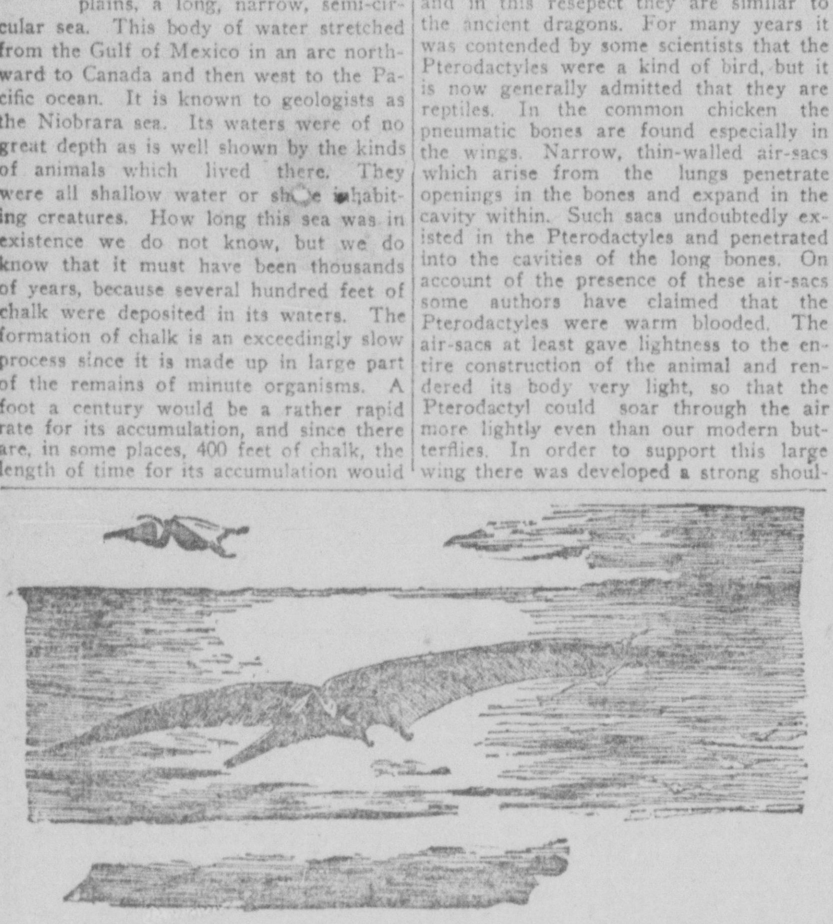
AGES AGO, SCIENTISTS SAY, THESE FEARSOME CREATURES PREYED UPON THE FISHES OF THE "NIOBRARA SEA"

LONG before the Rocky mountains came into existence there was, so scientists say, in the western part of what is now the Great plains, a long, narrow, semi-circular sea. This body of water stretched from the Gulf of Mexico in an arc northward to Canada and then west to the Pacific ocean. It is known to geologists as the Niobrara sea. Its waters were of no great depth as is well shown by the kinds of animals which lived there. They were all shallow water or shore inhabiting creatures. How long this sea was in existence we do not know, but we do know that it must have been thousands of years, because several hundred feet of chalk were deposited in its waters. The formation of chalk is an exceedingly slow process since it is made up in large part of the remains of minute organisms. A foot a century would be a rather rapid rate for its accumulation, and since there are, in some places, 400 feet of chalk, the length of time for its accumulation would thus be seen to be some thousands of years.



THIS GIANT WINGED DRAGON ONCE SAILED OVER KANSAS.

In the Niobrara sea there lived many kinds of fishes, turtles of gigantic proportions sometimes, and many curious sea reptiles. They were all, with the exception of the turtles, armed with strong teeth set deep in the sockets of their jaws. The student may read on the bones of these reptiles, as they are preserved in the chalk, evidences of many a severe sea battle. The bones are sometimes broken and have grown together again, but more often are merely scratched and grooved by the teeth of the angry reptiles. On the shores and in the air above the sea lived birds with teeth, and curious flying dragons. These dragons were most extraordinary creatures, whose bones are found in deposits of a similar age in many parts of the world. The flying dragons scientists call Pterodactyles, from two Greek words meaning wing-finger; a very appropriate term.

These creatures were inhabitants of the air. They spent the time while not on the wing, resting on the cliffs or hangng in the trees which grew near the sea. But so perfectly were the creatures adapted for life in the air that they probably could soar for days without a rest. As there were days and nights then as now, however, the Pterodactyles undounbtedly went to roost at night. Their legs were too weak to support the weight of the body and wings, so these strange creatures suspended themselves from the cliffs and trees by claws which were developed on the wings, very much as the bats rest during the day, only bats suspend themselves by their hind legs instead of by their wings.

WERE PRACTICALLY ALL WINGS.

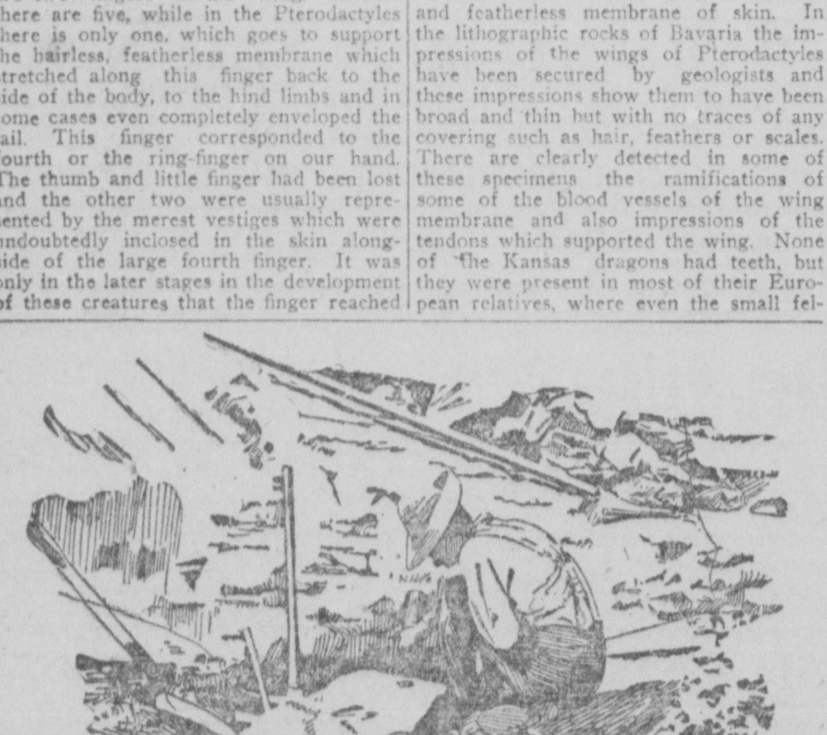
The Pterodactyles, which soared above the Niobrara sea and caught fish from its waters, were for the most part wings. The rest of the body seems to have existed solely for the purpose of sustaining the wings. There was one huge creature whose bones are now in the Kansas university museum, whose wings stretched over an expanse of more than nineteen feet and whose entire body, wings and all, probably did not weigh more than twenty-five pounds. The wings were unlike the wings of bats and birds. In birds there are two "fingers" in the wing. In bats there are five, while in the Pterodactyles there is only one, which goes to support the hairless, featherless membrane which stretched along this finger back to the side of the body, to the hind limbs and in some cases even completely enveloped the tail. This finger corresponded to the fourth or the ring-finger on our hand. The thumb and little finger had been lost and the other two were usually represented by the merest vestiges which were undoubtedly inclosed in the skin alongside of the large fourth finger. It was only in the later stages in the development of these creatures that the finger reached this enormous length. As the wings developed the legs diminished in strength and usefulness until, by the time the wings had attained the maximum of their development, the legs were practically useless.



EXCAVATING FOR FOSSIL BONES IN THE CHALK CLIFFS OF KANSAS.

The bones of the wing were very long and about the middle of the wing there was a peculiar joint which would admit of movement over more than half a circle, a very unusual occurrence among animals. All of the bones of the Pterodactyles were hollow and some of them were pneumatic. The walls of the bones, in most cases, had the thickness of ordinary blotting paper and of course in the rocks the bones are always crushed flat. Pneumatic bones are developed in the modern birds and in this resepect they are similar to the ancient dragons. For many years it was contended by some scientists that the Pterodactyles were a kind of bird, but it is now generally admitted that they are reptiles. In the common chicken the pneumatic bones are found especially in the wings. Narrow, thin-walled air-sacs which arise from the lungs penetrate openings in the bones and expand in the cavity within. Such sacs undoubtedly existed in the Pterodactyles and penetrated into the cavities of the long bones. On account of the presence of these air-sacs some authors have claimed that the Pterodactyles were warm blooded. The air-sacs at least gave lightness to the entire construction of the animal and rendered its body very light, so that the Pterodactyl could soar through the air more lightly even than our modern butterflies. In order to support this large wing there was developed a strong shoulder girdle and this was in turn supported by a solid piece in the backbone formed of several fused vertebrae.

A BEAK FOR A SPEAR.

The head of the Kansas dragons was toothless and the jaws, in a measure, resemble the jaws of the pelican. The Pterodactyles, too, may have had a large gular pouch like the pelicans. Unlike the pelican, the beak of the Kansas dragons was sharp, so it may at times have been used as a spear-like weapon for catching the Niobrara fishes which formed its principal diet, as we know from the petrified stomach contents. Some of the Kansas dragons had a sharp crest on top of the head, and this projected back over the neck. It served as a place of attachment for the muscles which supported the huge head, which was out of proportion to the rest of the body. This crest in one form is produced so far backwards as to be as long as the skull itself, so the creature must have presented an extraordinary appearance with its neck located in the middle of the elongated head.

The eyes were very large and were surrounded by a ring of bony plates such as the owl has to-day. These plates aided the creature's powers of vision and were thus of use to the Pterodactyles in their search for food. The ring of plates was present in many of the sea reptiles of that time, but it has largely disappeared from the present day animals.

The body of the Pterodactyles was very small in comparision with the size of the wings. It was just large enough to keep the wings supplied with nourishment, and since most of the nourishment went to the wings, the other and unused parts of the body became weakened. The legs thus lost, in great measure, their efficiency and the feet became mere useless appendages. If the Pterodactyles laid eggs, as is probable, the eggs must have been long and slender. If we take into consideration that the Pterodactyle chick must have had an expanse of wing, in the largest forms at least, of nearly a foot at the time of hatching, it becomes a matter of wonder how the little creature could have folded itself up inside an egg.

The Kansas dragons and all of their relatives were covered with a hairless and featherless membrane of skin. In the lithographic rocks of Bavaria the impressions of the wings of Pterodactyles have been secured by geologists and these impressions show them to have been broad and thin but with no traces of any covering such as hair, feathers or scales. There are clearly detected in some of these specimens the ramifications of some of the blood vessels of the wing membrane and also impressions of the tendons which supported the wing. None of the Kansas dragons had teeth, but they were present in most of their European relatives, where even the small fellows, the size of an English sparrow, had long, sharp, straight teeth. The teeth of some of the Pterodactyles are peculiar in that they point forward instead of backward as they do in all other reptiles. It would seem as if the teeth would have been a hindrance rather than an aid to them in feeding.

LIVED 25 MILLION YEARS AGO.

All of the Kansas dragons had short tails, but in some of their relatives beyond the Atlantic the tail was very long and a few forms had an expansion at the end which may have served as a rudder to guide the flight of these creatures just as the tails of birds do to-day. All of the dragons from Kansas are large and none have an expanse of wing of less than five feet.

It has been many, many eons of time since the last of the dragons of the air perished. Geologists estimate it at about 25 to 30 millions of years, a few million years, more or less, cutting little figure in such guesses. We do not know when the Pterodactyles came into existence, but we do know that the first evidences we have of them are bones which represent fully developed dragons. After the elevation of the land in the middle west which caused the waters of the Niobrara sea to subside, the Pterodactyles perished from off the face of the earth, and we know them no more, for they have left no descendants.

FAINT HOPE OF A HAIR CUT.

This Man Will Shun Barbers Until Bryan Is Elected.

If W. J. Bryan is elected president of the United States this year "Uncle" Thomas Benton Robertson of Macon, Mo., immediately will hike to a barber shop for a shave and a hair cut. Then he will draw on a Quincy bank for $100 which has been lying there to his credit conditional upon a Democrat's election since the year 1896.

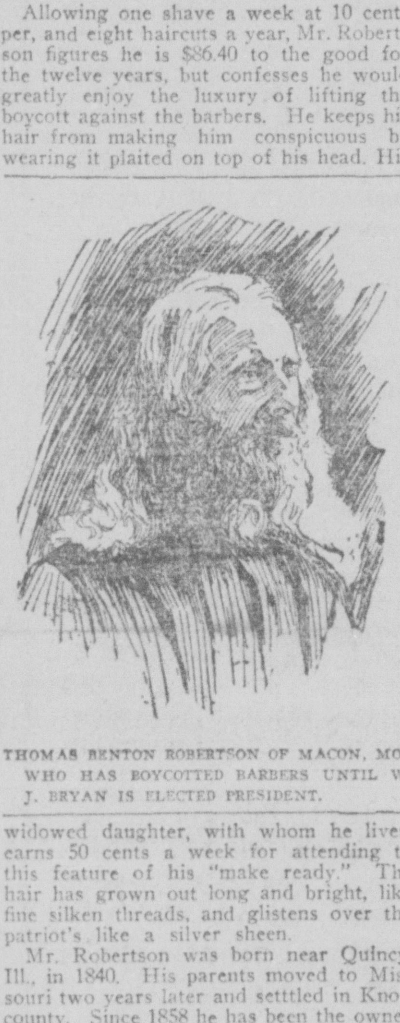
When Mr. Robertson read Bryan's "cross of gold" speech that stampeded the Democratic convention at Chicago in 1896, he threw his hat in the air and shouted "Glory!" His cousin, Charles Winfield of Quincy, Ill., suggested that there might be a slip between the cup and the Nebraskan's lips.

"Don't you believe it!" said Robertson. "That man's going to be President. I'm so sure of it that I will agree here and now never again to shave or cut my hair until he or some other Democrat is President."

"Pshaw!" said Winfield, "you're only talking, but I'll tell you what I'll do. If you keep that pledge I'll give you $200 the day a Democrat is elected and will deposit $100 to your credit at Quincy."

Robertson was 50 years of age then and was a tall, fine looking man. He was more than ordinarily careful about his personal appearance and Winfield didn't think he would run the risk of becoming an oddity. But the Bryan admirer accepted the challenge and has kept his compact faithfully through all the defeats of the "inspired son."

Allowing one shave a week at 10 cents per, and eight haircuts a year, Mr. Robertson figures he is $86.40 to the good for the twelve years, but confesses he would greatly enjoy the luxury of lifting the boycott against the barbers. He keeps his hair from making him conspicuous by wearing it plaited on top of his head. His widowed daughter, with whom he lives, earns 50 cents a week for attending to this feature of his "make ready." The hair has grown out long and bright, like fine silken threads, and glistens over the patriot's like a silver sheen.



THOMAS BENTON ROBERTSON OF MACON, MO., WHO HAS BOYCOTTED BARBERS UNTIL W. J. BRYAN IS ELECTED PRESIDENT.

Mr. Robertson was born near Quincy, Ill., in 1840. His parents moved to Missouri two years later and setttled in Knox county. Since 1858 he has been the owner and operator of a portable sawmill, and is in that business now. To distinguish him from the various other Robertsons in the vicinity his friends and neighbors call him "Sawmill" Robertson.

"If you get this story up right and don't stretch it too bad," said Mr. Robertson, "I'm going to send Mr. Bryan a copy of the paper, and ask him if it ain't about time I cut my hair. I'm going to put it directly up to him."

CANDY NOT BAD FOR TEETH.

A Dentist on Development and Maintenance of Good Teeth.

From the Boston Transcript.

In his lecture at the Harvard Medical school, Dr. Charles A. Brackett made it plain that eating confectionery is not particularly conductive to decay. He said that the evil of candy eating on the teeth is much exaggerated, a reasonable amount of sugar being needed in the system for production of heat, especially in cold weather and for hard working people. He commended the action of Queen Victoria in sending large quantities of chocolate to her soldiers in remote places, thereby affording them an element of diet that they needed.

That the teeth that last the longest are necessarily harder than those that decay soonest, he said, does not necessarily follow, and the reverse is often true, the real reason for decay of the teeth being acids in the mouth caused by debris of food that may rest there and become fermented by the micro-organisms that are always in the mouth.

Acids thus created, he said, disintegrate lime salts, and they attack and cause the hardest teeth to decay, if they can but find entrance to the body of the tooth, by means of some natural fissure in the enamel, which is often found in teeth of the very best quality. Hence, he argued, the only sure prevention of decay is the most perfect cleanliness of the mouth, particularly at night, when the opportunity for the microbes to carry on their disintegrating work is much longer than between meals in the daytime.

Dr. Brackett commended an idea of a Philadelphia dentist who takes a contract to preserve the teeth of his patients, charging them a nominal sum to keep their teeth clean by means of a monthly scouring with pumice. So salutary is that simple treatment in their preservation that he voluntarily engages to repair without extra charge any evidences of decay that appear from time to time during his care of the teeth.

Rough on the Candidate.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

"There's a candidate outside, wantin' to see you," said the hired man.

"Hang the candidate!" exclaimed the farmer.

And the hired man went out muttering: "I hain't lynched a man in a mighty long time, but ef he ain't too much fer me, I'll foller instructions."

OKLAHOMA'S RIVER NAMES

WHITE MEN HAVE DISCARDED MANY EUPHONIOUS INDIAN TITLES.

The Early Day Teamster Preferred "Salt Fork" to "Neskatunga"—Spaniard and French Had a Part in Denominating the Streams.

A few days after the passage of the enabling act which provided for the admission of Oklahoma as a state into the Union, an Eastern newspaper printed an outline map of the proposed new state, showing only its boundaries and the courses of its principal streams and beneath the map were the following significant words:

"Look at the rivers! Is it any wonder that a state with so many fertile valleys should be a veritable garden?"

Oklahoma is, indeed, a land of rivers. Across the state flow no less than a dozen large streams from the highland states to the north and west, each with its fertile valley. Besides these rivers there are several others which have their sources within the bounds of the state.

The drainage system of Oklahoma consists of the Arkansas and Red rivers and their numerous tributaries. The Arkansas has its source in the Rocky mountains of Colorado. Two of its principal tributaries, the Canadian and the Cimarron, have there sources in the mountains or Northeastern New Mexico, as has the North Canadian also. The Red river and several of its principal tributaries have their sources in the high plains of the Texas Panhandle country.

Of the discovery, exploration and naming of the rivers of Oklahoma there does not seem to be much in the way of popular information. The nomenclature of its streams has been varied as well as interesting, for, besides those names that are of Indian origin, the languages of no less than three nations of white men are represented in river names. Some of the rivers of Oklahoma have had several names while, oddly enough, others have been so nearly nameless as to be commonly distinguished from neighboring streams merely by the use of a qualifying prefix such, for instance, as the so-called Salt Fork of the Red river. Again, there are duplications of stream names such, for instance, as the Little river, which is tributary to the Canadian in the central part of the state, and the Little river, which is tributary to the Red river in the southeastern part of the state. Obviously, for the sake of proper distinction or identification, some of these streams should be renamed or, more appropriately, they should have their original Indian names restored.

When the first white men explored the region immediately east of Oklahoma they found it peopled by a tribe of Indians variously known as the Aguapa (Quapaw), Akausa, Arkansa, etc., all of which are believed to have been different forms of the same term. From this tribe, the remnants of which (now known as the Quapaw) have lived in Oklahoma for nearly three-quarters of a century, the Arkansas river took its name. The old hypothesis that the word Arkansas is the result of a combination of the French word "arc" (meaning "a bend" or "a bow") and the Indian word "Kansas" (erroneously supposed to have meant "smoky water") is without foundation in fact. The Quapaw (or Arkansa) and Kansas (or Kaw) tribes of Indians were originally of the same stock (Siouan) and their respective languages had many words in common. Some of the numerous forms of their respective tribal names were so similar as to suggest the possibility that these, too, might have been identical as to their original signification. By the Kaw and Osage Indians the Arkansas was called the Neshusta, meaning "muddy water." The Spanish name for the Arkansas was Rio Nepeste, which is supposed to be a corruption of the Osage Neshusta.

The Neosho, which is tributary to the Arkansas, was named by the Osage Indians, the signification being "plenty of water" or "always water," in contradistinction to some of the rivers of the plains whose sandy beds were often dry. By the early French explorers and traders the Neosho was known in its lower course as the Grand river, an appellation, by the way, which was frequently used by French pioneers in attempting to distinguish streams of considerable size. The French also may be credited with having named the Verdigris, the Poteau and the Illinois. The Verdigris was probably so named on account of the color of the rocks in its channel at the season of low water. The word Poteau means "a post" or "a pillar." The Illinois was doubtless named by some venturesome trapper from the Creole French settlements of Kaskaskia or Cahokia in the Illinois country east of the Mississippi. The naming of these streams will perhaps be better understood if the fact be borne in mind that most of the French pioneers who traversed this southwestern country before the coming of the Anglo-American explorers and frontiersmen were engaged in trapping for beaver or trading with the Indians.

The so-called Salt Fork of the Arkansas has borne several names, the original Osage Indian name having been Ne-su-ke-tonga, literally, "the river of the turkey gobbler." This was eventually contracted or corrupted into Nescatungo, by which name the river was designated on atlas maps and charts as late as forty years ago. Indeed, it is still called Nescatunga in its upper course, above the Kansas line. The early French explorer had barely tasted its salty waters, nor asked its name of his Osage guide as he promptly christened it the Grand Saline. In a later time, when the American bullwhacker came to risk its uncertain fords with his wagon trains and herds, he modernized its name, rendering the not unpoetic Grand Saline of his Creole forerunner into the very prosaic Salt Fork. The bullwhacker may have been—probably was—very necessary in his own day and way, but as a geographer he was neither appreciative nor appropriate. For how can Salt Fork, as such, ever hope to get into the same class with the Juniata, the Suwanee and the Wabash?

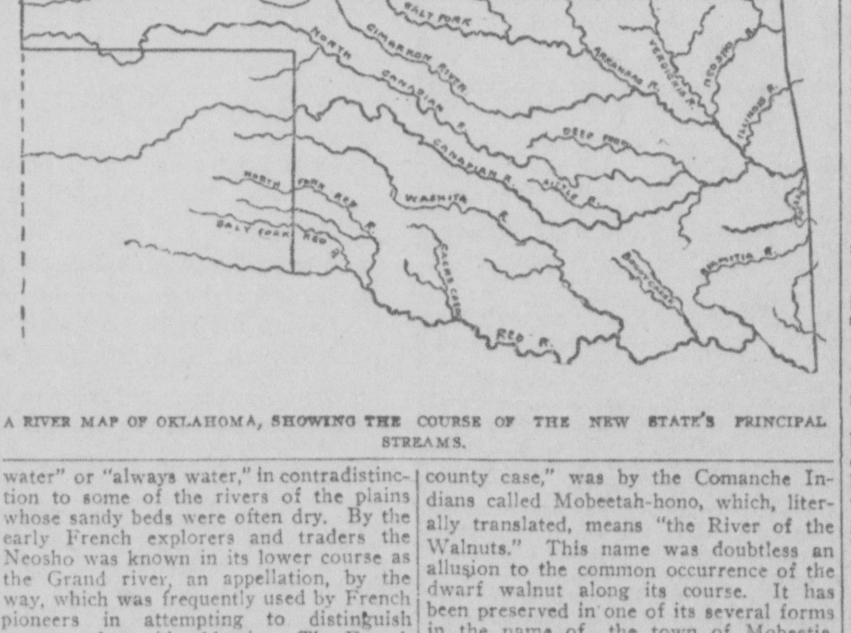
The Osage Indians called the Cimarron the Negracka. The exact meaning of this word does not seem to have been recorded, though it is believed to have reference to the salt plains through which that stream flows in the northern part of the state. In its lower course the Cimarron was and is yet sometimes called the Red Fork of the Arkansas. The word Cimarron is but a part of the original Spanish name for the stream, the full name having been "Rio de los Carneros Cimarron," literally, "the River of the Wild Sheep," in allusion to the numerous bighorn, or Rocky mountain sheep, which formerly were found among the hills and mountains about its source.

Of the two Canadian rivers, so-called, only the larger should be so denominated. The word Canadian, in this instance, is believed to be a French corruption of the Spanish word "canada," the meaning of which is "a glade," "a glen," "a gorge" or "a sheep path" among steep mountains and is aptly descriptive of the peculiar character of the country in which this stream has its source. By the Spanish people of New Mexico it also was called Rio Colorado, a name very commonly applied by them to any stream the color of whose waters was of a reddish cast. The Wichita Indians called it by a name that was equivalent to "Bloody river" or "Red river."

The so-called North Fork of the Canadian is perhaps the most numerously named stream on the map of the United States. It even now is known by three different names in the several sections of the country through which it runs, while it was formerly known by other names which have been discarded. In its upper course, above the New Mexico line, it is called the Corrompaugh, evidently a corruption of the Spanish word, "corromper," meaning "corruption," "defilement" or "pollution," and probably having reference to the condition of the water in the stream after the slaughter of numerous buffalo upon its banks or in its channel. From the New Mexico line to the mouth of Wolf creek, at old Camp Supply, it is called Beaver creek and, as such, it has given its name to a county and a town. Below the mouth of Wolf creek it bears the name of the North Canadian. On old atlas maps, published from fifty to ninety years ago, it was designated by two others names—Rio Rajo and Rio Nutria. The first was but another form for Red river, while the word "nutria" is the Spanish for "otter." Nearly all of the Indian tribes of the Southern plains region had names for the North Canadian which signifies "the River of the Wolf." But the Wichita and kindred tribes spoke of it as "the Stream Beside Which the Ribs Were Hung in a Tree." With such a wealth of other names from which to choose, it is a matter of regret that it has not been identified as something other than a mere "fork" of the Canadian. Inasmuch as it is probably the longest river in the world in proportion to its width and, moveover, because it is probably spanned by more bridges than any other single stream, it certainly possesses sufficient distinctiveness to warrant a name of its own and therefore deserves to be rechristened.

The Red river was called Kanohatino by the Caddo Indians. The Spaniards called it Rio Roxo de Natchitoches. By the French it was known as the River Rouge. All of these names had identically the same meaning, namely, the Red river. The Comanche Indians called it Pea-pasa-hono, which meant "Broad Sandy River." It would seem that it might have been well to have continued the use of the Caddo name. The so-called Salt Fork of the Red river is a misnomer, as the name was evidently meant to be applied to the stream known as Elm Fork, the latter being partially fed by salt springs. The so-called Salt Fork might well be renamed and christened in honor of Captain Randolph B. Marcy of the United States army, who commanded the expedition which first explored and mapped its course, nearly sixty years ago. Catain Marcy very generously honored other members of his party by bestowing their names upon streams in that region, but it seems that he was too modest to leave his own name on the map.

The so-called North Fork of the Red river, which was long claimed as a part of the northern boundary of Texas in its contentions in the now historic "Greer county case," was by the Comanche Indians called Mobeetah-hono, which, literally translated, means "the River of the Walnuts." This name was doubtless an allusion to the common occurrence of the dwarf walnut along its course. It has been preserved in one of its several forms in the name of the town of Mobeetie, which is the county seat of Wheeler county, Texas. As the name is both euphonious and appropriately suggestive, it should be restored and the river so designated on the map.



A RIVER MAP OF OKLAHOMA, SHOWING THE COURSE OF THE NEW STATE'S PRINCIPAL STREAMS.

Contrary to common belief, the Washita river was not so named by the Indians. The early French explorers called it the Faux Ouashita (literally, "the False Washita") to distinguish it from the original or true Ouashita, an Arkansas tributary of the Red river, with which it seems to have been strangely confounded. The word Ouashita is said to have been the French spelling of a Caddo Indian word which signified "buck deer." The pronunciation of the words Ouashita and Washita are identical. It has been asserted that the word Wichita, as applied to a tribe of Indians and a range of mountains in Oklahoma, to a city in Kansas and to a river and a city in Texas, is a corruption or derivative of the word Washita, but such a supposition surely is erroneous. There is reason, on the contrary, to believe that the word Wichita is derived from the Comanche term "ab-ta-witche," meaning "other people." The Wichita Indians, who have lived in and about the Washita valley since before the time of the Coronado expedition (1540-41), called the Washita "Haw-hid-au-gai," meaning "Stream that flows against a High Bluff."

The so-called Deep Fork of the Canadian river probably had an Osage or Quapaw name, but no record of the same seems to have been preserved. One of its principal tributaries is still called Quapaw creek, however. Western Oklahoma abounds in stream names that are suggestive of the Indian campaigns of the later '60s, such as Headquarters creek, Quartermasters creek, Sergeant Majors creek, Dead Indian creek, Cavalry creek, Pack Saddle creek, Commission creek, etc., and there is usually an interesting story connected with the origin and application of the name in each case.

WHERE LEE LAID DOWN HIS ARMS.

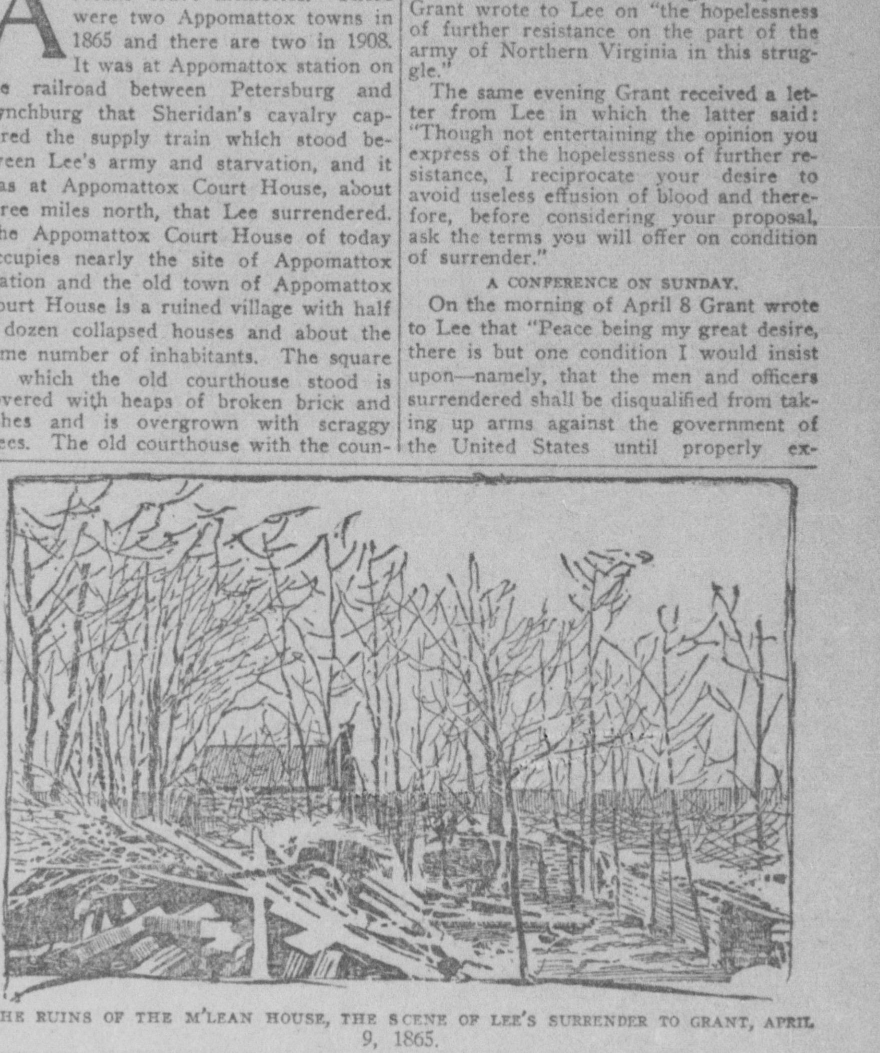
APPOMATTOX, THE SCENE OF THE SOUTHERN GENERAL'S SURRENDER FORTY-THREE YEARS AGO THIS WEEK IS FALLING INTO RUINS.

APPOMATTOX is a name that recalls brave memories. There were two Appomattox towns in 1865 and there are two in 1908. It was at Appomattox station on the railroad between Petersburg and Lynchburg that Sheridan's cavalry captured the supply train which stood between Lee's army and starvation, and it was at Appomattox Court House, about three miles north, that Lee surrendered. The Appomattox Court House of today occupies nearly the site of Appomattox station and the old town of Appomattox Court House is a ruined village with half a dozen collapsed houses and about the same number of inhabitants. The square in which the old courthouse stood is covered with heaps of broken brick and ashes and is overgrown with scraggy trees. The old courthouse with the county records was burned about fifteen years ago and the new courthouse was built on the line of railroad.



THE RUINS OF THE M'LEAN HOUSE, THE SCENE OF LEE'S SURRENDER TO GRANT, APRIL 9, 1865.

THE M'LEAN HOUSE IN RUINS.

The McLean house, in which the terms of surrender were agreed on and signed, was torn down in 1892 for removal to and reconstruction at the Chicago World's fair, but the idea was carried no further than the demolition of the house. The garden of the McLean place now is cumbered with the bricks and timber of the house.

The visitor to Appomattox has difficulty in learning the name of the present owner of the McLean house, or the "Surrender house" as it is called in that neighborhood. Some of the graybeards say that the place is owned by some "rich woman up North."

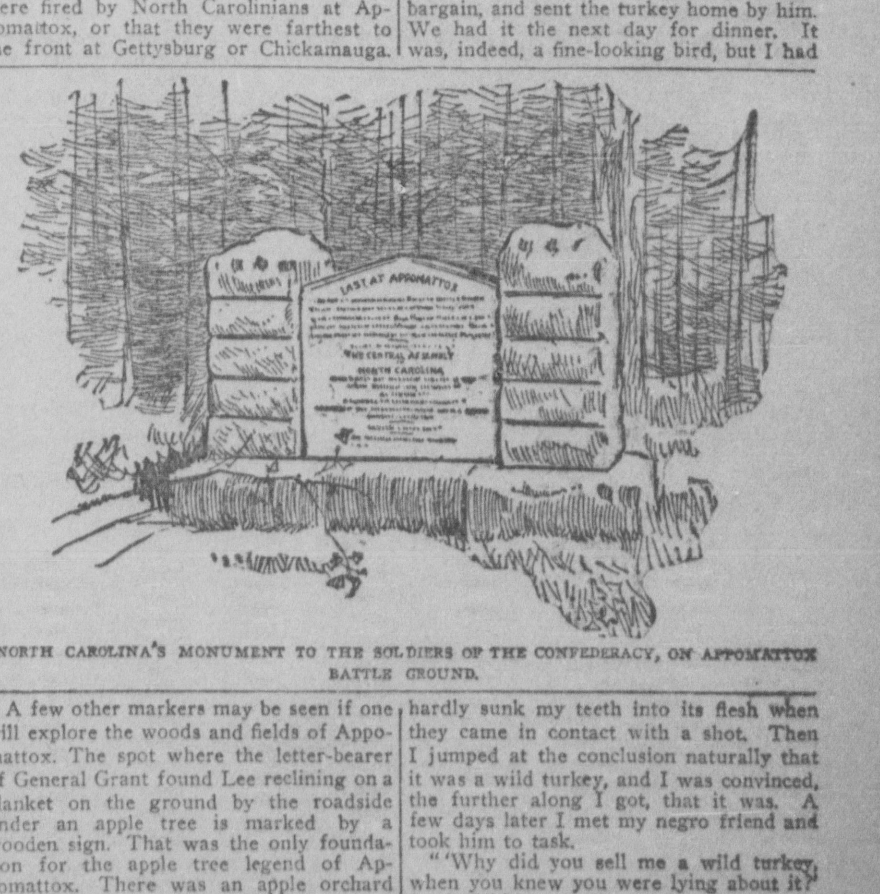
The fields in which the army of Northern Virginia and the Army of the Potomac faced each other are for the most part grown up in thick, tall pines. The North Carolina monument, the only imposing marker on the grounds, stands in a clearing about fifty feet square in a piece of dense pineland. One face of the monument is inscribed:

Last at Appomattox.
At This Place the North Carolina Brigade of Brigadier General W. R. Cox of Grimes's Division Fired the Last Volley, 9 April, 1865.
Major General Bryan Grimes of North Carolina Planned the Last Battle Fought by the Army of Northern Virginia and Commanded the Infantry Engaged Therein the Greater Part of Whom Were North Carolinians.
This Stone Is Erected by the Authority Of The General Assembly of North Carolina
In Grateful and Perpetual Memory of the Valor, Endurance and Patriotism Of Her Sons
Who Followed With Unshaken Fidelity The Fortunes of the Confederacy to This Closing Scene. Faithful to the End.
Erected April 9, 1905.
North Carolina Appomattox Commission:
H. A. London, Chairman; E. J. Holt, W. T. Jenkins, Cyrus S. Watson, A. D. McGill.

On the opposite face of the monument is this inscription:

North Carolina,
First at Bethel,
Farthest to the Front at Gettysburg and Chickamauga, Last at Appomattox.

The accuracy of these inscriptions has been questioned and an acrimonious discussion has been carried on. It is denied by many authorities that the last shots were fired by North Carolinians at Appomattox, or that they were farthest to the front at Gettysburg or Chickamauga.



NORTH CAROLINA'S MONUMENT TO THE SOLDIERS OF THE CONFEDERACY, ON APPOMATTOX BATTLE GROUND.

A few other markers may be seen if one will explore the woods and fields of Appomattox. The spot where the letter-bearer of General Grant found Lee reclining on a blanket on the ground by the roadside under an apple tree is marked by a wooden sign. That was the only foundation for the apple tree legend of Appomattox. There was an apple orchard along that part of the road. Grant and Lee did not meet except in the village of Appomattox and had no conference except that held in the parlor of the house of Wilmer McLean.

The place occupied by Lee's tent when he wrote his final order bidding farewell to the army is marked by a signboard.

It was on April 7, 1865, when Grant was at Farmville, a few miles east of Appomattox, that the Federal commander opened the correspondence with General Lee leading up to the surrender. At 5 o'clock on the evening of April 7 Grant wrote to Lee on "the hopelessness of further resistance on the part of the army of Northern Virginia in this struggle."

The same evening Grant received a letter from Lee in which the latter said: "Though not entertaining the opinion you express of the hopelessness of further resistance, I reciprocate your desire to avoid useless effusion of blood and therefore, before considering your proposal, ask the terms you will offer on condition of surrender."

A CONFERENCE ON SUNDAY.

On the morning of April 8 Grant wrote to Lee that "Peace being my great desire, there is but one condition I would insist upon—namely, that the men and officers surrendered shall be disqualified from taking up arms against the government of the United States until properly exchanged." At midnight, April 8, Grant received a letter from Lee asking for a conference on the subject of peace and agreeing to meet Grant on the old stage road to Richmond between the picket lines of the two armies. Grant answered that he had no authority to treat of anything but the surrender of the army of Northern Virginia. Later in the day Lee asked for an interview. Grant assented and sent his answer by Colonel Orville E. Babcock of his staff. Babcock found Lee by the roadside under an apple tree. The interview was arranged, and Lee, accompanied by his millitary secretary, Colonel Charles Marshall, met Grant at McLean's house in Appomattox at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, April 9. Grant was accompanied by General Sheridan, General Edward O. C. Ord, General Rufus Ingalls, General John A. Rawlins, General Seth Williams, General John G. Barnard, Colonel Horace Porter, Colonel Orville E. Babcock, Colonel Ely S. Parker, Colonel Theodore S. Bowers, Colonel Frederick T. Dent and Colonel Adam Badeau.

The conference lasted till 4 o'clock. At 4:30 o'clock Grant sent a dispatch to Secretary Stanton announcing Lee's surrender. Then the name of Appomattox was heard around the world.

On April 10 General Lee issued his farewell order to his army, and on April 12 the Confederate soldiers were paroled.

It was but the remnant of an army that gave up its arms.

Circumstantial Evidence.

From the Washington Post.

"As a lawyer, I know the value of circumstantial evidence, and I know, too, how easily it can be refuted sometimes," observed W. B. Briggs of Baltimore, at the Raleigh, while discussing a recent criminal trial.

"And this reminds me of an incident that occurred in Virginia last fall. I was on my way home one evening, when a typical, bright-faced Virginia darky, whom I had known for a long time, hailed me with the offer to sell me a turkey. He had the bird under his arm, and I saw in the gathering gloom that it was of good size and fat. I asked him what sort of a turkey it was, and he replied by asking me what kind I wanted. I told him I wanted a tame turkey. He told me the turkey he had was just what I wanted. I made a bargain, and sent the turkey home by him. We had it the next day for dinner. It was, indeed, a fine-looking bird, but I had hardly sunk my teeth into its flesh when they came in contact with a shot. Then I jumped at the conclusion naturally that it was a wild turkey, and I was convinced, the further along I got, that it was. A few days later I met my negro friend and took him to task.

"'Why did you sell me a wild turkey, when you knew you were lying about it?' I asked him.

"''Deed, boss, dat wasn't a wild turkey,' he replied.

"I told him I knew it was, because I had found several shot in the flesh of the fowl. A broad grin spread over his face as he said:

"'Dat's where youse wrong, boss; them shot was meant for me.'

"Now, I am not sure to this day whether it was a turkey of the ordinary domestic variety or a wild one."

LARGEST EXCLUSIVELY DRY GOODS STORE IN THE WEST

John Taylor
DRY GOODS CO.

Are Your Easter Plans Prepared

Yesterday afternoon this store announced its Easter Readiness. The plans of every section in anticipation of the Easter season have been carefully prepared and fulfilled. The Easter stocks are ready.

The woman who has prepared her Easter plans for her wardrobe is now in a position to carry them out to best advantage. Now, when stocks are complete and unbroken, before the rush of the latter days before Easter is on, when store service is not taxed, when selections can be made carefully and leisurely, is the time to have Easter plans prepared and fulfilled.

To the woman whose Easter plans are prepared we suggest the immediate filling of her wants, for the above obvious reasons.

A Pre-Easter Sale of Women's Suits

Novelties in Tailored Suits, having that individuality and correct style about them that appeals to every stylish woman. Emphasis is due the fact that these Suits to which special attention is being directed are products of the best makers. The first group are Suits by Schwartz, the most famous maker of the country, and the others are by makers whose products are perhaps equally as good.

Novelties in Tailored Suits, by Schwartz, new models, new cloths, new applications of trimmings, new ideas in cut of garment—suits that typify the best in designing, tailoring, quality of material, style and general beauty—thirty-five in number, specially priced at $48.50.

Novelties in Tailored Suits, by various noted makers, in models that have the "different" appearance and which are characterized by style touches that appeal to women of taste, special collection, at special prices ranging from $48.50 up to $85.00.

AN OPPORTUNE TIME TO BUY THE EASTER SUIT

The Store for Easter Gloves

THE PINEHURST TEA FARM

SOUTH CAROLINA SOIL WELL ADAPTED TO NEW INDUSTRY.

Domestic Article Is Pure, While Much of the Imported "Cheer" Is Colored and Adulterated—Demands Intelligent Care.

William E. Curtis in the Washington Star.

SUMMERVILLE, S. C.—That tea, equal in quality to the best that comes from the Orient, can be grown in this country without more than ordinary care and cultivation has been fully demonstrated by Dr. Charles U. Shepard, and his tea plantation, called Pinehurst, is the greatest attraction at Summerville; not including the climate.

It is a beautiful spectacle, this tea farm, particularly when the colored children who are employed as pickers are at work, and the grounds surrounding Dr. Shepard's mansion are exceedingly attractive. He has a dense pine grove with clearings filled with flowering plants and trees of rare varieties, from various parts of the world, for Pinehurst is not only a tea farm but an experiment station in all kinds of botanical products. There is a schoolhouse at which the children employed on the plantation are taught reading, writing and arithmetic, a church where the gospel is dispensed by an earnest and eloquent colored brother, and there are numerous cottages in which abide many happy families who have no cares and no anxieties and who seem to be satisfied with the world as it is.

And so it seems that everybody is satisfied, except Dr. Shepard, who can't compete with cheap Chinese and Japanese labor in growing tea because of the larger expense of cultivation in this country.

"Large sums of money have been expended in demonstrating the practicability of raising tea in this climate and soil," said Dr. Shepard, "and they have been remarkably successful from a scientific standpoint, but the tea business in America will not be a commercial success until we place a duty upon imported tea or a bounty upon American grown tea that will equalize the cost of production, which is chiefly in the labor. No agricultural product requires so much labor as tea, and, while it is not necessarily expensive labor, and can be supplied very largely by children during school vacations, there must be some compensation to cover the difference.

"By my inventions I have been able to reduce the cost of production very rapidly and may be able to reduce it still more, but we can never raise tea in this country as cheaply as it can be raised in more densely populated countries like China and India. A small duty upon imported teas will not only serve to equalize the cost of production and enable us to compete with the countries of the Orient, but it will also keep out of our market the cheap and nasty sweepings of the factories and other low qualities which cannot be sold anywhere else.

"There is a duty on tea in every country except Belgium. In England it was sixteen cents a pound until recently, now it is eight cents, and the English people consume more tea than those of any other country of Europe. Their average is six pounds a year per capita. The people of Australia consume between seven and eight pounds per capita. The consumption in Russia is very large also. We drink more coffee than tea in the United States. Our average consumption is about one pound of tea per capita per year."

LAST YEAR'S PRODUCTION.

Last year Dr. Shepard produced 13,000 pounds of tea on his plantation of 100 acres and he sold his green teas, which rank with the very best, at $1 a pound; while his black teas brought eighty cents a pound, and he tells me that he can sell all he can raise at those prices. There are agencies in Washington, Baltimore, New York, Boston, Chicago and other cities which supply hotels, restaurants and clubs, and several of the latter advertise the American tea upon their menu cards.

It is a curious fact, however, that in shipping such small quantities transportation rates are much higher from Summerville to Chicago, or even Washington, than from Shanghai and Yokohama. It costs only two and one-half cents a pound to bring a package of tea across the Pacific ocean and across the entire continent of the United States, while it costs eight and one-half cents to send it from Summerville to any Northern city. But I suppose when Dr. Shepard requires several trains a day to haul his crop from his factory to market this surprising difference will disappear.

Two hundred years ago a French botanist named Michaux discovered that the climate of South Carolina was especially adapted to tea culture and introduced it on the Ashley river near Charleston, where now may be found trees twenty and twenty-five feet high. Sixty years ago the daughter of Junius Smith of Greenville brought seeds and plants from India and induced him to make experiments that were remarkably successful. Just before the Civil war the United States government, through the patent office at Washington, distributed a quantity of tea seed among the planters of South Carolina and other coast states, but not having the knowledge or the apparatus for curing the leaves, they treated the plant as ornamental rather than useful and in many of the dooryards throughout the state are healthy and well grown tea plants that are greatly admired for their foliage.

It was not until 1880 that tea culture was undertaken in a serious manner, and then Mr. Le Duc, United States commissioner of agriculture during the Hayes administration, employed a tea planter from India named John Jackson to conduct a series of practical experiments here. The retirement of Mr. Le Duc and the illness of Mr. Jackson, however, caused them to be abandoned before the demonstration was in any way complete, and tea fiellds on the farm at Summerville were allowed to take care of themselves until the spring of 1887, when it was purchased by Dr. Charles U. Shepard of Charleston. He pruned the tea plants and studied their habits and picked and cured the leaves with such success that it attracted the attention of Secretary Wilson. The latter came to Pinehurst to make a personal investigation and entered into Dr. Shepard's work with his characteristic common sense. He sent to China through the Department of State for a quantity of Dragon's Pool seed, from which the tea used by the imperial court is grown and which is too rare for exportation. Together Prof. Wilson and Dr. Shepard conducted their experiments until the demonstration was complete and satisfactory, and it was settled beyond peradventure that tea could be made one of the staple products of the United States, of a quality as good as any imported from other parts of the world.

THE DOMESTIC TEA IS PURE.

The Summerville tea differs, however, in several respects from that we get from China, Japan, India or Ceylon. It possesses purity, strength, freedom from astringency and is cured without the use of drugs, dyes or any ulterior substances, which are almost invariably introduced into imported teas. Anyone who has visited the tea godowns of China and Japan and has seen the indelible stains on the arms of the woman mixers reaching as high as their shoulders will never believe the claims that Japan teas are not artificially colored. It is not denied that lamp black and other chemicals are used habitually to give the teas the color that is demanded by American customers, but at Pinehurst it is produced by a mechanical process invented by Dr. Shepard himself for the oxidizing of the leaves without resort to drugs. "All tea leaves," said Dr. Shepard, "must be subjected to two processes—namely, rolling, which breaks the oily cells that contain the principles for brewing the beverage, and, second, spreading them so that they will dry and cure without fermentation or decay. The leaf thus cured constitutes green tea, the nearest approach to natural conditions. Black tea is produced by the introduction of two additional processes which cause the green leaf to oxidize, or change color. In Oriental countries this oxidation or change of color is produced by the use of chemicals and by the use of the naked hands and feet. In the Pinehurst factory we have machines that restrict manual labor to that final culling which removes foreign substances and objectionable leaves from the tea. Our sterilizer consists of a rotary cylinder which satisfactorily sterilizes the enzymes, or soluble oxidizing ferments, in the freshly plucked leaf by directing a current of hot air at 600 degrees Fahrenheit upon it as it falls several hundred times through the diameter of the tube as it continues to revolve. The friction of the particles of tea upon each other in a current of warm air causes a chemical change and color than can only otherwise be obtained by adulteration."

Dr. Shepard does not consider tea culture any longer an experiment. He believes that tea can be produced at almost any place along the South Atlantic coast, where the soil and climate are similar to those of Summerville. He estimates that $50,000 is ample capital to purchase the land, provide the buildings and machinery and to put an enterprise on its feet. But those who undertake it must understand that it requires a great deal of pains, patience, care and a higher degree of intelligence and botanical knowledge than is needed for ordinary farming. He believes that with the protection of a reasonable duty our people could supply a very large part of the 100 millions pounds which cost us nearly 50 million dollars a year.

IN SOCIETY.

H. L. Thayer. The next meeting will be with Mrs. C. E. Bartlett, 2913 Baltimore avenue.

Mrs. W. W. Fellers of St. Louis, with her two small daughters, Naydine and Iona, will arrive this evening to be the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stagner, 1101 Garfield avenue.

Mercedes O'Conner, 1230 Michigan avenue, entertained a number of her small friends Saturday afternoon in honor of her seventh birthday. She was assisted by Helen Peppard and Theresa Gormly.

Miss Mabelle Kenney entertained the L'Avenir club at cards Thursday afternoon. Prizes were won by Miss Aileen Jeanneret and Miss Bess Connell. Miss Kenney was assisted by Mrs. J. C. Kenney and Mrs. Ira Harvey.

Mrs. John C. Calhoun entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday at her home, 2915 Benton boulevard, in honor of Mrs. Robert Hall of Chicago. Easter lilies made a pretty table decoration. The guests included Mrs. E. Lee Harrison, Mrs. Howard Hanson, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. H. C. Cole, Mrs. Sully Osiier, Miss Myrtle Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Timmig, 4011 East Nineteenth street, entertained the J. Y. C. Card club Thursday evening, April 2. Prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Brook, Mr. Herbert Jenkins, Mr. F. L. Prizes were won by Mrs. John Hogue, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Snell and Mr. Glen Neel. Ferns and palms, tulips and carnations decorated the rooms. A feature of the evening's entertainment was the performing of Miss Beauty, the beautiful dog owned by Dr. F. H. Riley. Vocal selections were given by Mrs. John Fraser, Mr. Norman Meyers, Mr. Edward Eversoie and Mr. James Price. Mrs. Johnson was assisted by Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, Mrs. Charles Jones, Mrs. James Price, Mrs. John Lorimer, Mrs. John Fraser, Mrs. James Na Dean, Mrs. D. R. Ashe, Mrs. W. H. Slauson.

The marriage of Miss Fairy Maude Hollingsworth and Mr. William Newdorff was celebrated Tuesday evening, March 31, 8:30 o'clock, at the Grund hotel in Kansas City, Kas., where the Rev. J. M. Cromer performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her cousin, Mr. O. R. Nagle. The groom was attended by Mr. Clyde Holland and Mrs. Holland served the bride as matron of honor. Little Dora May Nagle was the ring bearer and carried the marriage token on a pillow of flowers. The bride wore a gown of white mull over taffeta elaborately trimmed with Valenciennes lace and satin ribbon. Lilies of the valley fastened the full length veil to her hair and she carried an arm bouquet of bride roses. The groom's gift, a diamond brooch, was her ornament. A supper for one hundred guests was served in the dining room of the hotel which was decorated with smilax and white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Newdorff will be at home, 608 Orville avenue, Kansas City, Kas.

Income of Recent Yale Graduates.

From the Yale Alumni Weekly.

The first definite answer to the question propounded in the Alumni Weekly several weeks ago as to the average salaries of Yale graduates has come in the form of roughly tabulated statistics from the secretary of the class of '06. In a circular letter to the members of the class sent out last fall one of the questions asked was the yearly salary or income earned. The question excluded paternal or other allowances or income by inheritance and referred merely to the personal earnings of the individuals in question.

In one hundred and fifty answers to the question in the class of 1906, fifty-two men had no personally earned income during the first year out of college; forty-seven men had an income under $1,000, and forty-one men had an income of over $1,000. For the second year (in figuring for the salary for which estimates for the last three months had to be given, based as accurately as possible upon the present rate of salary or income), forty-five men were receiving no salary; eighteen men were receiving less than $1,000, and seventy-three men over $1,000. The greatest amount reported as earned by one man during the first year out of college was $3,500, earned in insurance.

So many members of the class are still engaged in professional study that no "average" salary can be figured for the entire class for either of the first two years out of college.

Accounted For.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

Naturally she turned to her husband for information.

"Why are so many of the police mentioned as plain clothes men?" she asked.

"I suppose," he answered, "that they're like the rest of us. It takes all their pay to keep their wives from being plain clothes women."

Tailor Made for Easter

NOVELTIES IN TAILORED SUITS—Our showing for this Easter is the finest we have ever made. Some beautiful foreign models are shown in 3-piece styles, made of tussor, taffeta, satin, voile, serges, imported worsteds and linens, in the most exquisite colorings. $65 to $275.

The suit ilustrated shows one of our novelties, made of fine London serges in black and white stripe. The coat has a black velvet collar, and is trimmed with hand-made ornaments of black velvet and gun-metal buttons. It may be worn either with or without the detachable waistcoat of white silk pique. The gracefully hanging skirt is made with alternate plaits and panels, and has a wide-fitted princess belt attached, $95.00.

Tailored Suits at $35, $40 and $55

These are special collections for the Easter selling and there are so many attractive and becoming styles that it would be difficult to even begin to describe them. The majority take their style from the most noted of the foreign models brought out this spring. Little touches here and there give them an uncommon appearance.

The materials are imported fancy stripes, plain fabrics, rajah silks, taffeta silks, worsteds and every fashionable weave.

$25 Tailored Suits

For this Easter sale we have a very extraordinary collection of Tailored Suits at this price. The best showing we have ever made, and you will find among them suits that really belong to much higher priced lines. For weeks the leading makers have been getting up special models in order to be represented in the Parisian $25 Easter sale. We selected the best models from each maker and this week will show styles and effects in Tailor-Made Suits at $25 never before attempted at this popular price. You can't mention a style that is not to be had in this showing. Many are copies of imported models. These may be had in a great variety of materials, colors, stripes and fancy effects. $25.

Silk Dresses $25—12 new styles in these dainty little frocks, suitable for dress or everyday wear. They are made of the soft taffeta silks, in all colors, and are so practical that a woman's wardrobe is not complete without one. Second Floor.

Walking Skirts, $10.00 to $50.00

You will want a new Skirt when you see this extensive showing of spring styles. There is such a variety of effects and materials that you are sure to find a style that tempts you—plain and trimmed, unlined and made over silk drops, black, white and colors.

Tafleta Walking Skirts, $12.50, $15, $16.50, $18.50 and $22.50

A beautiful collection, just the make, width and hang of a latest style in black, blue and brown. First Floor, South Section.

Covert Top Coats, $10, $12.50, $15, $18.50, $25 and $42.50

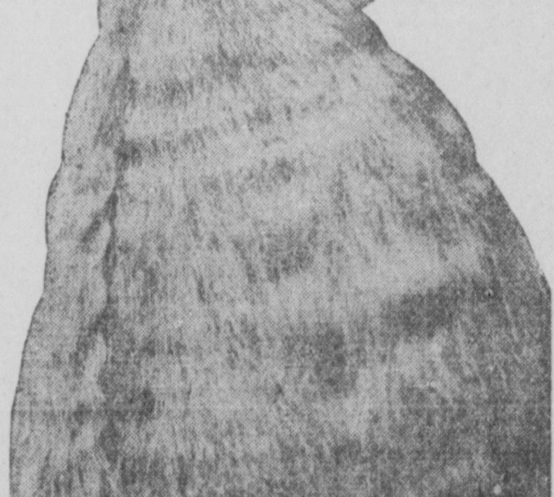
These are mostly short semi-fitting, plain and striped Coverts, with all the newest style kinks upon them. They are very swagger and can be used with any color. Also ⅞-length Coats that are very smart.

Lace Braid Coats, $12.50, $15, $20, $22.50, $25, $30, $35 to $60

These stylish Coats are popular for street or dressy wear. They also make very attractive suits when worn over a skirt of taffeta or fancy material of contrasting colors.

Black Jackets, $10, $12.50, $15.00, $18.50, $20.00 to $35.00

For a practical spring coat there isn't anything more satisfactory than a well tailored Jacket of black broadcloth or serge. These are well tailored—the kind you want. Third Floor.



MISS MADELINE CLUTTER

Have You Heard of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE
The NEW Scalp Prophylactic.

Newbro's Herpicide is the first Prophylactic for the hair and scalp. Its formula harmonizes with the theory (now a recognized fact) that dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair are of microbic origin. Herpicide defends the hair and scalp against disease and by destroying the scalp microbe or dandruff germ (a tiny vegetable growth) it eradicates dandruff, stops falling hair and permits the hair to grow as nature intended. Almost marvelous results sometimes follow its use. Miss Clutter's letter and photograph certainly speak for themselves.

"I herewith inclose you one of my latest photographs, which will show you what Newbro's Herpicide has done for my hair. Since using your remedy my hair is much longer than it was, and it has that luster to it that one's hair always has when their scalp it in a healthy condition."

THE FIGHT ON BEARDSLEY.

Mayor Beardsley blocked the franchise extension grab. He saved to the people millions of dollars by that action. And the Metropolitan lost it—temporarily. It is still hungering for it. Beardsley is getting a West Traffic way without selling out the town to get it. He demanded the right to find out. He insisted that the people's Enabling Act should be given effect by the Council. He demands the Public Utilities commission.

For these services to Kansas City the Metropolitan is fighting him.

FOR THE NEW CITY RULE

WORK FOR THE COMMISSION PLAN IN KANSAS CITY, KAS.

The Voters' Petition Almost Ready for Presentation to the Mayor, With a Likelihood of an Election in June—The Plan in Favor.

It is expected that the petition for an election on the proposition to adopt the commission form of government in Kansas City, Kas., will be presented to the mayor and council within the next two weeks. The petition lacks less than 300 names of the required number, and a meeting will be held to-morrow night for the purpose of making a final effort to complete the work.

The mayor is allowed ten days after the filing of the petition for an investigation to determine its legality. The election will be held within sixty days after the petition is filed if the required proportion —10 per cent—of voters who voted for mayor at the last city election is found to have signed the petition.

The meeting to be held Saturday night is for the purpose of checking the names already on the petition and ascertaining the number yet to be secured. Workers in each ward will then be appointed to circulate the petition with instructions to complete the list of signatures within a week. This will insure an election on the question during the month of June.

If the people vote to adopt the commission form of government, it will take effect next spring when the present city administration retires. Instead of electing a mayor and members of the council next year the voters will elect a mayor and four commissioners. The ward representation will be abandoned, and the city will be divided into election precincts. The five commissioners will be nominated at a primary election and voted upon by all the voters in Kansas City, Kansas, without reference to ward limitations.

In Kansas the women are permitted to vote in municipal elections and they are also allowed to vote upon the proposition to adopt the commission plan. In Leavenworth, where this form of government was recently adopted, the business men who conducted the campaign were aided by the women who voted almost unanimously for it. The jointkeepers and the gamblers were united against the proposition.

The enabling act authorizing the commission form of government provides that the commissioners shall be elected in "odd numbered years." The mayors are elected in the cities of Kansas under the present law in odd numbered years, so that Mayor Cornell will complete his administration after the plan is adopted. The terms of all city officers elected by the people, such as city clerk and city treasurer, will also expire at that time. The commissioners are authorized to appoint these officers under the commission plan.

The object of holding the election for adopting the plan this summer is to give ample time for preparation for the inauguration of the new system in case the voters declare themselves in favor of it.

The provisions of the law for the regulation of public service corporations and for the control of franchises have awakened a general interest in the movement in Kansas City, Kas., on account of the menace to the citizens of the electric light franchise grab. If the voters of that city favor the commission plan at the election in June it is regarded as entirely improbable that any attempt would be made to pass a franchise ordinance until after the new order of government could be inaugurated.

HUSBAND ON INSTALLMENT PLAN

But a New York Woman Who Had First Claim Wanted Cash or the Man.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Because Mary Barna did not have enough money to buy Steve Curick he is now the husband of another woman. He was married to Annie Markowiz by Judge Owen Mahon in a public court in Elizabeth, N. J. Steve himself had very little to do with it, except in the beginning. It appears that Steve had engaged himself to both women, but Annie had first claim. Mary offered her $157, all she had saved, but Anna said he was worth $350, and she wouldn't sell him for a cent less. Then Mary said she would pay the $157 down to bind the bargain and $3 a week until Steve was fully paid for, but again Annie refused.

Mary took the matter into court on a charge of breach of promise, but the judge decided that Steve belonged to Annie, and that Mary had recognized the fact by trying to buy him from her. So Steve and Annie were married, while Mary looked on but said nothing.

A DINNER OF GRATITUDE.

The Philippine Commissioners to the American Congress Entertained.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A large company of distinguished guests attended a dinner given at the Arlington hotel last night by Benito Le Garda and Pablo Ocampo, the Philippine commissioners to the American Congress, who took this medium of showing in part their appreciation of the kindness with which they had been received and treated since their arrival in Washington and of their gratitude to the American nation. The company was made up of Vice President Fairbanks, Speaker Cannon, Secretary Taft, who acted as toastmaster, the Senate committee on the Philippines, the House committee on insular affairs, various other senators and members who made up Secretary Taft's party to the Philippines several years ago, army officers who have seen service in the Philippines, ex-officers of the islands now in Washington and Bishop Thomas A. Hendrick of Cebu.

SAYS BOY DESERTER IS INSANE.

Max Jagerhuber, Jr., Ran Away From Home and Has Been in Many Scrapes.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Max Jagerhuber, jr., according to his father, who is president of the Dry Goods Publishing company, 172 Fifth avenue, declared today that specialists both here and in Europe had found his son to be mentally defective, and as a result often irresponsible and not accountable for his actions. Mr. Jagerhuber says his son ran away from home fifteen years ago and since then, at different times, has been involved in difficulties as a result of his deficiencies.

Max Jagerhuber is the young man who is being sought by the army authorities at the Presidio, San Francisco, on a charge of desertion. He was also in trouble during the San Francisco earthquake when he was accused of uttering a worthless check.

The Mother of Alfred G. Apparently Has Sided With Her Daughter-in-Law in Their Domestic Misunderstanding.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Every move made by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt to-day seemed to indicate that both regarded their admitted separation as final. In social circles little surprise was expressed, but the utmost curiosity was manifest as to whether or not the troubles of the richest young married couple in America might lead to a public airing in court of their differences.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, accompanied by a woman friend and two maids, left the residence of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, sr., in time to catch the 12:30 train to Newport. About the time of Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt's arrival at Newport a statement was made public at the residence of Mrs. Vanderbilt, sr., to the effect that Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt would remain in Newport until after her husband sailed from New York on Saturday.

The red runabout of Alfred Vanderbilt was kept busy all day to-day. In the morning Mr. Vanderbilt went to the office of his lawyer, Chandler P. Anderson. He remained there for more than one hour and afterward went to the New York Central railroad executive offices, arranging his affairs for a long stay abroad.

In the afternoon he closed his bachelor apartments in Madison avenue near Thirty-third street, sending the furnishings to storage. With him throughout the day was a young Englishman whose identity was a matter of much discussion among acquaintances of Mr. Vanderbilt who had first seen the two together in a box at the theater the night before.

That society was puzzled at the attitude of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt in taking Mrs. Alfred under her shelter at the time of her decision to seek a separation was shown by the great number of callers at the house of Mrs. Vanderbilt, sr., today. The Duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt were the only members of the family who called, but from 2 until 5 o'clock in the afternoon there was a stream of women widely known in the fashionable world who left cards.

Something Like 2,000 Counts Charged Against Texas Pullman Company.

GALVESTON, TEX., March 27.—The state health department is waging war against the Pullman company for violation of the state health laws, adopted a year ago, requiring all sleeping cars to be thoroughly fumigated at the end of each division, and to have a solution of disinfectant in every cuspidor.

There are something like 2,000 counts charged against the sleeping car company, and the penalties, if the maximum fine is imposed, would aggregate $520,000. Every trip of the sleeping car constitutes a separate offense. It is charged that tubercular patients have been carried in the sleepers through and into the state and these cars used for several days without being fumigated.

The Indorsement of the Peace Agreement

Cleveland has its 3-cent fares and street railway taxes.

Chicago has its 55 per cent of surplus net earnings in addition to its regular taxes against the street railway company.

Kansas City, under its "peace agreement," has the full, old fashioned five-cent fares and its little 8 per cent of the gross earnings out of which the city must pay all the Metropolitan's city, county and state taxes.

In the old days, when the people were not aroused to the value of franchises, such bad bargains as the "peace agreement" were not uncommon in American municipalities.

But in this time of enlightenment through the work of such men as Tom L. Johnson, Democrat, and Charles E. Hughes, Republican, the endorsement of the "peace agreement" by the Metropolitan-Democratic platform is a wholly distinctive and isolated attempt to turn back the tide of municipal development.

BY WATER HOLES TO SANTA FE.

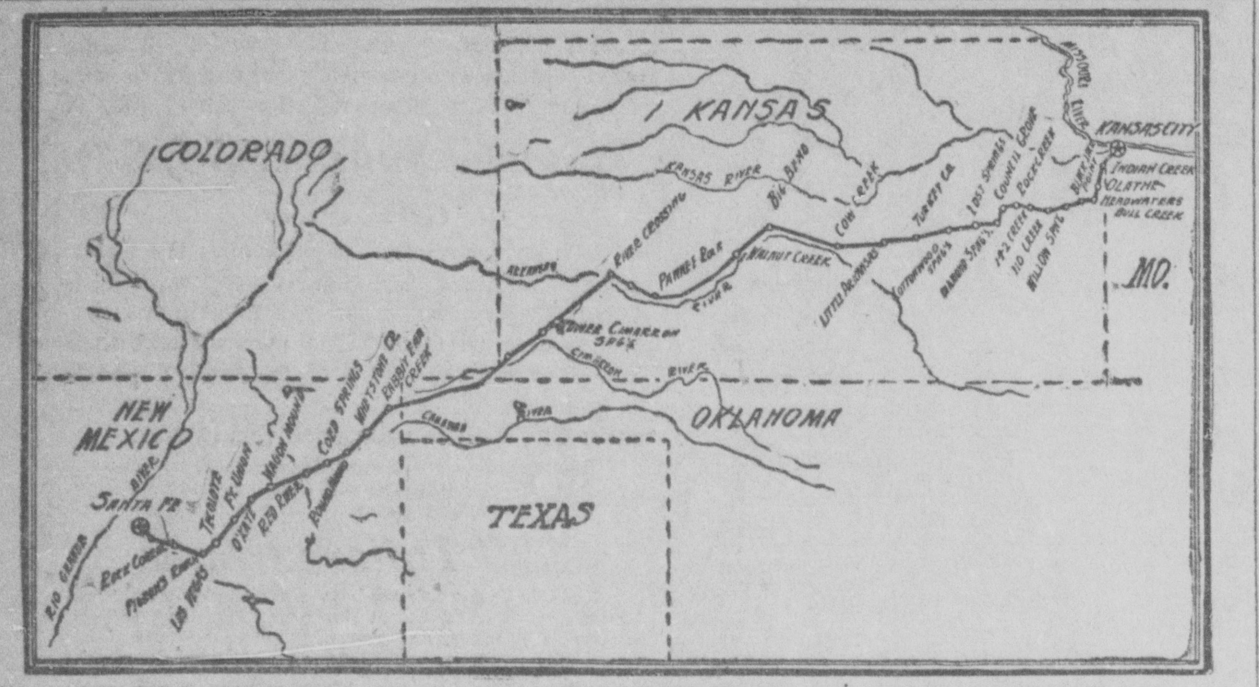
THE LOCATION OF SPRINGS AND STREAMS DETERMINED THE ROUTE OF THE OLD TRAIL.

"ON the old Santa Fe trail, we jumped from water hole to water hole across the states," said an old time trader here recently. Water determined the line of the route. The camping places were as fixed as the trail itself. The old route was a series of watering places and fords, with a line of more or less permanet road between.

"I have seen accounts of wagon trains plodding along day after day from sunrise to sunset and stopping where night found them. But we didn't do it. We knew in the morning just how far we had to go that day. Sometimes it was ten miles, sometimes much farther."



MAP SHOWING THE CAMPING PLACES ON THE OLD SANTA FE TRAIL. THE LENGTH OF A DAY'S PROGRESS WAS DETERMINED BY THE DISTANCE BETWEEN WATER HOLES.

THEN OFF TO THE SOUTHWEST.

When a train was equipped and loaded at the starting place in Westport it went south on the Wornall road in the afternoon on the four to five months' trip to Santa Fe. The long Brush creek hill was the first opportunity for the drivers to test their teams, and their new whip crackers popped like pistols as their animals strained at their heavy loads. The first night's camp was on the open prairie, now owned by the Armours, three miles south of town. The second camp was Indian creek, in Johnson county, Kansas; the third Olathe, the fourth the headwaters of Bull creek, in Miami county; the fifth was Black Jack point, in Franklin county, so named because of the character of the timber on the hill; the sixth was Willow Springs, several miles west of Ottawa; the seventh 110 creek, Osage county; the eight, 142 creek, Lyon county. The last two creeks are so named because of their distance from Fort Osage, a government fort, now the town of Sibley, in Jackson county, Missouri, where the Santa Fe railroad crosses the Missouri river. The ninth camp was on Rock creek, in the eastern part of Morris county; the tenth was in the same county where Council Grove is now located; the eleventh was at Diamond spring, in Morris county; the twelfth, Lost Spring, in the northeastern part of Marion county; the thirteenth camp was Cottonwood Spring, part of the headwaters of Cottonwood river, in the northwest part of Marion county.

WHEN THE INDIANS CAME.

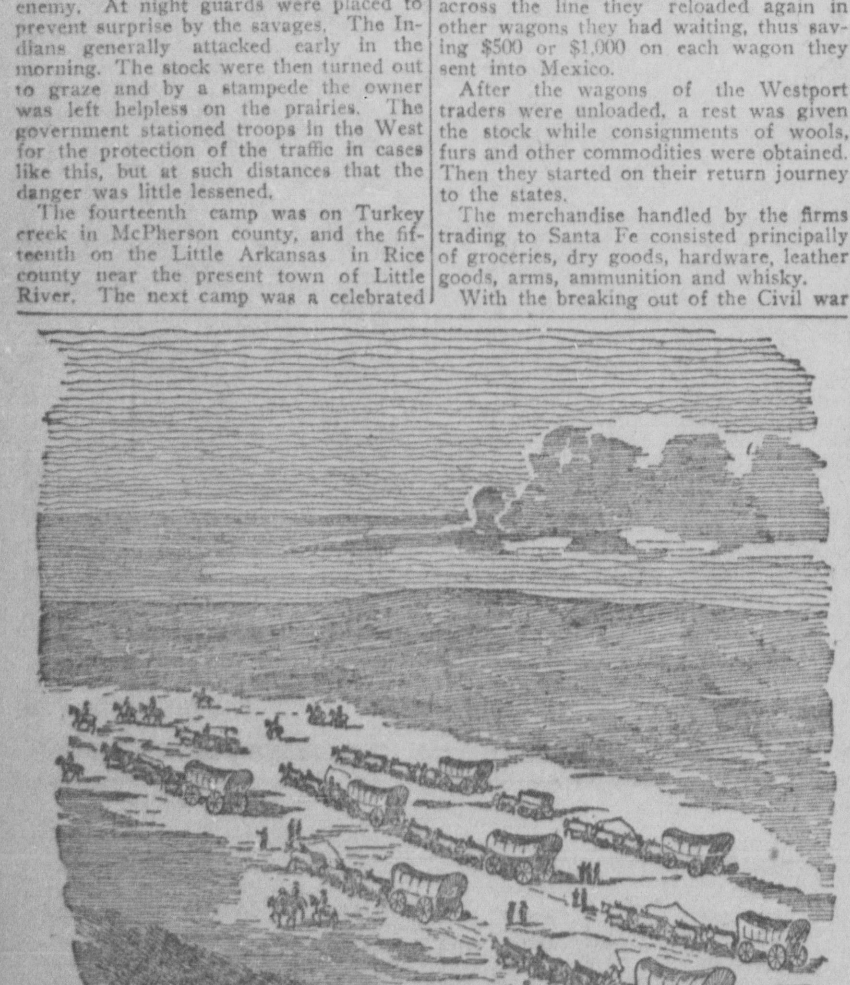
From here on the crews were alert for Indians, and there were many fights with them every year. In pitching camp the wagons were arranged in a circle so as to form a fort and protection from the enemy. At night guards were placed to prevent surprise by the savages. The Indians generally attacked early in the morning. The stock were then turned out to graze and by a stampede the owner was left helpless on the prairies. The government stationed troops in the West for the protection of the traffic in cases like this, but at such distances that the danger was little lessened.

The fourteenth camp was on Turkey creek in McPherson county, and the fifteenth on the Little Arkansas in Rice county near the present town of Little River. The next camp was a celebrated one on Cow creek, six or eight miles west of Lyons. It was here that the rich Mexican Chavez was murdered for his money. The seventeenth was called Big Bend on the Arkansas river. The eighteenth was on Walnut creek near present city of Great Bend. Pawnee Rock, a formation which the Indians believed had been miraculously dropped there from heaven, was the nineteenth camp. This was a place of especial dread to the traders because of the frequent assaults made there by the Indians.



A VIEW OF THE SANTA FE TRAIL IN THE OLD DAYS.

ONE "HIKE" OF SIXTY-FIVE MILES.

From this point the old trail followed up along the north bank of the Arkansas river for nearly a hundred miles to the old crossing of the river, at which point the government maintained a fort known sometimes as Fort McKie, at others as Fort Mahon. It was about twenty miles west of Dodge City. Here the longest drive without water was made. It was sixty miles. On this drive the wagons started in the evening, drove all night, all the next day and with good luck made their twenty-fourth camp at the Lower Cimarron springs on the Cimarron river at 2 o'clock in the second night. Thence up and along the Cimarron river they traveled for seventy-five miles, where they crossed and with a day's travel of twenty miles reached their twenty-eighth camp on Rabbit Ear creek in the northeastern part of New Mexico. Here they bore more to the south.

Whetstone creek was the next camp and Round Mound followed. It was a hill on the prairie that could be seen three days before it was reached. From here there were four stops before the thirty-fifth camp, Fort Union, was reached. They were Cold Springs, Wagon Mound, Red River and Okate. Fort Union was twenty-five miles north of Las Vegas and next to Santa Fe was the most important distributing center in New Mexico. It was the most important government station in New Mexico. Four troops of regulars were garrisoned there. Here many trains left the beaten path for the southern towns, Socorro, Albuquerque, San Marcial and others as well as for Old Mexico. The thirty-sixth camp was the present town of Las Vegas and the next the town of Tecolate. The Pecos river was then crossed and camp was pitched at Pigeon's ranch, owned by an old Frenchman named Valet, nicknamed Pigeon. The present town of Glorietta is on the old camping ground. The thirty-ninth camp was Rock Covial, only ten miles from Santa Fe. The next day's travel brought the caravan to the end of its journey.

GOODS RESOLD TO MEXICO.

Much of the goods delivered over the trail to the Santa Fe merchants was in turn sold and delivered by wagons to the merchants of Chihuahua and other Old Mexican towns a distance of 800 miles. Old Mexico had an ad valoum import duty on goods coming in at Vera Cruz, but a specific duty on goods coming in at El Paso. The specific duty was $500 a wagon, whether loaded heavily or not, with silk or salt, and the Santa Fe merchants learned to reload at El Paso, putting two or three loads on one wagon. When across the line they reloaded again in other wagons they had waiting, thus saving $500 or $1,000 on each wagon they sent into Mexico.

After the wagons of the Westport traders were unloaded, a rest was given the stock while consignments of wools, furs and other commodities were obtained. Then they started on their return journey to the states.

The merchandise handled by the firms trading to Santa Fe consisted principally of groceries, dry goods, hardware, leather goods, arms, ammunition and whisky.

With the breaking out of the Civil war the eastern outfitting and loading point for much of this business was moved to Atchison and Leavenworth. The caravans starting from these places crossed the Kaw river at Topeka and by direct line reached the old trail. One of the most difficult parts of the trail was in the first day's march from Fort Leavenworth. It passed through what was called Government Lane, a low stretch of trail through soft black loam. Often the stock from half the train was necessary to drag one wagon to the high ground. Many of the wagons were made water tight as the mud and water was so deep in places that the wagon beds slid over and through it. The first camp out of Leavenworth was often not two miles from the starting point.

AN AD FOR POSTAL GOODS.

How One Missouri Postmaster Booms Uncle Sam's Service.

Uncle Sam has a representative in a small town a few miles north of Macon, Mo., who is showing capacity for a larger trust. Some postmasters are disposed to sit quietly by and let trade pass their doors to a rival establishment down street, with never a thought of telling the public what they have in stock. It's hardly to be expected that such officials will do much toward building up the government's business. But men like Postmaster Funk at Queen City, who have caught the real spirit of their fiduciary relation with the government, do not hesitate to enlist the ordinary and proper channel of commerce for advancing their employer's interest. If it pays to boom dry goods, new spring hats and checked suits through the newspapers, why shouldn't the same methods boom the sale of postage stamps, stamped envelopes, cards and the issuance of money orders?

Postmaster Funk of Queen City, in a cleverly worded advertisement in the Transcript this week, lets the people know just the sort of stock he is carrying and that he will be pleased to have his customers drop in and inspect samples:

"NOTICE—The postmaster at Queen City desires to call the attention of the patrons of the R. F. D. service to the importance of patronizing their respective routes as far as practicable upon all occasions. Remember that the department has spared neither time nor money in making it possible for these routes to be established for your benefit. You should therefore show your appreciation of these privileges by patronizing them at all times when possible, for in a great measure failure to patronize them has been the direct cause for the discontinuance of many ot them. You will find that your carrier at all times carries a good supply of postage stamps, stamped envelopes, postal cards and all supplies that are carried in the office, and by buying them of your carrier you not only increase the business of the route, but also show the department that you appreciate the benefits of the R. F. D. service. Also remember that when you desire to transmit either large or small sums of money to points in or beyond the boundaries of the United States that the department has provided ample facilities by means of domestic and international money order and the registry system, which provide both a safe and quick way of meeting your demands.

"WM. H. FUNK, P. M."

Facial Massage for Wrinkles.

From Harper's Bazar.

A plentiful use of cold cream, the kind that feeds the skin, and massage are the best cure for wrinkles. Each wrinkle has its own peculiar motion, up from the chin, to cure the sagging around the mouth, gently down on the forehead for the horizontal wrinkles, across for the vertical wrinkles, a rotary motion for the crow's-feet, etc. The motions are all circular, up, and out—never down. The best massage is after the Swedish system. It should not be too vigorous, and, with a fine skin, very gentle.

When the face is to be massaged it is first washed with warm water, and then anointed very thickly with cold cream. After the massage hot applications may be made as described above. Then the face should be thoroughly washed with soap and hot water, and rinsed, and finally cold applications made to close the pores and stimulate a healthy circulation. If the face feels stiff a little cream is rubbed in.

Cotton Petticoats.

From the New York Times.

There is an unusual abundance of embroidered petticoats in linens and cottons this spring. A well made, prettily embroidered cotton petticoat, having its embroidery or chief color matching its costume with which it is worn, is in far better taste than the cheap silk skirt, and is much daintier, as it can be tubbed after every wearing or two, and be as fresh and attractive as ever.

Some of these come in stripes, some in plaids. For example, a charming Scotch gingham is in blue and white, and the lower ruffle, set on an umbrella flounce of the plaid, is embroidered in white.

Another is in pale pink and white striped madras, with the ruffle embroidered in pink.

New Laces for Summer.

From Vogue.

While filet lace in its various charming designs and effects of light or close pattern is greatly in vogue, it does not hold the undisputed sway that was prophesied for it, but instead formidable rivals have appeared in the embroidered laces on round mesh nets, in a perfectly lovely new lace called darnette, and in the silk rim maline laces. In the embroidered brussels net insertings heavy coin spots in silk, in size as large as a five cent piece, are outlined by a raised line; these come in four widths, gauged by the number of dots, four in the widest and decreased to one in the narrowest. Another one done in small coin spots on filet net is in the same number of widths, and this can be had in black and ecru besides the cream white.

To Launder Muslin Dresses.

From the Boston Post.

It is quite a problem to know just how to do up lawn and muslin dresses so they will not be too stiff. The following rule is an excellent one: Dissolve a tablespoonful of gum arabic in about three quarts of water and use this liquid in place of starch. After the articles are dried, sprinkle and iron as usual. The gum arabic will not stick to the iron and gives the goods the stiffness and look of new material. Once tried you will never use starch for delicate fabrics.

CARE OF THE COMPLEXION.

Beauty Hints for the Woman Who Wears Mourning.

Black is the most trying of all colors. Mourning lacks the luster of even the usual black raiment, and hence the woman who dons it often finds that it makes her look haggard, sallow and old. Only the really youthful face and figure look well in all black. The average brunette looks either ghastly or sallow, and mourning brings out the lines and wrinkles in the face of the average blonde.

Black, unrelieved, also accentuates every tiny defect in the skin and makes even a good complexion appear a trifle muddy. It is, therefore, all important that the flesh and the hair should be kept immaculately clean. Oily hair is particularly ugly by contrast with severe mourning, and it must be washed frequently to make it look as fluffy as possible. Between shampoos, it is well to rub the roots of the hair near the face and neck with alcohol, at least once a day.

Freckles and moth-patches also are made more prominent by wearing mourning, and the woman who has never noticed them much before donning black, becomes thoroughly aroused and seeks a remedy. For small light freckles and incipient moth-patches, there is no better remedy than plain lemon juice. Cut a lemon in half and rub the freckles or moth-patches twice a day. If the skin is dry, follow the lemon treatment, say in half an hour, with a touch of cold cream.

If the freckles will not yield to lemon, then a bleach must be used, formula for which I will furnish on receipt of a stamped and self-addressed envelope. However, I never advise the use of this bleach until the lemon cure has been thoroughly tested.

If the skin is generally sallow and muddy, eat plenty of fruit and drink quantities of water. Then try this whitener:

Take two tablespoonfuls of oatmeal, adding one quart of water and boil for ten minutes. Cool and strain, and to the liquid add the juice of one very large or two smaller lemons, and a dessert spoonful of pure alcohol. Wash the face in this, or rather apply it with a cloth, not wiping it all away.

While white ruching or turnover collars of white organdie are worn with mourning blouses, the general effect of black raiment emphasizes any tendency to a yellow neck. With some women the sallow, yellowish neck is a real affliction and it requires vigorous treatment. I am giving a lotion which will prove most effective.

Boric acid, 1 drachm; distilled witch hazel, 2 ounces; rosewater, 2 ounces. Exercise the neck until a free perspiration appears then bathe it off in warm water and apply the above lotion.

Black, and particularly lusterless silks, bring out the beauty of the hand as colors never do. The woman in mourning should therefore be punctilious about her manicuring and above all things keep her nails highly polished.

Beneath the shadow of a lusterless black hat or a draped veil, the face is apt to appear dull and lifeless, if not ghastly. To prevent this, use a bit of make-up, carefully applied, and worked skillfully into the flesh.

Cold cream the face thoroughly, and wipe it off, making sure that not a bit of the cream exudes from the skin, then apply the rouge with a hare's foot on the cheek bones, not in a round spot or a daub, but brokenly, working it out lightly toward the edges where it fades into the natural flesh tint. Then powder the face lightly with the face powder best suited to your skin, white for the very pale blonde, flesh for the ordinary skin, and "Rachel" or brunette for the dark skin. An excellent formula for dry rouge is as follows:

Four ounces of finely bolted talc and two drachms of carmine. Make a solution of gum tragacanth and warm water—a very little only is required. Mix the talc and the carmine first well together, and sift them. Add enough of the diluted gum tragacanth to form into a smooth paste and allow it to dry.

Some women prefer a liquid rouge and a formula for this will be furnished on request. It has frequently appeared in this department.

A touch of color to the lips does much to relieve the deadening effect of mourning. The following lip salve many be used with excellent results and is entirely safe, healing as well as beautifying.

One ounce of spermaceti, fifteen grains of balsam of Peru, fifteen grains of alkanet root; five drops of oil of cloves. Digest the alkanet in the ointment at a gentle heat, till the latter is a deep rose color, then pass through a coarse strainer. When slightly cooled, stir in the balsam, give a few moments to settle and then pour off the clear portion and add the oil of cloves.

Pique and Embroidered Linen.

From Vogue.

Pique stands for smartness this year, and is a welcome revival. White embroidered linen in raised and flat work, as well as in fine soutache braiding, have charming and novel effects upon pique suits, and so have the designed applications, wrought in the same manner in white or colors.

Linens remain favorites with many, but no longer are they the craze they were. Linen crash has a good style of its own, always, but for skirts more especially is it to be used this season. The flowered organdie robes, the fabric selling by the yard, and the same material having bottom edge borders, either in lines, lozenge spots, or geometric figures, show an endless variety—as those also of fine lawns and fine dimities in stripes, cross bars, blocks, etc., both in colors and black and white.

Among the new colors the novelty is a dull mustard yellow and a rich mulberry red, both of which intermixed with white, bespeak much smartness.

Pulling the Eagle's Tail.

From Army and Navy Life.

I knew an Indian, Yellow Eagle, who, in order to get his coup feather, dug a hole in the ground on the open prairie far from camp or habitation. Over it he fixed a covering of brush, upon which was laid the carcass of a freshly slain antelope. In this trap he lay for three days awaiting the eagle's coming.

When at last, lured by the bait, one did alight, he seized it from below, and despite its flapping and clawing and pecking, he plucked the precious feathers before freeing the astonished and terrified bird. I recall none but the American aboriginal who has been able successfully to pull the American eagle's tail.

SKIMMED MILK DIET FOR FAT FOLKS?

Physicians who are callous and hard-hearted prescribe a diet of skimmed milk for the reduction of fat. It is a sure but insupportable method of cure. Other doctors not less successful but more considerate of their patient's comfort prescribe a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following: One-half ounce Marmola, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and three and one-half ounces Syrup Simplex, which is, by the way, just as sure and quick a means of relief as the old-fashioned skimmed milk method and a far more pleasant one, for a fat person can eat the same variety and quantity of food as usual while taking this remedy and still lose twelve to sixteen ounces of superfluous flesh a day.

THE Metropolitan lobbied at Jefferson City to defeat the bill to enable Kansas City to regulate its public service corporations. It operated in the Lower House of the Council to prevent the establishing of a Utilities commission. Is there any reason to suppose its attitude will change after April 7?

PERIOD HAT FOR SILK OR CLOTH COSTUME. FINE STRAW WITH BAND OF EMBROIDERY AROUND CROWN.

PICTURESQUE MILLINERY.

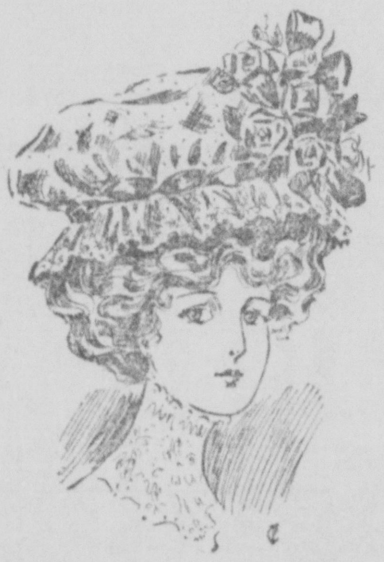
EVIDENTLY there are to be no simple, ladylike little hats in this year's Easter parade—unless a few brave women defy the millinery world and have something simple and ladylike made to order.

The woman who trembled in the face of last fall's millinery openings is destined to have nervous prostration before she has rounded up this spring's offerings.



FOR WEAR WITH LINGERIE FROCKS.

While standing before a smart show window a few days since my attention was caught by despondent tones on my right. A comfortable, matronly person of about 40 was clutching her companion's arm and studying the picturesque display behind the huge sheet of plate glass.

"Mary," she murmured in the tone of one doomed to folly, "Mary, do you think you and I will really come to anything like that? Those overturned washbowls, and quart measures, and floral topknots? My goodness, there isn't one commonsense hat in the lot."

She struck the keynote of the season's display. It is not common sense—but oh, how lovely! And if just the right clerk got hold of that despondent shopper, her hair was fluffed to just the right stage of youthfulness, and an overturned flowerpot or quart measure or butterbowl, with tiptilted flowers would change the tired-looking matron into a most bride like person.

For the season is nothing if not youthful, and a clever milliner can fit one of those absurdly youthful models to a middle-aged face with pleasing results. It is purely a matter of selecting the right colors and twisting a ribbon here, the brim there and tucking in a flower at the last point.

A SEASON OF ODD SHAPES.

It is a season of odd shapes and unlimited variety in materials. A clever girl can even take a last season's small straw shape and make it over into one of the new big shapes by alternating the straw with shirrings or plaitings of net. You can dye old straw braid and be almost sure of striking a desirable color, for the more peculiar the coloring the more smart your hat is considered. The only quiet combination noted is black and white, and often these colors are so arranged as to be garish. Hardly any hats appear in two or three tones of the same color. Generally the colors are strongly contrasting.

If the frame of the hat is brown the facing may be a grayish blue that is almost but not quite an Alice blue, and the trimming will be violets and pink roses, or huge American beauty roses.

A favorite combination is pale pink and blue for delicate hats, and the deeper natier blue with American beauty or large cabbage roses. One of the Frenchiest hats at a recent opening was a picturesque shape with brim drooping in the back and on the right side, and rolling upward over the face and on the left side, while the crown was almost thimble shaped. The brim was of figured net, with a narrow fold of pale blue mirror velvet on edge. The crown was overlaid with enormous rose petals, overlapping each other. In the front of the hat was a huge chou of pale blue mirror velvet against which delicately tinted but very large pink roses nestled.

Another smart, low crowned sailor was of burnt orange satin straw, the brim faced with natier blue tulle closely shirred, the crown hidden by wired loops of natier blue velvet ribbon and masses of American beauty roses.

FLOWERS IN BRIGHT COLORS.

Vividly tinted flowers are the most noticeable feature of the season, and one of the most extravagant. A full sized American beauty rose costs $2.50, half blown buds and foliage in proportion. When to a mass of flowers is added a sweeping osprey or several ostrich plumes, $30 is a moderate price for the hat.

Straws, fancy braids and laces are all dyed in the most brilliant tones. Among the favorite colorings are golden brown (with a decided accept on the word golden), violet verging on purple, American beauty and raspberry, forest green, lotus or peacock blue, and all shades of duller blues such as natier, Copenhagen, etc. Mauve and gun metal are the only dead colors noticed, and even these, it in straw, have a dash of color in the trimming.

From Paris comes word that later these vivid colors will become cheap and undesirable, and then more subdued and restful tints will be in demand. To meet this emergency, foreign looms are turning out trimmings in "ashes of roses," "ashes of violets," greens and blues that apparently have passed through a crucible and all burnt shades of brown and yellow, many of which will be combined with white or softest gray shades for midsummer wear.

AVOID MEDIOCRITY IN SIZE AND COLOR.

Of the making of shapes there is practically no end. The hat can be neither too large nor too small. All it must avoid is mediocrity in size and tint. The sailors for wear with tailored suits are tremendously broad and with a very flat crown absolutely round. They are raised slightly on a bandeau and worn at a wee tilt upward on the left side. The flat crown is hidden by masses of trimming which, to be very correct, must be applied flatly. Broad, flat Alsatian or "Merry Widow" bows are used for this purpose, and a favorite mode of trimming is low billows of mirror velvet in which many broad winged birds nestle.

If the sailor is not broad and flat, it is narrow and high, with a crown out of all proportion in width and height to its absurd little brim. Quite frequently these sailors have flutings of ribbon or net on the edge of the straw brim.

Speaking of flutings reminds me that the Louis XVI toque, with frills of lace, entwined with gold braid or lace and tiny flowers, is again in favor as an evening or very dressy hat. Another French hat recalls the reign of King Henry, for it is distinctly a period or costume hat, generally in coloring made to match exactly the brilliantly-hued gown. Around its sloping crown is a band of brilliant embroidery, Japanese, Chinese or Persian, which harmonizes with the costume and likewise appears in the vest. Upon such a hat many plumes are used, one at least falling over the shoulder and the remainder rising, cockade like, on the side of the hat. Incidentally the coque pompon, so popular during the winter, has been replaced by a pompon of rose leaves, velvet or silk exquisitely tinted and frosted. Some of these are ten or twelve inches in height, and are used on the so-called walking hats.

SUMMER LINEN GOWNS.

Skirts Drawn About the Waist and Hips on Sashlike Folds.

From a Paris Letter.

Many summer gowns in fine linen are being made with a slightly draped corselet tunic, which in front reaches only about half way to the knees, but behind drops long. This is bordered with a mixture of crochet lace and filet in a design of personages and bizarre animals, while the underskirt is in plaited finely dotted mull with more lace at the hem. It is more than ever smart to carry a broad straight band of bright embroidery or of rich lace across the front of the bust, this breadth causing the waist and hips to seem smaller in comparison, as is desired by the present fashions.

Skirts on summer gowns, when of tussore or thin silk voiles or of heavily dotted tulle in the fashionable grays, cherry or Nattier blue, are drawn about the waist and hips on sash-like folds, and very often a slashing and a shooting up of the hem at front or back gives an opportunity to add an end of fringe or a piece of lace or embroidery that carries out the sash effect and stimulates the trimmed sash end.

It is significant of Parisian habits to notice the shop girls and lesser work girls, both in the fashionable and in the bizarre quarters of the city, for, though always hatless, always short-skirted, always in a plain black skirt and blouse that never by any chance apes the fashionable vagaries of the superior classes, yet invariably her waistline is set at the proper tilt and angle. By some clever rearrangement and manipulation, she causes her cheap ready-made skirts to mount snugly about her torse, and her belt is placed high and round in the most adorable manner.

An Autograph Cook Book.

From the April Woman's Home Companion.

A gift suitable to any time of the year, original, home made, one that will bring joy to any housewife's heart, is an autograph cook book.

First make a list of your intimate friends. Those noted for their good cooking and housewifely virtues of course should head the list. Write to each of them a personal note, asking them to write out and send to you their favorite recipe. In each note inclose a stamped envelope with a sheet of paper of uniform size for the written recipe. Then wait.

Presently in will come whole flocks of white envelopes, each inclosing the recipe which is the particular pride of the particular housewife who donates it. And before long what a collection you will have! When all the names have been accounted for, you must get to work and bind the sheets into a book. Vellum makes a good cover, and if a more serviceable one is desired, ooze leather, purchased at a leather shop, may be used. Red leather, lettered in gold or black, looks well, and the initials of the lucky recipient should be added in one corner.

Chocolate Fudge.

Place in a porcelain saucepan one pound of granulated sugar, half a teacup of sweet milk, one level tablespoon of butter, two ounces or squares of baker's chocolate, and boil for about fifteen minutes. Remove from the fire, add one teaspoonful of vanilla and beat with a fork until it begins to cool. Do not stir while cooking. Pour into buttered square tins to the depth of half an inch. Before it gets cold, dip a knife into ice water and mark off into squares.

It will be noticed that square tins are advised for cooling, because then there is no waste in all-shapen sweets. The marble slab mentioned is found in many households for the making of pastry.

How to Protect Clothes From Moths.

From the Boston Post.

To insure clothes against moths in summer without the disagreeable odor of moth balls, use unbleached cotton cloth. Hang the garment you wish to protect on a coat hanger and make a bag of unbleached cloth large enough to slip the garment and coat hanger into. Have a hem on top of the bag, into which run a draw string. By pulling the string very tight the bag will close up, and your garments will be perfectly safe, as the moths will not eat their way through unbleached cloth.

To Wash Windows.

From Harper's Bazar.

Every woman who does her own work dreads the day when the windows have to be washed. She will find it very easy if she will follow these directions:

A basin of cold water, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of coal oil. Wash and dry with a soft cloth.

COIFFURE OF THE MOMENT

THIS SEASON'S HAT DEMANDS A POMPADOUR, SWITCH, PUFFS AND CURLS

For Ordinary Wear This Arrangement of the Hair Is Piled High on the Head and the Correct Ornament Is a High Back Comb.

Millinery eccentricities, such as those thrust upon the feminine world this season, make serious demands upon the woman in the matter of hairdressing. The average woman has not sufficient natural hair to support the up-to-date hat, so we will first consider how to make the most of the hair she has, and then how to build up the coiffure with artificial hair at the least expense.

Heavy, oily or matted hair will not build the correct coiffure of the moment. "Ratted" effects are completely out of date. The woman with very dry, crinkly hair must apply brilliantine to secure the correct, satin-like sheen, while the woman with damp, oily hair must wash it frequently, or apply a lotion which absorbs the oil and makes the hair fluffy. Brilliantine can be purchased at the average drug store or beauty shop, but as several correspondents have asked for a formula to prepare this necessary toilet article at home, I am giving it herewith:

Brilliantine—Castor oil, 4 fluid drams; sweet almond oil, 3½ fluid ounces; glycerin, 3½ fluid drams; Jockey Club extract, 3 fluid drams; alcohol enough to make 8 ounces.

The simplest and most popular method of dressing the hair starts with either the Marcel or loose wave, arranged in a pompadour and finished high on top of the head with either masses of curls or puffs cunningly combined or with a switch or the natural hair arranged in loops. The woman who has little hair should depend upon her natural tresses for the pompadour and buy the switch, puffs or curls necessary to build up the coiffure proper. Unless what is known as the transformation or false pompadour is adjusted by an expert it gives the appearance of a wig. It is also far more expensive than the switch or puffs.

Incidentally keep your artificial hair as clean and fluffy as your natural hair. Wash it, brush it thoroughly, never allow it to mat and your dearest enemy will not guess that you are wearing false hair.

Do not use hot irons on your hair either for the Marcel wave or loose wave. Patent curlers come for both and in fact for the loose, irregular wave there is nothing better than a flat, old-fashioned kid curler. The big, thick curlers make a large, broad wave, the smaller ones a finer, closer wave.

A very good Marcel waver recently placed on the market is shaped like a long steel hairpin with a bodkin at each point. Through these points a ribbon is run which is a trifle longer than the hairpin. The moist hair is divided into strands and woven in and out over both steel pin and ribbon, then the pin is withdrawn, leaving a combination weave of hair and ribbon. The ends of the ribbon are tied, the hair forming a semicircle. In this way no pins are left in the hair and the wearer can sleep in comfort.

HOW TO WAVE THE POMPADOUR.

In preparing to wave your pompadour divide the hair all round the head about two inches deep. Allow this to hang over the face, ears and nape of neck, and, gathering up what is left at the crown of the head, either twist it lightly or braid and then twist it temporarily according to the amount you have. Now, wave the hair either with irons or patent curlers, as you choose (the latter will require at least an hour's pressure), and then bind around your entire head, close to the scalp, a ribbon or cloth bandage about two inches wide, which holds the entire pompadour away from the edge of the scalp and secures the peculiar "set-back" effect which brings the pompadour up to date. This means that there will be the effect of the pompadour starting about an inch or more away from the face and then being fluffed out.

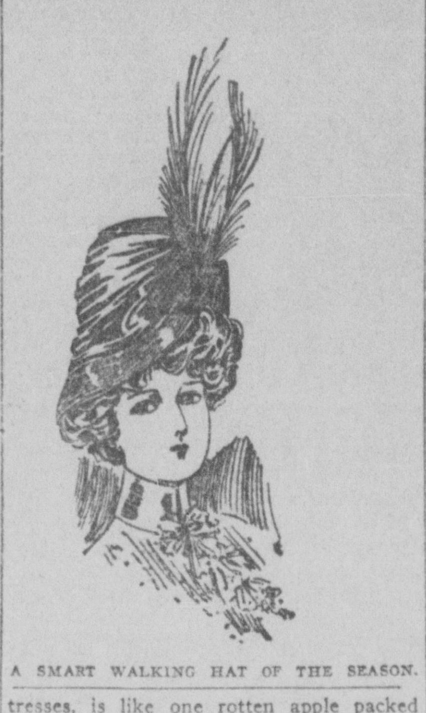
If your pompadour is not thick, then it is better to get a fine rat of good, not cheap, hair on which to build your coiffure. Do not rat the hair—i. e., comb it backward on the under side. This breaks the hair.

PUFFS AND CURLS TOP THE CROWN.

When you have built your pompadour, see what can be done with the hair you braided or knotted at the crown. The dressy coiffure shows either puffs or a combination of puffs and curls, and unless your hair is very long you can soon learn to make puffs, rolling them over your finger and finishing them smoothly with bit of brilliantine. For evening wear, a bit of tulle, ribbon or velvet or even a wreathe of wee flowers may be coiled in and out of the puffs and curls. For ordinary wear, the puffs or switch arranged in loose coils or loops, are piled well on top of the hair, and the correct ornament is a rather high back comb. Side combs may also be used to hold the pompadour in place, but the high back comb is essential.

The low coiffure is seen only on the heads of very young girls, and in truth only a well built, decidedly thick coiffure will support the new hats.

In buying false hair, remember that a switch is a better all-around investment than puffs or short curls. You can never work the latter over into a switch, but with a good switch you can build puffs. When you buy false hair, save until you can buy what is known as live hair. Never buy a very cheap switch, because dead hair, laid against your own live tresses, is like one rotten apple packed among solid ones in a barrel. The germ of death spreads.



A SMART WALKING HAT OF THE SEASON.

CHURCH ETIQUETTE.

Various Points Which Indicate Good Form Among Churchgoers.

Not so long ago one or the country's leading magazines created a veritable tempest in a teapot among church people by publishing the experiences of a strange young woman who attended services in many cities and was often treated rudely, almost invariably ignored by members of the various congregations.

Aside from the ethical side of the question, the duty of the church member to the stranger within the church doors, this series of articles raised the question in more than one church: "What constitutes church etiquette?"

There are various points which indicate good form among regular or occasional church goers. One of these is dress. Loud, garish or careless dressing for church is extremely bad form. One woman wears a costume fit only for a reception, with a much plumed hat and floating veil, while her neighbor goes to the other extreme and thinks that any old thing is good enough for church wear. Between these two is the happy medium.

A well made, not too severe tailored suit with matching waist in subdued coloring, or a two-piece suit of cloth, silk or velvet, according to the season, with a separate coat or wrap not over trimmed but of elegant material, a small hat or toque and tan or gray gloves make a sensible church outfit. Over trimmed short jackets with elbow sleeves and long white kid gloves, enormous hats loaded down with feathers or flowers, and striking veils with huge dots or embroidered hems and long floating ends, are not good form at church. Indeed, many conservative women will not wear veils at all in the church, but remove at the entrance the small mesh veil which has protected the hair outdoors.

The well-dressed man in church wears dark striped gray trousers subdued gray or white waistcoat, black frock coat, high silk hat and gray gloves. In the matter of ties, any subdued coloring is good form, black, dark blue, green, gray or white silk. Striking colors like purple, orange or red are not good form for church wear. A cane may be carried to church even by a young man.

Next to the frock coat comes the English walking suit, which has rather a long coat, and the man of limted means who cannot indulge in many suits should reserve for church wear something dark and unobtrusive, never wearing the striking check or stripe which he may use for business.

If you are a pew-holder, especially in a large and well-attended church, have a distinct understanding with the ushers regarding the occupancy of your pew. If you do not wish strangers seated therein because you may have guests of your own to completely fill it, notify the ushers to this effect. And having consented that a certain number of strangers may share your pew, do not treat them as if they are intruders. For the time being they are your guests. See that they are supplied with hymn books, the ritual, etc., and when the service is over, express the hope that they enjoyed the service. A few pleasant words of this sort do not bind you to recognize these transients should you meet later on the street.

A Possible Disclosure

One of the things disclosed by the New York City Utilities commission was the amount paid by the street railway companies to political campaign funds.

That would be one of the interesting disclosures by an effective Utilities commission in Kansas City.

AT THE TOWN SPRING.

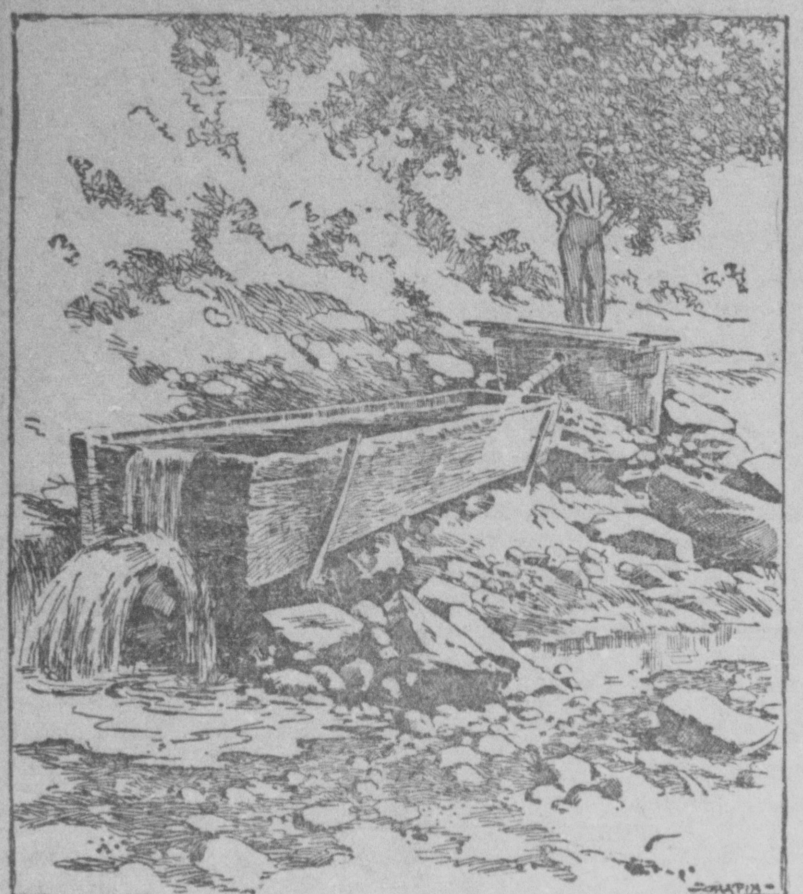
WE get out of our beds early in the morning in old towns on the Missouri river like Arrow Rock. Nobody has any "call," unless sick, to lie abed during the best hours of the day.



AT THE TOWN SPRING.

So this very morning, when the writer had suddenly awakened, the unrisen sun had made the east rosy and golden. From his window the aroused one saw the chickens in a yard across the way drop down from their roosts in the trees and hurry about, searching for the early bugs and worms. Lie abed? No, siree! He gets right up and proceeds to don his vestments. Standing in a contemplative attitude, with one loose overall suspender held poised over shoulder, he looks out the window down into a side street that corners there with the town's main thoroughfare, and sees the biggest and heaviest man in the community, Bill Amick, the mail carrier, leading along his blaze-faced sorrel; the brown team-mate following meditatively after. Bill is taking his horses to water down at the town spring, and taking them early, because he must have the mail hack all ready at the postoffice soon after breakfast.

The town spring! So near—down the hill slope just a piece and you are there—and I had not been to it nor wandered in its glen for a month. Yet the walk to it and about it is one of the most pleasant in or about the old home town. I resolve to go to the spring and saunter around there awhile as soon as I have eaten breakfast.

The side street that corners at my home tavern is down hill all its way in town, which is also all the way to the spring. When the street ceases to be down hill—at a bridge over the spring branch above the spring—it quits being a street and became a public road that takes the traveler down Lamine way and around the big curve of the river bend to Boonville, twenty miles away.

Can anything be more grateful to the eye, more potent in charging the mind with kindly thought toward all and everything, than a splendid, never-failing spring of cold, pure, clear, healthful, abundant water, the generous, spontaneous gift of mother nature to every living thing, and one that the good mother never fails to adorn with surroundings charmingly in accord with her bounty?

Of such character is the public spring at the old town of Arrow Rock. And more, for in full harmony with nature's generosity, the pioneer who nearly a hundred years ago donated a large portion of the land on which the town is built, for the town site, gave also this spring for the benefit of the townspeople for all time to come. The name of that pioneer who did not allow even nature to exceed him in unselfish and farsighted generosity was Burton Lawless, and his wife, Nancy, joined with him in the deed of gift. The noble spring is their worthy monument. What better, finer monument could any have? What more lasting and imperishable?

I walk slowly down the old roadway in the rear of a long, strung-out procession of geese in single file, all bound for the places where the waters run. It is a sunken road with steep, grass grown banks on both sides, as though it had been at some time graded so. True, it has been graded to far below the level of the surroundings, but not at any one particular time. The grading down has been done by the wear and tear of many years of travel. A down hill curve for about the length of two city blocks brings me near a wooden bridge over a branch and a byway, as much traveled as the main highway, leads me to the left a few paces over the gravel spots and grassy levels of a pretty glen through which the brook runs. A long step or two over the rocks in the little stream and I am at the spring, taking drink from its big wooden horse trough like a horse, standing. There is a local tradition that whoever drinks from the waters of this spring must some day come back to Arrow Rock to live and die there, or at least never get over the feeling of a mighty wanting to. Many years ago I first drank of these waters and I have considerable faith in that tradition. It is true in my case and among the many I have met in the world outside the old town, who have been there, not one but has felt the same way.

The spring gushes out as though boiling over from a little pocket in the steep hillside, seven or eight feet above the level bottom along the branch. It seems to come from the loose, damp, alluvial, moss covered soil of the bank side like a wet weather spring or one of those we Missourians term "a mud vein." But looking down into its swirls and curvetings one sees through its clear, agitated turmoils the clean, white base rock and the crevices through which the waters gush upward eager for the world and freedom and light. The main flow is diverted into a big, round, iron tank, larger than an ordinary flour barrel, a little below the spring-mouth and thence by a two-inch pipe down into a long oaken trough at a convenient height above level ground for stock watering. Over the distant end of the trough the clear water pours in a sheet like a miniature waterfall to add its volume to the ripples of the little branch which never goes dry below the big spring. All down the bank side from the spring's first gush to earth's surface are little streamlets of waters that escape the thrall of tank and pipe and trough, and each in its own free way plays hide and seek down the slope through moss and soil and over rock to meet and go away with its own kind and kin in the brook which comes from minor springs and seeps above.

It is most healthful water, free from organic or mineral substances as few springs are. It comes from the rising ground opposite to the ridge on which the town stands and from sources uncontaminated by the pollution of somewhat congested human habitation for generations. The old spring has never been affected by seasons of excessive rain or drought either in the quantity or quality of its water since times beyond the record of white men or tradition of the Indians. During the drought of 1901, the most severe ever known in this region, when nearly every well and spring in the whole countryside went dry and all the cisterns gave out, the old spring at Arrow Rock flowed right along as plentifully as ever. People came for miles around to haul water from it for household necessities and many droves of thirsty stock were driven in and watered there daily. There was water in plenty for all and more. Now at any time when cisterns about town give out, as they will at times, nobody worries. The standby of the old spring is close at hand, the trip there with water barrels on wagon or sled and the filling and return more of a pleasurable pastime than a hardship or inconvenience.

The slopes of the hillsides back of the spring and all along the glen down in the branch ravine are dotted with tree and bush growth, oak, elm, black locust, maple, and now the uppermost parts of many of them are illumined with the green haze of the spring time's first unfolding leaves. There are many dwarf cedars on the slopes and here and there the weather stained rock strata protrudes and shades the ferns growing in the moist earth beneath. Mosses in infinite variety abound. Up on the hillside back of the spring I climbed and there, peeping out from blue grass shoots and tiny leaves of young clover, I found my first wood violet of the year.

The narrow glen that homes both spring and branch is one where philosopher might muse, poet dream, the weary rest and the disturbed tranquillize. Standing by the spring, one can look down this glen through arching trees and fretwork of leaf and limb and V of parted bluff line and catch glimpses of the big river of Missouri as it flows.

But at this morning hour near the spring one is not left alone for long. It is the hour when incoming travelers along the big road turn aside to water horse or mule or driven cattle and when a large portion of the stabled or lot-penned animals in town are brought for the morning drink. Better than any of the water hereabouts do the dumb creatures like the water of the town spring. How the patient, hard working animals do enjoy it! They drink heartily, pause and drink again to final satisfaction, and then play in it, flirting it about with extended upper lips as long as the master permits.

A cavalcade comes down the old road and upon me as I loiter singly, in twos and threes, horses, mules and cows, some ridden, some led, some driven and some following. The cavaliers are young, old and middle aged, and both white and black. Mixed with the procession is a bunch of colored women with baskets on their arms and a very bowlegged small black boy carrying a butcher knife. These last are bound for the hillsides to dig early spring greens. There comes the big four-horse livery hack crowded with small boys, who will help the liveryman with the semi-annual washing of the vehicle in the branch. There is contention as to who will be let have the big sponge and after a splattering time over wheels and body, dashboard and seats the gang scatters to wade, to catch minnows that now are darting about, to pile rocks on a land terrapin, to get muddy and wet—and get what is coming to them when they return home to shocked mothers.

Such things have been going on about the old spring since long before you and I were born. In fact the beneficent spring, the good safe ferrying place over the river and the site atop the big bluff were the chief elements in founding the town and keeping it going after it was founded. Early pioneers, who crossed at what the Indians had long named "the Arrow Rock" found the crossing practicable, convenient and time and distance saving, found the big spring up the glen and drank from it, climbed the hill to the plateau on top, took a look all 'round and concluded that here was a mighty good place to have a town. Finding all these things so handily close together they founded Arrow Rock.

A Famous Contrivance Which May Still Be Seen at Princeton.

From the New York Evening Post.

In a forgotten corner of the School of Science building at Princeton lie the remains of the once celebrated Rittenhouse orrery, an ingenious mechanical contrivance for illustrating by actual model the motion of the planets in their orbits.

The story of this machine, which a century ago was the pride of America and the envy of Europe, is a story of a fallen greatness.

In 1770 David Rittenhouse, one of the early American astronomers, was a poor clockmaker at Norriton, Pa. Although as old as the Greeks, orreries until Rittenhouse's day had never been made to work satisfactorily. He, however, devised one on such an improved method that in the spring of 1770, after employing more than three years in perfecting it and, after spending far more for materials than he could afford, he produced a machine whose educational value as an object lesson in astronomy was so great that its possession became at once a matter of competition.

Dr. William Smith, provost of the University of Pennsylvania, purposed buying it for the Philadelphia college, but considered the price excessive. While he was trying to make up his mind to pay the amount, President Witherspoon of Princeton quietly went down to Norriton, examined the wonderful machine and promptly closed the deal by laying down the $1,500 asked by Rittenhouse. The chagrin of Provost Smith was intense and Rittenhouse was even charged with disloyalty to his state and its university.

The orrery was shipped to Princeton and duly placed in the college philosophical cabinet, where it became at once its most valuable asset. When the British and Hessians occupied Princeton in the winter of 1776-1777 and ravaged the village and neighborhood, Lord Cornwallis gave special directions that the Rittenhouse orrery should not be harmed, as he intended taking it to England as a trophy of war. It was only the unexpected defeat encountered by the British shortly afterward that prevented the orrery from crossing the Atlantic.

Rough handling by inquisitive soldiers did it some injury, but repairs were made and after the Revolution it was as good as ever. Thomas Jefferson referred to it with enthusiasm; poets sang its praises and for many years it continued to add to the fame of its maker, until at length America awoke to the fact that scientifically it could never be more than a curiosity, and that Rittenhouse's fame should rest rather on his astronomical achievements than on a mere mechanical toy.

The first volume of the "Transactions of the American Philosophical Society" contains an elaborate description of the orrery. The planets represented by globes of various sizes moved in elipses and their progress around the sun was contrived to reproduce accurately the motion of the heavenly bodies.

To add an æsthetic touch, the clockwork that operated the mechanism was arranged to run at the same time a musical box. Thus while studying the motion of the planets the undergraduate seekers after knowledge of Princeton could, if desired, have their ears tickled by sweet melody.

The last public appearance of the orrery was at the World's fair at Chicago, where it occupied a place of honor in the Princeton exhibit.

The Metropolitan in Politics

The Metropolitan is the most potent single factor in Kansas City politics.

It is Democratic or Republican, as suits its purposes. This spring it is Democratic, because it failed to get from Mayor Beardsley the franchise extension it wants and because he insists on a Public Utilities commission that will not wear the Metropolitan's collar.

It has given manifold evidence of its interest and activity in the Democratic ticket. It sent its lawyer to preside in the convention and into the campaign to slander and vilify those opposed to the Metropolitan's designs to cheat the people of Kansas City. Other agents of the Metropolitan are busy in all the ramifications of campaign activity.

In the last campaign, the county election in the fall of 1906, the Metropolitan was Republican. Republican office holders are in the courthouse by reason of its aid. And many of these office holders are lukewarm in their support of Mayor Beardsley.

Don't you think it is time to put the Metropolitan permanently out of politics?

THE New York Theater Letter

FRANKLYN FYLES CHATS ABOUT PLAYS & THE PEOPLE APPEARING IN THEM

NEW YORK, April 3.—The advertisements named no new play here this week; but I found three at the opening of the Pioneer theater, where drama is meant to "appeal to those who do not yet know the significance of socialism," and to "focus latent forces in the cause of economic justice." The theater, just around a Bowery corner, was a grimy old place, and had of late been used by a Yiddish company. An audience of 500 crowded it. The first lesson was "The Moral Demand," in which a moralist besought a wayward actress to return to respectability as his wife; but she decided to remain emancipated from matrimony, and so he, being fascinated, became her affinitive companion. A second lesson was "Their Daughter," in which the sordid hypocrisy of one marriage was depicted by a poor girl's cajolery and deception of a rich man. A clever and pretty young actress, Muriel Hope, had been hired to make the lessons in free love and fettering wedlock effectual.

The third lesson, "The Dolls," had been written by Julius Hopp, organizer of socialistic Sunday schools and founder of this Pioneer theater. The forces which he seeks to antagonize were personated by two little girls. Alice was the daughter of a wealthy man who, to gratify her pampered whim, brought home from his toy manufactory every day a fine, new doll. Anna's mother was an unfed widow, who came to beg for work, and brought her hungry child along. The father, fondly indulgent to his Alice, had no feeling for the widow's Anna. The woman pleaded for work, and the man refused aid. Alice and Anna childlishly prattled the social enmities of their parents. And Mr. Hopp gave the sympathy to poor Anna by having her accused of stealing one of rich Alice's surplus dolls, which she had taken to play with innocently. The widow climaxed the play with a declaration that the poor, lacking even rag dolls for pleasure, had a right to seize the elegant wax dolls of the rich.

"If these hogs won't let us famished creatures get to the trough of food," was the gist of the harangue, "they may expect us to slice the bacon from their own fattened sides."

In the forenoon, Hopp had assembled poor pupils from his socialistic Sunday schools to see "The Dolls" and learn to hate the rich. In the afternoon, while the play was being given for the education of adults and at just about the minute when the widow berated the father in the Pioneer theater—as nearly as I could calculate the time afterward—an Anarchist at the Socialist's meeting in Union square mangled himself and killed a comrade in an attempt to destroy a squad of police with a bomb that became a boomerang.

A quest of stage novelty for a letter filled usually by accounts of new plays took me to "A Night in Bohemia." Vaudeville is being varied ingeniously. I described lately the device of putting forth the American Eva Tanguay and the English Vesta Victoria ostensibly as contestants for audiences' award of supremacy; and I made it inferential that the contest was a fake; yet, when that week's Saturday night came, Vesta was so hoarse with strained vocal cords that she couldn't sing, and Eva, was it gleeful exultation? danced so violently as to stop herself with a sprained ankle. Not much longer ago, I told how the "amateur night" had grown from a lark once a week, at the cheaper variety houses, to an extra hour of prearranged fun, in which real novices were not submitted to impromptu ridicule, but the butts of abuse were hired performers, who pretended to be dazed by the first glare of the footlights. "A Night in Bohemia" is an invention to make up, on Sunday, for the Sabbatarian law's elimination of dances, acrobatic acts, playlets and everything else except singing, plain speaking and instrumental music.

New Yorkers bite hungrily at hooks baited with promises of oddity. Twelve hundred paid the best drama prices for seats at this show of stunts. They saw on the stage a dozen pairs of men and girls seated at one large table and two small ones. The advertisements had said that Californians would dominate the occasion. A man of gray dignity, and declared to be a San Francisco judge of high degree—but wasn't he an actor of heavy fathers out of a job?—presided at the main table. The twenty-three other wearers of dinner coats and polished white shirts were less impressive; they looked as if the week-night supper's wage of half a dollar had been cut down to a quarter; and the dozen girls hadn't been asked over from the Bowery to Broadway to sit in at the coffee and cigarette end of a dinner, but they may have made some observers guess so. The audience was asked to fancy that some chummy Californians had been celebrating the golden state, and were convivially hilarious, when the rising curtain exposed them to view quite unexpectedly.

A high tenor balladist stood by a piano, the player of which stood equitably by him. The Californian young gentlemen at the tables were trying to keep their misfit shirt fronts straight by strutting in their seats, while they toyed with glasses that showed no stain of California grape squeeze. The only bottle nozzled with the shreds of a champagne seal stood close to the operative elbow and protective hand of the judge from San Francisco, and the one visible cigar was kept burning by his good old gray Honor's breath bellows. The girl guests, who would have looked true to truth if billed as chair-warmers from the camp concert halls of '49, were nibbling at what I guessed were dessert bits of cake and candy, till the prolonged durability of the cuds tipped me off to a better bet that the material of such slow mastication couldn't be aught else than gum.

The management had been too respectful of James A. Herne's memory to attempt an effacement of the turkey dinner in "Shore Acres." Nothing smelt, fizzed or was otherwise realistic "in Bohemia." The method was more suggestively artistic, more impressionably vague, more imaginatively atmospheric; for didn't the judge mention the banquet as having been held mainly at a neighboring restaurant, and brought thence to let the audience see it's finish? I would not like to appear presumptuous, my ideas are bound to be crude as to this affair of exquisite taste; but wouldn't it have been a masterstroke of genius to provide two dozen indestructible quill toothpicks to those two dozen Californians, so that in the ensuing show they could keep up the illusion of a preceding repast by picking invisible bits of it out of their wordless mouths?

The portly old fellow who played the California judge was as wooden a stick as ever was cast for a comedy role. As toastmaster at a dinner of undertakers he would be too funereal, and when he stood up to introduce the first specialist, I wouldn't have been surprised to hear him say: "Friends desiring to view the remains may now have the opportunity to do so." What he did say was: "Two young gentlemen from San Francisco have promised to entertain us. They are somewhere in the house. We will try to find them." Thereupon an operator of a searchlight aimed it here and there until it illumined two chaps on their way down an aisle across a footbridge over the absent orchestra's pit and thence to the stage.

"In the phrase of the early Californian music hall," the judge said, "don't shoot them, for they'll do the best they can."

Their best was bad doggerel and worse dialogue; and while they were at it the audience all but rated "A Night in Bohemia" as an "amateur night" to be enjoyed by guying if at all.

---

The premonitions of raillery in the audience caused visible nervousness on the stage; the young ladies and gentlemen from California caught an uneasy cue from the judge as they sipped air from dry glasses, ate nothing with bare spoons from empty dishes, or chewed gum. A waiter made a busy round of the tables and seemed to take away many orders from the guests, but he never came back with anything except a highball and a cigar for the chairman. Am I wrong in the insinuation that he was an actor on a mercenary job? Was he a real judge rewarded only by whisky and tobacco?

In spite of all that "A Night in Bohemia" was good enough entertainment, for among those summoned from the audience were several of the cleverest monologists in vaudeville; and a zest was given to the show by the nonsensical assumption of revelry.

Yes, the circus of 1908 has come to the village of New York, and no new play offers itself in opposition. That affords the excuse to borrow some neighbors' children and submit to a sameness of show that would bring a pain before the end of the evening, but that its newness to the tots gives them pleasure. Barnum & Bailey have crossed the Styx to the Land of the Unknowable, where the circus business may not perplex their souls with problems of novelty; but the managers of the Circus trust, which has concentrated the shows of Barnum, Bailey, Forepaugh, the Sells and the Ringlings, would give a hundred thousand dollars for a thriller equal to looping the loop, but different and original. For three seasons, and now again, the best device of spectacular excitement is a variant of the familiar toboggan, down which a vehicle glides to a somersault at the bottom. In this year's show, two cars made the descent simultaneously, one right after the other. At the end of the incline, the leading vehicle strikes a sharp upward turn of its track, and is flung upward in a half turn, landing reversed on a padded platform, while the following vehicle simply jumps a gap underneath the other, and alights further on. It is an ingenious piece of machinery, but people are so accustomed to that sort of thing—some by turnover rides at Coney Island—that a woman would have to be killed at each performance to arouse enthusiasm. Yet this act is scheduled as a desperate race; and that is what it looks like, with the rearward vehicle shooting across a forty-foot break in the track, and winning a lead while the other is somersaulting in the air overhead; yet blase New Yorkers view it tranquilly.

The tip-top excitant of this year's Barnum & Bailey show is easy and nearly safe. A natty woman rides out on a nobby horse to a dinky platform, which is hitched to a mock balloon, and is lifted slowly to a height of a hundred feet. The beast stands stock still, but his dilated nostrils, foaming mouth and outbreaking sweat betray his agitation. When at the top of the rise, fireworks edging the platform are set off, and while they flare and sizzle around the woman and the beast, the people cheer as though something difficult and hazardous were being done.

"Oh," said an old man behind me, "I wish I could see a real, good, old-fashioned one-ring circus with a talking clown like Dan Rice." I wonder if that same grumbler would grin again at Dan Rice's jokes. Of course, ring jesters are impracticable in the enormous spaces of this circus, and instead a troop of men are turned loose for pantomimic fun.

Some real clowns are employed, but the force of fools is without much comicality, except such as is provided for them to operate mechanically. The best of these devices is a burlesque of the sight-seeing automobiles nicknamed rubberneck cars. It is big enough to seat twenty passengers, men, women and children; and at first sight, when the vehicle starts on its round of the arena, they look like human beings exaggerated but slightly as to faces. Soon, though, a woman's head stretches above her shoulders by means of a rubber neck as she seems to spy something curious in the multitude; immediately a man and a boy stretch their necks to see the same thing; and thenceforth, one after another, or several at once, they go rubbernecking on the entire circuit of the arena. Considerable pains to take for two or three minutes of laughter, but it makes the heartiest hilarity of the evening.

STOCK AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Miss Eva Lang and Jack Chagnon to Appear in the Leading Roles.

The Woodward Stock company will open a short season at the Auditorium April 18. It is announced that the company which has been secured this season is one of the best that has appeared under that name, and although many favorites have been secured, the company has been augmented considerably. It is said the list of plays to be presented comprises the latest New York successes. The opening bill, "His House in Order," which was presented here last season by John Drew, is a play that will serve to demonstrate the acting strength of the company.

Miss Eva Lang, who for the last three years has played the leading roles with the Woodward Stock company, will again appear at the head of the organization. The leading man will be Jack Chagnon, lately of the Marlowe Stock company of Chicago. Other members of the company are Miss Jane Evans, Miss Henrietta Vaders, Miss Rita Knight, Miss Marie Hudson, J. Francis Kirke, Thomas Hall, Frank Beamish, W. H. Phinney and R. G. Thomas.

Countess to Play Earl's Violin Music.

From the New York American.

LONDON—The Scotch peerage is coming to the front. Following close on the advent of Lady Mary Montgomery as a shopkeeper comes the Earl of Kinnoull as a composer of music for the violin and the appearance of his countess as interpreter of her husband's compositions.

It is said that the earl takes himself very seriously as a composer and that those who listen to what he has written also find it a very serious matter.

The first public debut of the titled pair is to be at a charity fete in Tottenham.

The earl's musical tastes have flourished under anything but gentle surroundings, for he has served as colonel of the Egyptian gendarmerie, was chief of staff under Baker Pasha and was formerly a lieutenant in the famous Black Watch. His talented wife is the second countess and it was their common taste for music that drew them together.

This Week at the Theaters

AN exceptionally able company is said to be supporting Miss Grace George this season in "Divorcons," which will come to the Willis Wood theater for a three-days' engagement, opening to-morrow night. H. Reeves Smith is with Miss George again this season. He is pleasantly cast, and his work as the husband of the frivolous Cyprienne is said to be the best he has yet done. Douglas Gerrard, an actor of reputation in London, has been engaged to enact the role of the foolish young suitor, Adhemar. Mr. Gerrard has been associated with such actors as Beerbohm Tree, Arthur Bourchier, Lewis Waller and Frederick Terry. William Ricciardi is cast for the role of Joseph, the amusing head waiter at the Cafe Grand Vatal. Mr. Ricciardi also is known as a clever stage director, and for years staged all the productions made at the New York Casino. Charles Stanley, who was long identified with comic opera, but of recent years has joined the legitimate ranks, will be seen in the role of the French patrolman, and is said to play it well. Edward Fielding, at one time Miss Olga Nethersole's leading man, who played with her in "Sappho" in almost 400 presentations, also is numbered in Miss George's support. Miss Laura Lemmers, an English actress, who for the last few years has been appearing in this country, has the role of the young widow, Mme. de Brionne, while Miss Justine Cutting portrays Mlle. de Lusigan. Miss Angela Ogden, a young actress of great promise, will play Josepha. The other members of the company, it is said, are likewise happily cast. "Divorcons," with Miss George, greatly pleased both New York and London and the piece is said to be the best effort of the French playwright, Sardou. The comedy is bright and the story is amusingly told of the change from the wife seeking to leave her husband for another by the easy road of a new divorce law, to a woman who comes to realize that she loves her husband.

Probably the most conspicuous feature on the bill at the Orpheum for the week, commencing with a matinee to-day, is John C. Rice and Sally Cohen, two of the greatest comedy stars in vaudeville. They will present H. H. Winslow's mirth-provoking one-act playlet entitled, "A Bachelor's Wife." This playlet is said to be built along lines most suitable to the talents of these two artists and is replete with bright humor, brisk action and amusing situations. Other important features are Salerno, without doubt the permier of modern jugglers. The Picchianis are Italy's greatest acrobats who come direct from the London hippodrome where they created a tremendous sensation. Caron and Farnum, a duo of novelty comedy acrobats, are among the best of their kind in vaudeville. Anna and Maud Kramer will offer their amusing skit "Flap Jack Sal," in which they introduce many specialties. Mr. Jacob has a wonderfully trained dog which, it is said, does everything except talk. Owing to the many requests received as well as the great success attained during their stay here, the Fadette Woman's orchestra of Boston has been retained by the management for another week. The kinodrome will display the latest moving picture novelties.

---

"Little Johnny Jones," which will come to the Grand to-morrow night, with matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, is apparently as much of a favorite with theatergoers as it was during the days of its initial presentation. It is one of the brightest, snappiest and most up-to-date of musical plays. Mr. Cohan has devised some exceedingly clever situations, some of them melodramatic to a degree, and the web of melody which is so deftly woven throughout the three acts, makes "Little Johnny Jones" an entertainment above the average. The song numbers in the production are among its principal features. As a matter of fact, Mr. Cohan has supplied this particular play with more of his compositions than are noticeable in any of his other productions. Among them are "They're All My Friends," "Nesting in a New York Tree," "'Op in the 'Ansom," "Good Old California," "Good-by, Flo," "Yankee Doodle Boy," "Life's a Very Funny Proposition After All," and the hit of them all, "Give My Regards to Broadway."

---

The determination of the Barker Stock company's management to continue "The Light Eternal" another week has met with general approval. The play is strikingly appropriate for the Lenten season, and the religious note is kept clear and strong throughout the performance. It has been, and is, the opportunity for Miss Neilson to show the real power of interpretation which she possesses. Reginald Travers has done nothing better than his Roman emperor character. Reginald Barker, also, has been unusually successful as an actor and a director.

---

Miss Grace Hayward will be seen this week at the Auditorium in Owen Davis's success, "The Confessions of a Wife." When 14 years old, Miss Hayward first appeared with the Miss Clara Morris at the old Chicago opera house, and since that time she has appeared in many productions which have been accredited great success. Miss Hayward has never allowed anyone to direct a piece she was producing, consequently she is a very busy woman at all times. Her engagement opens this afternoon.

---

Scenic beauty and adornment are said to be the features of the new musical play, "The Boy With the Boodle," at the Gilliss this week, which is being exploited by Howard Hall. The effects used in this production are said to be magnificent. Among them is a reproduction of a mirage as seen on the Western plains. Other scenes are in New York and Nevada. The musical numbers of the play are said to be bright and catchy. The performance this afternoon will open the engagement.

---

This afternoon the "High School Girls," burlesquers, will come to the Century theater in an original bill of musical comedy and vaudeville. Matt Kennedy is the leader of the funmakers, and the management promises many surprises in the two pieces, "The Mayor from Nowhere" and "Willie Taylor."

---

"The Dainty Duchess" will come to the Majestic for a week's engagement to-morrow afternoon. It is said there is a big company of comedians, dancers and singers. A vaudeville programme of original numbers is announced.

Skyscrapers.

From Harper's Weekly.

Skyscrapers still aspire. They rank to-day among essentials, while their future teems with possibilities. Erected here and there, isolation made them all the more conspicuous and at first suggested doubts of their stability. Now, however, they have become commonplace and their capacities await development.

In London, where the problem of the 16 millions to be shepherded in 1961 is causing some uneasiness, skyscrapers have at length been recognized among means toward that end. America, upon the other hand, possesses buildings ready to exploit, as, for instance, by the introduction into New York city of an elevated road above the present one. Presuming houses still to grow, indeed who knows but that an airship system will ultimately obtain with transportation farther skyward.

One outcome of "the higher life" may be the cultivation generally of the roof garden. Bridges between blocks will unify the upper world, which will present the appearance of a horticultural chessboard or of an elevated Central park in flower.

Skyscrapers constitute in brief man's final protest against burrowing instincts. Babel was his first idea, but wiser now he is content with humbler yet more practical results. True, he mines and "moles," but either to enrich himself or for convenience sake, not as certain animals to make a subterranean home. Basement dwelling, for example, may be taken as significant of his last lingering tendency toward old cave habits.

Not a Question of Party

An appeal for the candidates of the Metropolitan in this campaign is not an appeal to party loyalty.

There is no party politics in an issue whether the people or the Metropolitan shall control the city administration.

The Metropolitan merely pins the party label on its candidates to hide its own label.

Democrats and Republicans are not divided on the question of getting a square deal from the corporations.

Mr. Bryan and Mr. Roosevelt are not divided on that issue.

Nor are the franchise grabbers divided on that issue.

THE REAL POLITICAL STANDARD.

We have no lack of professions. There is no want of splendid propositions in platforms; there is little to divide one American citizen from another in his intelligent desire for competent administration; the question is whether you will be true to what you profess or whether you will endeavor by subterfuge to cheat the people.—From a recent speech by Governor Hughes of New York.

"There is little to divide one American citizen from another in his desire for good government." Certainly this may be said of the great mass of voters. Then why is there so much bad government, when the people have it within their own hands to say that they shall have good government?

First of all there is always some hazard in politics. Men have been elected to office with good records and seemingly good intentions, have enjoyed the confidence of the people, and yet have failed. Sometimes they have proved incompetent, sometimes indifferent, sometimes corruptible. But the disappointments in public service would be few, indeed, if the people at each election, more especially at each primary election, manifested an interest and a discrimination in keeping with their real desire for honest and efficient rule.

A man may be an earnest, zealous and wholly sincere party man, but he owes nothing to party allegiance when his party nominates unworthy candidates, when these candidates do discredit to the traditions and the dignity of the organization to which they belong, or when Special Interests for a time control the party organization. It is the fault of the voters at large if the government of a city is bad. It is the fault of the members of a party if their organization is seized by exploiters, for if the independent vote is large enough and assertive enough, parties are disciplined into sound organization and straightforward, public-spirited action.

In view of the distinction that often must be made between the platforms and the works of parties, between the professions and the private sympathies or interests or obligations of candidates, and in view of the risk that is taken in the election of the untried, it is especially incumbent on the people to retain in office those who have served them faithfully and well. Kansas City is just now confronted with an unusual test of its ability to vote in accordance with the prevailing desire for good government.

CORPORATION FEUDALISM.

In a stimulating volume published a few years ago Mr. W. J. Ghent discussed what he called "our benevolent feudalism." His point was that the representatives of big corporate interests correspond to the feudal barons, except that they use their power more politely and with less manifest cruelty.

The barons, he pointed out, sought to control the populace for their own ends. They took charge of the government, conducted wars and regulated taxes so as to benefit their own class. The people paid the bills and did as they were told. Nowadays the corporation manager does not attempt to control things so openly. But he contributes to campaign funds and obtains the nomination and election of candidates who will do his bidding. Thus he manages to get what legislative favors he pleases and the people are content because they think they are running things.

As Mr. Ghent suggests, there is no essential difference between this sort of feudalistic exploitation of the people and the sort that was practiced in a rougher, harsher way in the France of the old regime.

His contention is admirably illustrated in the campaign just drawing to a close in Kansas City. The public service corporations are quite willing to allow the parties to retain their own labels and to allow the people to vote for candidates under the impression that the men elected will really represent the interests of their constituents. But their purpose is to allow only the form of self-government. In this instance, for example, the Metropolitan Street Railway company saw the futility of trying to control the Republican convention and the Republican nominee for Mayor. So it centered its efforts on the Democratic. One of its paid attorneys presided at the convention and the mayoralty candidate was chosen with its full approval. By thus hiding behind the party label the Metropolitan influence has been able to get reputable citizens to preside at its campaign meetings and to play into its hands. But the sham of the procedure is evident to all persons who have observed the way in which the street railway company has dominated the Lower House in the last year to prevent the adoption of good ordinances which it desired to kill.

Could there be a more striking instance of this attempt at feudalistic control for selfish ends by the big corporations than is afforded by the Metropolitan's efforts to preserve the semblance of party government in Kansas City while reserving to itself the actual control?

THE BRITISH CITY.

The large cities of the United Kingdom are governed on the principles of business corporations. They are almost wholly free of corruption. Their responsible officials are responsive to public opinion. Efficiency and economy are attained under a system of government which in its essence is similar to the Municipal Commission plan, as the system evolved in Galveston and improved in Des Moines is known.

Yet British cities are under one terrible oppression. This is the control of Parliament, which is made up chiefly of the land-holding class. These landlords own practically all the land of the big cities and do not pay one cent of taxes on the land. To illustrate: The land of London if taxed on a proportionate assessment to that which prevails in New York city would bear annually about 120 million dollars of taxes. But no taxes at all are paid on it. The rental value of the land is taxed and the tax is paid by the renter. If a billboard were the only "improvement" on a lot in the center of London or any other large English city the income from the billboard would be taxed, but the lot would be taxed nothing.

It is this immunity of the land owners that accounts chiefly for the appalling poverty of so large a class of the residents of British cities, in spite of the fact that they have a locally better administration than the great majority of American cities have yet attained. The hold which the theory of Henry George—for a single tax upon land values—has attained upon the British public is explained by this survival of feudal privileges. It is a stronger hold, theoretically, than the single tax propaganda has secured in America because in America much of that doctrine has been put into practical effect.

This tyranny of the land holding class in the United Kingdom can only be exercised because Parliament, which retains control over the municipalities, is itself controlled by the landlords. The House of Lords might aptly be called a House of Landlords. Its influence is the British form of graft by special privilege. The evil is precisely that which we in American cities have experienced and still experience, by the activity of corporate or franchise interests in politics and legislation—the same, but in a different form. It is simply the working out of a logical principle: The landlord will not pay taxes if he himself is to determine whether to levy them or not; the corporation will not pay a fair return for its franchises—either in taxes or in cheap and good service—if it is in position to dictate the policy of the municipal government.

The growth of democracy—which is an honored name for the square deal—has the same necessary purpose in the British as in the American city. This is the elimination of the special interest from the legislative and executive bodies that must act with an even hand to all the people.

WHY THEY FIGHT BEARDSLEY.

The fight for corporation rule in Kansas City is not directed particularly against Mayor Beardsley. It is directed against the governmental policy represented by Mr. Beardsley. To beat down the man who blocks the way to successful political domination by the corporation in municipal affairs is the essential factor of the fight, of course, but it is the control of the city administration, not merely the defeat of Beardsley, which prompts the aggressive campaign on the part of the Special Interests of Kansas City.

It happens that Mayor Beardsley has been representing the interests of the common people during the past two years, and has stood in the way of the privilege grabbers and the municipal grafters of every kind. He has, in all respects, represented modern sentiment as to progressive government, and it is this sentiment, rather than the man, the corporations are fighting. They charge numerous failures on the part of the Beardsley administration, it is true, but no intelligent voter in Kansas City who has followed the course of the present administration could be influenced by these charges, because such a man knows the charges are not true. Every man in Kansas City gifted with average reason knows that Mr. Beardsley has made an excellent Mayor.

The public service corporations desire Beardsley's defeat, not because he prevented the conversion of a public parkway into a private race track, nor because he refused to grant a beer license in the public parks. They want to defeat Beardsley because he stands in their way. To accomplish his defeat the allied corporate interests are willing to make terms with every vicious element and every individual who has felt the big stick of the law upon some outlaw practice.

But the central figure in this fight to beat Mayor Beardsley is now, and has been from the day that Mr. Beardsley took the side of the people for regulating corporations, the allied public service corporations. They would be fighting any other candidate who happened to stand in Mayor Beardsley's place, whether that candidate were Democrat or Republican. It would be the same campaign of abuse, of villification and slander, if it were President Roosevelt or Taft or Tom Johnson or William Jennings Bryan, whom they cheered so lustily a few days ago.

The one object and aim of this contest is for the corporations to get control of Kansas City. No other logical reason has been advanced in the effort to cover up the main issue.

It is up to the voters to settle this one question next Tuesday.

"IS THINE HEART RIGHT?"

And when he was departed thence, he lighted on Jehonadab, the son of Rechab coming to meet him: and he saluted him, and said to him, Is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart? And Jehonadab answered, "It is. If it be, give me thine hand. And he gave him his hand; and he took him up to him into the chariot.

—II Kings, 10, 15.

Tall Fish Story.

From the Chicago News.

"Speaking about showers of fish," said the solemn-looking nature faker from his seat on the starch box, "reminds me of the time we were marooned on an island in the blue Pacific. For two hours there was a shower of fresh mackerel and, strange to say, they all dropped into a salt lake on the mountain side. That brined them."

"Whew!" the old codgers chorused in unison.

"But that's not the strangest part of the story. Ten days later a cyclone came along, picked up the brined mackerel and dropped them into a hot spring. That boiled them; and, gentlemen, they were the finest boiled mackerel you ever tasted. I thought about sending some home to the folks, but——"

There was a sudden interruption and six strong men took the nature faker outside and ducked him in the horse trough.

A Grouch.

From the Washington Evening Star.

"Do you think the fruit crop will be a failure this year?"

"'Course it will," answered Farmer Corntossel; "if prices are high there's no fruit and if prices are low there's plenty of it. The fruit crop's always a failure!"

CO-ED AND "MERRY WIDOW."

Monstrous Millinery Puts an End to Moonlight Strolls on Campus Walks.

From the Chicago Examiner.

The "Merry Widow" sailor hat fad has struck Evanston. The pretty co-eds of Northwestern university are wearing brand new 1908 models of this style of headgear that has caused an imperative demand in the university town for a new importation of cabs and surreys and traps—cabs with doors of greater width and surreys and traps with greater beam than those to be found at present in that suburb.

The "Merry Widow" model, as adopted by the young women in the most exclusive sororities in Evanston, is at once the wonder of the inhabitants and the despair of the cabbies.

Chicago women may wear "Merry Widows" that cause men to duck and dodge in their progress up and down the streets and that may cause cabbies to shake their heads dubiously whenever one approaches and may think that they are strictly up-to-date. But they have not set eyes upon the Evanston models. Those are huge.

The campus at Northwestern university, which for years agone has been the favorite strolling place on evenings—moonlight and otherwise—for the co-eds and their escorts, now is practically deserted. Lover's Lane is the strolling place now for the college girls and the college men.

Why? Simply because the sidewalks on the campus are not wide enough to permit the co-ed, her "Merry Widow" and her escort to walk side by side all at once.

The escort of the Northwestern co-ed does not fancy an Indian file or tandem procession with the girl he has asked out for an evening stroll and so perforce, by mutual consent, these couples have taken to Lover's Lane, where the walks are wider and where the man and the "Merry Widow" can perambulate in comparative peace and comfort.

Joseph Ivester, cabman, stands ready to swear upon his oath that a Gamma Phi Beta girl who stepped off a Chicago train a few evenings ago made three ineffectual attempts to find a cab, the door of which would admit the "Merry Widow" that adorned her head. The Evanston cabs are of somewhat ancient vintage and were not built to accomodate the "Merry Widows" of 1908.

Likewise one of Evanston's liverymen tells the story of two fair co-eds who hired a light trap Sunday afternoon for their customary drive. Horse was right, trap apparently was all right, too, until the young women and their "Merry Widows" climbed aboard. There was room for the girls, but not for the hats. They compromised by leaving the "Merry Widows" in the liveryman's office and taking their drive bareheaded. Another couple of young women had a like experience later in the day. Their compromise was only half a compromise. One wore her "Merry Widow;" the other left hers at the livery office. Too much hat again for one light trap.

"Of course," says a prominent society woman, "while the 'Merry Widow' sailor is a great fad not only in Chicago but in all of the university towns, the Northwestern girls have carried the thing to an extreme and are wearing hats that are 'simply preposterous' when it comes to size."

MONASTERY TO BE A HOTEL.

Home of the Oblate Brotherhood to Be Transformed.

The separation of church and state in France and the dissolution of the congregation already have had many a curious sequel in the altered condition of the clergy and lay brethren. Many a devout country cure, thrown on his own resources by the stoppage of his salary, which under the concordat was paid by the state, is now developing into a shrewd man of business. Monks and nuns have wandered forth to other hospitable lands, and even the cardinal archbishop of Paris was some time houseless and dependent on the hospitality of a good Catholic. The church in France has, in a word, been turned upside down, and this state of tosy-turveydom is only gradually beginning to right itself.

The archi-episcopal palace in the Rue de Grenelle has now become a government ministry. The ministry of the colonies will shortly leave its quarters in the Louvre and be located in an old monastery. Other monasteries and convents are being pulled down to make way for flats and offices, and their very names soon will be a bygone memory. Among those that are to survive is the interesting old monastery of the Oblate Brotherhood, in the Rue de St. Petersburg. It is to undergo a novel transformation. In a few weeks it will open its doors as the Hotel Windsor.

This monastery is situated on the rising ground behind the St. Lazare station. The monks were expelled a couple of years ago and the monastery was sold by public auction and bought by the Credit-Foncier, which resold it to the Societe des Immeubles Parisiens. On either side of the religious house is a chapel; on the left hand the old chapel and on the right hand the new chapel, a beautiful Gothic building wherein the Oblate Brothers of future generations were to have continued the devotions that their predecessors had for centuries paid day by day in the old one. Cardinal Richard, just before his death, which took place a few weeks ago, purchased the new chapel and services are now held as before. As the chapel is connected directly with the monastery by the ground floor and gallery, people staying in the hotel will enjoy the novel experience of being able to visit it without so much as wetting their feet on a rainy day. There is even an oratory, which will remain intact, in the hotel itself.

The old chapel had a narrow escape from becoming a concert and billiard saloon, and there is still a cinematograph show in it. In a few weeks, however, it will become the splendid dining hall of the hotel—a model refectory. It was the intention of the Oblate Brotherhood to have a convent built on the other side of the old chapel, which then would have served for the nuns' devotions. The congregations bill prevented a realization of the project. As for the handsome refectory of the brotherhood, with its big open fireplace, as it is too small for the needs of a big modern school, it will be turned into a salon de reception.

A Curious Musical Box.

From the Chicago News.

In the South Kensington Museum in London is a curious musical box. It was originally the property of Tipu (or Tippoo) Sahib, the "Tiger of Mysore," who died in 1799, being killed during the British assault and capture of Seringapatam, the capital of Mysore. He always hated the British, and to show his enmity he had this instrument constructed. The box is a life size stautary group showing the symbolic tiger of India at the throat of England, represented by a British officer. When Tipu wished to amuse his court, one of his attendants turned a handle, when the tiger emitted horrible growls and the man raised and lowered his arms and uttered terrifying shrieks. Inside the tiger are four rows of pipes and a set of ivory keys, which are either of French or British manufacture.

IN The OLD TOWN.

IT is Monday in the old town—a day by ancient usage dedicated to domestic duties so strenuous as to cause even the thought of social communication to be regarded, if not with abhorrence, at least with frowning displeasure. Although the afternoon is not advanced beyond the hour when, in the more practical and serious days of old, the "colored clothes" were "put on the line" by sedulous housewives, there is to be seen flitting past the hotel window on the old square a persevering procession of prominent and exemplary matrons of the community, arrayed, as one may see, in full accord with the confident and buoyant step with which they pass on their expectant way to an obviously common destination.

The scarfs which these eager and complacent ladies wear in lieu of hats betoken certain careful touches as to coiffure becoming to the gradation of raiment which the "best people" in the Old Town look upon as appropriate to afternoon events. You can see by the dainty manner in which Mrs. Duwell picks up her skirts that she is preparing to disclose to her admiring—if not envious—friends the gown she had made in Cleveland last week.

In the main, you will find, at the "bridge" a variety of voiles and foulards with a familiar look, but keeping each other in gracious countenance by force of mutual reiteration. One new gown a season is the rule in the Old Town, and this prudent and salutary habit having taken firm root, by almost common consent, eliminates those rivalries and asperities which too frequently grow out of keen competition in raiment. What with fichus and gauzes and well hoarded laces, any well-made gown of a serviceable and adaptable style and color can be made to take on little touches of grace and even coquetry to enhance the ripe charms of a clever matron. Thus, wisely enough, an economical wardrobe offers no bar in the Old Town to even a prodigal penchant for "bridge."

But as Mrs. Lastlee has just passed with a suggestion of excitement in her step, it must be about time for the "bridge" to begin. From the small tables and the folding chairs that the furniture man was seen "taking up" this morning, it is inferred that the party will be large. It is intimated, likewise, with the result of enkindling agreeable expectations among the guests, that the hostess ordered vegetable salad in gelatine molds and pastry dessert from Cleveland. This pleasant report seems to borrow confirmation from a certain expression of benign patronage and lofty responsibility on the face of the hostess. But as the game wages, without intermission or fatigue, until the sun begins to sink to rest, all thought of refreshment is forgotten until the seductive aroma of coffee causes a sudden cessation in the clamor of feminine voices.

Strong and robust men who observed the guests going to the "bridge" and who chanced to meet them coming home, marvel much at the endurance of what is still spoken of in the Old Town as the "weaker sex." For, be it remembered, that it is well on to 8 o'clock before all of the guests succeed in completing their fervent protestations of enjoyment and bringing their hallway adieus to a finality.

But think of a "bridge party" in the Old Town on Monday! What a train of reflections it inspires. How it causes the mind to ponder on the curious mutations of time. Where are the sterling matrons who incorporated in their decalogue "Remember Monday and keep it in the performance of domestic duties?" Where are the washdays of yester-year? Has even the god of day become enervated that his earliest rays seek no longer for the lines of white clothes attesting the emulation of energetic housewives?

Alas! what alterations have come in these latter days to the Old Town. What woman is there among the whole "bridge" crowd who cares whether the clothes are put out on Monday or Wednesday, or who now pays any heed whatever to her neighbor's laundry? In most of the houses on the front streets the washings are hung up in the attics, anyway, and the family linen is no longer scrutinized as a criterion of expert housekeeping.

The mind of the man or the woman who has not yielded to the blandishments of "bridge" and other sophistications that are becoming intrenched in the Old Town reverts with a sense of somewhat tender regret to a pertinent incident which many years ago caused a protracted alienation between two of the first families. It all arose out of a matter of lard. Butchering at that time was one of the domestic arts and it was attended with no slight manifestation of rivalry. Families of the nearest kinship were inclined to be sensitive to comment touching the comparative merits of their sausages and scrapples, and when one lady openly reflected on the quality of the lard prepared by one other—and, by the way, a confessed expert—the crash came. Indeed, although both ladies belonged to the same church, the estrangement was so serious that it was healed after a number of years only by the children "going back and forth."

And so it has come to pass in the Old Town that the former things have passed away, and most things have become new. It is, obviously, the way of the world, and it is only wise and sensible to balance fairly and judiciously any set of contrasted conditions and form conclusions in the light of temperate and rational judgment. No one could venture to deny that the votaries of "bridge" are fair to look upon, and that the perennial charms with which many of them are clothed at 50, 60 and even at 70 is in grateful contrast to the severity and often decrepitude of the women of the time when Monday was held fairly sacred as wash day, and when it would have been looked upon almost as profanation to usher in the week with any form of frivolity or relaxation.

Our mothers and grandmothers, let us believe, served their day and generation in the particular way appointed them to follow. They rest from their labors and we hallow their memory.

Our modern matrons and maidens who account it as no affront to the domestic virtues to play "bridge" on Monday and to "put out the washing," are conforming also to their own environment. They are in concord with the spirit of the age in which they live, and they are walking blithely and gracefully in pleasant paths—God bless 'em!

NO STATUE TO BARD OF AVON.

Londoners Jeer at a Plan for a Memorial There.

Judging by the story of controversy which has been aroused by the mere suggestion that a monument to Shakespeare should be erected in London, there seems little likelihood that the worthy gentlemen who proposed that ½ million dollars should be raised for that purpose will ever succeed in collecting anything like that amount. When the leading lights of the literary and dramatic world exhibit such a divergence of opinion as to what would constitute the most appropriate memorial to the immortal bard the general public will eagerly grasp the excuse afforded for declining to shell out anything.

Thus far the scheme has evoked much more enthusiastic opposition than support. William Archer, the pundit of British dramatic critics, has come out flat-footed against it. "It is absurd," he says, "to raise an inert and lifeless monument to Shakespeare, while he lacks the living monument of a national theater where his works might be worthily presented." Furthermore, he does not believe an English sculptor could be found capable of doing justice to Shakespeare in marble. Sir John Hare favors a national theater, and considers the proposed memorial "inadequate, undignified and absurd." Pinero sneers at a "heap of statuary." R. C. Carton is opposed to found a national theater, "either in memory of Shakespeare or anybody else." He is for the statue. Arthur Symons, on the other hand, is of the opinion that a statue would be a "public desecration to the memory of one whose work is already his sufficient monument." Sir Theodore Martin thinks we have theaters enough already and wants a statue. Zangwill says, "Nothing is worthy of Shakespeare except a national theater." Sir Charles Wyndham, who ought to know, says that a national theater would cost too much and would prove unsatisfactory because it would be unable to command the services of the best artists owing to their strongly developed commercial instincts. Alfred Austin, the poet laureate, has invoked his feeble muse against the memorial scheme. He says:

Rear pedestals to perishable stuff;
Gods for themselves are monument enough.

It is highly improbable that the present memorial scheme will meet with any better success than did a kindred effort which was made eighty-five years ago with a much more influential backing. King George IV was president of the committee formed to carry the project through, while the Duke of Wellington, the Duke of Devonshire and Viscount Palmerston figured among the vice presidents, and the general committee included Sir Walter Scott, Thomas Moore, S. T. Coleridge, Washington Irving and Kemble, Keane, Macready and Charles Mathews. The preliminary prospectus, which was issued in 1823, stated that His Majesty, "deeming that tribute alone" (a projected mausoleum at Stratford-on-Avon) "an insufficient testimony to the surpassing genius of Shakespeare, has been pleased to approve a proposition for erecting another monument in the metropolis worthy at once of the poet and of the nation." But the nation received the proposal with indifference and declined to subscribe though at that time admiration for Shakespeare had not risen to those sublime altitudes, viewed from which a marble memorial seems "inadequate and absurd."

Tennis Champion a Prisoner by Storm.

From the Los Angeles Examiner.

May Sutton, the woman tennis champion of the world, and her sister, Mrs. Orlando Bruce, were marooned for seven hours Friday aboard the United States cruiser Tennessee, now in the Venice harbor.

The young women were to have played an exhibition match in mixed doubles on the Ocean Park Country club course with two navy officers, and preliminary to the game they were invited aboard the Tennessee for luncheon.

Before the time for their departure a storm arose which smashed both gangways, and the captain would not permit the women to leave the ship. A crowd of society people waited patiently at the clubhouse for the players, whom they expected each moment, despite the high breakers washing upon the decks of the three cruisers in the harbor.

When 6 o'clock had arrived the disappointed gathering filed out and repaired to the wharf, where several parties of young women and chaperones who had been invited out to the ships for tea were watching for the first sign of a launch leaving for the shore. Mrs. Bruce and Miss Sutton did not arrive until after dark, when the storm had subsided.

TO CONSERVE HICKORY SUPPLY.

Vehicle Manufacturers Worried Over the Growing Scarcity of Wood.

Automobile and carriage manufacturers, along with the men of the allied vehicle industries, are giving very serious consideration to the question of the future supply of hickory timber. This wood, which is one of the most important of all woods, since no satisfactory substitute for it has been found, plays a more important part among the commercial timbers than many people realize.

For automobile and carriage wheels, where strength, toughness and resiliency are essential qualities, no other wood has been found in this country that will take the place of hickory. Manufacturers say that no steel or wire spoke has yet been designed that will withstand the wear and tear of the hickory spoke. For this reason the welfare of the vehicle industry seems dependent upon the conservation of the hickory supply.

The supply of good hickory in the United States is known to be very limited. The cut last year for lumber was a little less than 150 million feet, and it is estimated an even greater amount was used for automobile and carriage wheels, axle caps, gears, axles, poles, single trees and neck yokes. It is estimated that at the present rate of cutting the supply will last only about fifteen years.

Reports are made from time to time of the discovery of suitable substitutes for hickory in foreign countries. The two woods which come nearest to having the quality of the hickory seem to be one of the eucalyptus and the crowfoot elm, both of Australia. Only time will tell whether these woods will prove satisfactory substitutes. In the meanwhile, American hickory users will be obliged to conserve the present supply and take steps to guarantee a future supply by encouraging private planting of the tree, whose wood is becoming more precious each year.

Why New Yorkers Dress Ill.

From the Saturday Evening Post.

The broad sartorial assertion, recently made, that New York men do not dress as well as those of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Kansas City and Salt Lake, is one of those equivocating truths which conceal more of the facts in a case than they disclose. Hearing it, the thoughtless may draw conclusions discreditable and unjust to the metropolis.

It is true that in New York one may observe more masculine habiliments which no self-respecting tailor, however good-natured, would stamp with his approval; but that is because there are more men in New York than in the other cities. If deviation from the correct standard has been proportionately greater among New York men of late it is because circumstances over which only a few of them had any control restricted the choice of raiment during the winter within exceedingly narrow bounds for a not inconsiderable part of the population. Probably nothing whatever can justify the man who appears in canvas pants at Yuletide; but the fact that he is out of a job is at least an extenuating circumstance.

We mention the tailor's indictment of Gotham because it seems to us that a good many who speak with authority on such matters have an unfortunate tendency to ignore the extenuating circumstances. The President, for example, is criticised for changing his clothes only once or twice a day, instead of three times, as every gentleman should—regardless of the notorious fact that the President has considerable work to do in the course of a day.

Similarly, the low state of deportment among us, while it cannot be defended, may yet be partially excused. It is not because of innate brutality that a great majority of male citizens omit to pay dinner calls, but because they would be docked for the lost time.

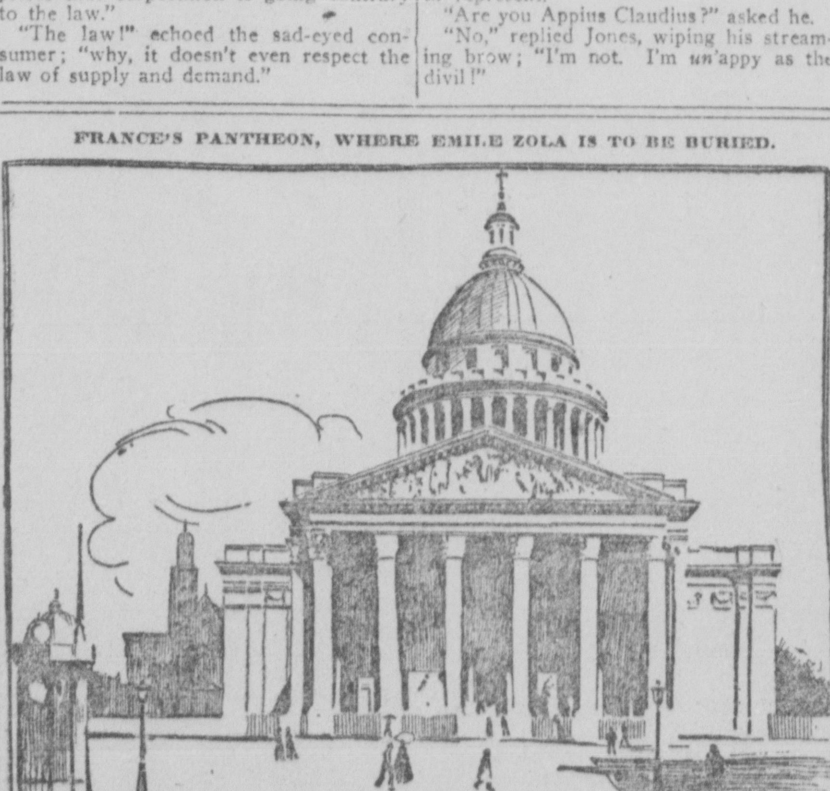
"Are you Appius Claudius?" asked he.

"No," replied Jones, wiping his streaming brow; "I'm not. I'm un'appy as the divil!"

FRANCE'S PANTHEON, WHERE EMILE ZOLA IS TO BE BURIED.



Years of effort made Emile Zola a great writer and earned for him the prospective honor of a grave in the Pantheon, the Westminster abbey of France. One little letter took from him that privilege. Then a court decision made it possible ten years after the letter was written for his body to rest with France's immortal ones under the legend on the Pantheon's dome: "To Great Men, the Grateful Fatherland."

Zola's body will be buried in the Pantheon in a few days. He died in 1902 from accidental suffocation by coal gas escaping from a patent heater. Literary glory came to Zola through his great works, "La Sebacle," "La Fortune de Rougon," "L'Assommoir," "Dr. Pascal," "Paris," "Lourdes," "Rome" and "Fecundity." The "J'accuse!" letter on the Dreyfus case set him back ten years. In this letter the writer accused army and civil officials of criminally conniving to place the guilt of treasonable correspondence on Captain Dreyfus. The government had Zola tried and sentenced on defamation charges to serve one year in prison. Zola was assaulted in the streets of Paris by his countrymen. Four years after his death, the highest court of France decided that Dreyfus was not guilty and Zola's "J'accuse!" letter, when read in the courtroom by Dreyfus's lawyer, was applauded and cheered. So Zola, dead, will receive honors which Zola, living, was refused.

The Pantheon is the terrestrial Valhalla of the French. It is a great cross-shaped basilica, with a dome nearly 300 feet high. It stands on a hill on the Latin quarter side of the Seine on the site of a Christian church built 1,200 years ago. As most living Frenchmen crave the Cross of the Legion of Honor or admission to the French academy, so most Frenchmen long for that greatness which demands a burial in the Pantheon. And now Zola is to have it.

The ANCIENT FINGER RING.

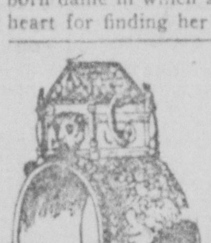
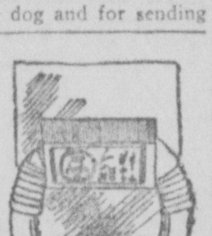
FASHIONS in jewelry may come and go; but whatever other forms may not be in style, finger rings are perennially fashionable and perennially worn.

The ancient Babylonians wore rings and there is in the British museum to-day a letter written on a tile from a certain high born dame in which she thanks her sweetheart for finding her dog and for sending her a ring, which she avers, fits her to perfection. The Persians, according to historians, did not wear any rings of gold, their religion forbidding them to have about them any article of that metal during their religious devotions. As they were accustomed to spend much time at prayer, it would have been too much trouble to remove their rings so frequently.



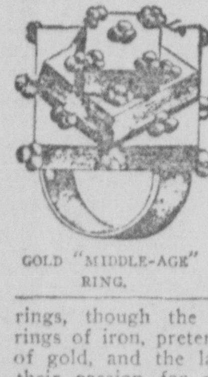
JEWISH WEDDING RING.



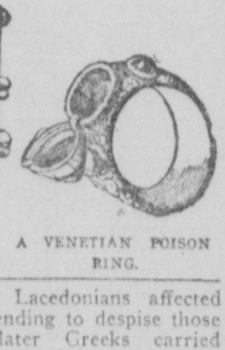
EGYPTIAN GOLD-SIGNET RING.

The Egyptians were much given to wearing rings, and it is to them we owe our finest examples of ancient seal rings.

Among the Greeks of Homer's time there seems to be no mention made of rings, though the Lacedonians affected rings of iron, pretending to despise those of gold, and the later Greeks carried their passion for adorning their fingers to such lengths that the phrase "golden-handed" was synonymous with the modern expression "rolling in wealth." From the Sabines the Romans adopted the custom of ring wearing and at first, like those of the Lacedonians, they were made of iron, used for seals, and regarded rather as articles of utility than of luxury. Every freeborn Roman had the privilege of wearing a ring, and later, as the Romans came more and more under the influence of the Greeks, they too, fairly loaded their hands with jewelry, until it was no uncommon thing for a gentleman of wealth and leisure to wear sixty rings at one time.



GOLD "MIDDLE-AGE" RING.



A VENETIAN POISON RING.

Among many ancient peoples the ring was regarded as a symbol of authority, and an almost indispensable article of dress, since it contained its wearer's signet, and even derived its name from a root meaning "to impress a seal." By bestowing upon Joseph his signet ring, Pharoah invested him with kingly authority, and Alexander the Great, in giving his ring to Perdiccas, thereby nominated him his successor.

Solomon's seal was engraved with the mystic term "shemhamphorasch," and through the magic power of this phrase he was enabled to build the temple. Every morning, according to the legend, he was carried up into heaven, where he learned the secrets of the universe, and was thus daily endowed with fresh wisdom. Finally the genius of the ring persuaded the king to grant him his liberty if only for a time, and as a result reigned for three years in the stead of Solomon, who meanwhile wandered rather disconsolately about the face of the earth.

According to Arabian tradition, the ring was stolen by a Jewess, who cast it into the sea. Solomon, in despair at thus losing his seal, and with it his powers of divination, fasted forty days and forty nights, at the end of which period the ring was returned to him in a huge fish, caught and presented to his lord by a loyal fisherman.

This story of a ring, cast into the sea and returned in a fish, finds reproduction in a thousand tales. The custom of casting a ring into the sea, a ceremony performed at the succession of each doge of Venice, typified the wedding of Venice to the Adriatic. Upon one occasion, when the ring was found in the body of a carp, the people mourned as at a national disaster, for they believed their city doomed to certain destruction.

During the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries, when the gentle art of poisoning was so greatly in vogue, that arch poisoner, Catherine de Medici, introduced into France, together with poisoned gloves, rings in which poison was concealed, and it is said these rings attained great popularity among such folk as wished to rid themselves of troublesome or rich friends or relatives. Catherine herself is said to have made good use of her rings, which she had brought from Italy, where the process of ring poisoning originated. Many a hapless courtier, stooping to kiss the hand of the queen, received in his mouth the poison which the ring concealed and a spring released.

Other rings popular during the same period were "cramp" rings, which, being blessed by the king, protected their wearer from cramps; "gemmel" rings, made by joining two hoops together, which were much used as betrothal rings, and "poesie" rings, so called because of the rhymes engraved thereon. Of such a one Gratiano speaks in "The Merchant of Venice" when he refers to

A paltry ring
That she did give me, whose posy was
For all the world like cutler's poetry
Upon a knife, "Love me and leave me not."

Then there were "thumb" rings, concerning which Falstaff in "Henry IV" makes boast that in his youth he was slender enough "to creep into any alderman's thumb ring," "religious" or "Paradise" rings engraved to represent portions of church history, "mourning" rings and "decade" rings, having ten projections around the hoop which were used for repeating aves.

To wedding rings there has been often attached a value even unto death. In a testamentary document made by Mary Queen of Scots, shortly before the birth of her son when the queen was in great fear of death, she bequeathed among other things her wedding ring of diamonds and red enamel "to the king, who gave it me." Mary did not die as she had feared, and this same ring was afterwards used a second time at her secret marriage to Darnley in Rizizo's chamber at Stirling.

One of the smallest wedding rings of which we have record was that fitted to the finger of Mary, daughter of Henry VIII, who at the age of 2 years, was solemnly wedded amid much pomp and splendor to Francis I of France, who had just attained the dignity of 6 months. Attending the little bride were her father and mother, Henry and Catherine of Aragon, and Marie of France, mother of the bridegroom. The bridegroom himself was not present at the ceremony, but his place was taken by Admiral Bonnivet, who acted as proxy and placed upon the finger of the little princess, a tiny wedding ring set with a magnificent diamond. Cardinal Wolsey performed the ceremony, at which the whole court was present.

Though gold is the metal generally accepted for wedding rings, various other materials have done service in its stead. There is one story of an eloping bride, for whom a ring was improvised from her own leather glove, the church key has frequently done similar duty and brass curtain rings have been many times substituted for a circlet of more valuable material.

By giving his wife a ring, a husband is supposed to take her fully into his confidence. The fact that the left hand has been chosen to wear it, signifies that as the left is weaker than the right, so is a wife subject to her husband, while the third finger has been selected because of an old superstition that from the third finger of the left hand runs a vein directly to the heart.

Just how the plain gold band came to be chosen as proper for wedding rings is not absolutely known. It has descended to us from early Anglo-Saxon times and probably was adopted because its simplicity made it most available as a universal symbol.

In America the demand for rings increases yearly and except for wedding rings, which to be correct should be extremely narrow, the prevailing taste is for elaborate and unique settings, which for the most part originate in Paris.

"Why, it means without strawberries."

SOME TREES OF HISTORY.

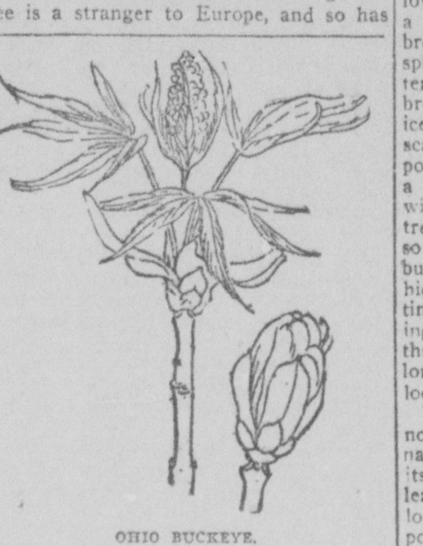
BY FLOY CAMPBELL

STRICTLY speaking there is only one American tree; only one tree family, that is, no member of which has every been found on any other continent. This is the hickory. It belongs to us alone, and its very name is a legacy from the former owners of the land. The "Historie of Travaile into Virginia Britannia" says:

"Hickory is derived from the Indian name of the liquor obtained by pounding the kernels. These the Indians beat into pieces with stones and putting them, shells and all, into mortars, mingling water with them, with long wooden pestells pound them so long together until they make a kind of mylke, or oylie liquor, which they call Powcohicora."

There are nine varieties of this tree on the American continent, and although the tree is a stranger to Europe, and so has not shared in the legacy of ancient legend and story with the oak, the ash, and the other trees familiar to Greek and Teuton, it has made up for its poverty in this respect since the time of the early settlers in its own native country. Its qualities are celebrated in the American proverb, "Tough as Hickory;" and we all remember the nickname of President Jackson, "Old Hickory," which was no less an expression of affection than a word descriptive of his strong and reliable character. In the Revolutionary war, too, hickory played its part, for the ramrods of our forefathers were made from its wood. Commercially it is valuable where a strong and close grained wood is needed, and no doubt the excellence of the American ax is due quite as much to its handle of hickory as to the quality of its steel.



OHIO BUCKEYE.

Hickory nuts were highly appreciated by the Indians. Bertram, in his "Travels in North America," states that he has seen over a hundred bushels of these nuts belonging to one family. The Indian name of the nut appears in English as Kiskitomas, Kisktyom and Kiskythomas, all of which are probably corruptions of the word Kwaskadamenne—a word which we translate by the phrase, "It must be cracked by the teeth." The Indians certainly had the secret of creating what Humpty Dumpty called "portmanteau words."

In the hungry days of spring, before the earth was producing other food, the Indians are said to have kept off starvation by eating the young buds of the hickory. Having tried to follow in their footsteps, I found that the buds, while delicious in flavor, are rather like a mixture of shoeleather and wool in texture; so they cannot have been a very satisfactory diet.

There are many other trees of which a single variety has become connected with a certain state, or of which a single member has become famous in American history. Of the first class is the Ohio buckeye. The state where it was first seen in any numbers gave its name to the tree, and the tree returned the courtesy by giving its name to the "Buckeye state," and to all the "Buckeyes" native to that state forever.

It was the younger Michaux, traveling through the country in 1810, who first found the buckeye growing in especial abundance along the banks of the Ohio river between Marietta and Pittsburg. He did not then suspect the wide range of the little tree, which in reality grows nearly all over the Mississippi valley. Buckeyes are numerous around Kansas City, although they are more often shrublike than tree-like in growth. At this season of the year they are wonderfully lovely. In a single thicket you may find a plant where the five-fingered leaves of bronze are all unfolded, and the flower-spike showing. In another the pinky winter bud scales have just split, and the bronze leaves are bursting out of the crevices. A third will have the covering scales perfect, but developed to the very point of bursting, and, fairly scarlet, like a small boy with his cheeks puffed out with bubble blowing. There is no other tree, excepting the hickory, which has so large and blossom-like a spring leaf bud. The buckeye is red or pink, the hickory almost orange, and both, at the time when the new shoot and the growing leaves finally are ready to burst through them, are almost two inches long, so that the branch which bears them looks as if covered by brilliant tulips.

The Kentucky coffee tree, which is by no means rare about Kansas City, was so named because the Kentucky pioneers used its seed as a substitute for coffee. Its leaf is formed like that of the honey locust, but much larger, and its fruit is a pod containing seeds which are surrounded by a layer of sweet pulp.

Although fossil remains of the sassafras tree are to be found in other parts of of the world, it now exists as a native only in America. It has the distinction of being the only tree to bear three kinds of leaves on the same branch. It is valued chiefly for the flavor which its roots, bark and wood give to other medicines. It has, however, no historic interest.

Equally without historic interest, but making up for that lack in the wealth of its picturesque associations, is the sugar maple. The testimony of early travelers shows that the Indians, like the moose and the woodpecker, knew well the sweetness of the maple sap, but it is doubtful if they knew how to make maple sugar before the coming of the Europeans. However, by the latter half of the Seventeenth century, the making of maple sugar was an established industry with them. In February or March, with the first upward flow of the sap, the sugar camps spring up in the groves, and the work of tapping the trees, of gathering the crude sap, and of boiling it down into sugar, begins. It continues until the buds begin to swell, when the sap ceases to run freely, and changes in character. Trees twenty or thirty years old are the most productive, although there are records of trees which have yielded sugar every year for a century, and are still fruitful.

In most cases, although our trees belong to the "oldest families" of Europe, there is some slight distinctive change in the leaf form, or in the manner of growth. In some cases, as in the American or white elm and the black walnut, these differences are quite marked; but usually they are not strong enough to make a distinct species. Our most famous historical trees are members of these old European families.

There was the Charter Oak of Hartford, Conn., for example. It was a white oak. The story goes that when James, Duke of York, ascended the throne of England and sent Andros to take away all colonial charters, Connecticut alone refused to surrender hers. Andros was furious over this defiance, and October 31, 1687, he returned to the Assembly hall of Hartford with a body of soldiers and demanded instant surrender of the charter, which lay in a box on the table. A hot discussion followed. Finally Andros stretched out his hand to seize the disputed paper. Then the candles were suddenly extinguished and the people who had gathered on the street outside rushed in a disorderly crowd into the hall. There was a period of wild confusion in the dark, and when the candles were finally relighted, no charter was to be found. It had been removed by Captain Wadsworth and concealed in the oak, which ever afterward bore its name.

The oak was even then old. "When the first settlers were clearing their land, the Indians begged that it might be spared. 'It has been the guide of our ancestors for centuries,' they said, 'as to the time of planting our corn. When the leaves are the size of a mouse's ears, then is the time to put seed into the ground.' The Indians' request was granted, and the tree, afterward becoming the custodian of the lost charter, became famous for all time. It fell in a wind storm August 21, 1856, and so deeply was it venerated that, at sunset on the day of its fall, the bells of the city were tolled, and a band of music played funeral dirges over its ruins."

At the time of its fall its circumference one foot from the ground was 25 feet, and it was estimated to be over 600 years old.

There was a magnolia at Charlestown which was known as the Council Tree. Tradition has it that under this tree, April 21, 1780, there was a council of officers with prominent citizens of the town, during a siege by the British. At that time its branches covered 200 square feet. In spite of its historical associations, it was cut down for firewood in 1849.

The Treaty Tree, the original American Hague, where our first Peace congress was held, with William Penn on the one side and the Delaware chiefs on the other, was a mighty elm that stood at Shackamaxon, on the banks of the Delaware river. Kensington, one of the suburbs of Philadelphia, now surrounds the spot.

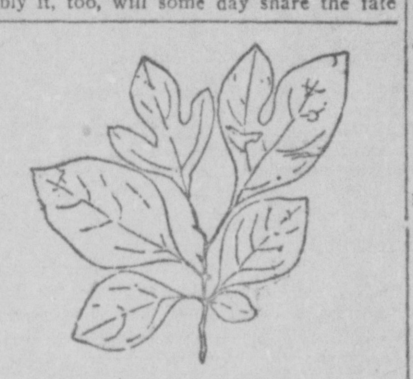
As was customary on such occasions, the parties to the treaty exchanged belts of wampum; and the belt said to have been given Penn on this occasion is now in the collection of the Pennsylvania Historical society. It consists of eighteen strings of black and white beads, and in the center are two figures, representing an European and an Indian with hands joined in friendship. In exchanging tokens with the chiefs Penn said:

"The friendship between you and me I will not compare to a chain, for that might rust, or the falling tree might break. We are the same as if one man's body were to be divided into two parts. We are all one flesh and blood." When the Indians handed Penn the wampum belt of peace they said:

"We will live in love and peace with William Penn as long as the sun and the moon shall endure."

The treaty tree was blown down in a wind storm March 10, 1810. Its age, estimated by rings, was 283 years. The William Penn society erected a marble column upon the site as a permament monument.

Another famous tree is the elm still standing near Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., under which Washington assumed command of the American forces. It is surrounded by a railing of iron, and is carefully tended and guarded. Until a few years ago it was in a good condition, but now, in spite of care, it is said to be weakening, for it is very old; and probably it, too, will some day share the fate of the Penn treaty tree and the Charter Oak. The railing around it bears a tablet of stone with this inscription:



SASSAFRAS.

"Under this tree Washington first took command of the American army, July 3, 1775."

We of Jackson county have also our historic tree. It belonged to that species known as black jack oak, and was a solitary tree, about as thick as a man's body. Standing quite alone in the eastern part of the county, it had been a landmark for Indians long before the white men set foot in the state, for it marked the trail over which the Osage Indians and the Kaws exchanged visits, friendly or otherwise. Afterward the trail became the stage route by which the white men traveled from the Kaw country to the interior of the state. About this time the old missionary road was established and crossed the Indian trail near the Lone Jack tree, which could be seen by the traveler over either route for miles ahead. In August, 1862, the Federal army, under Foster, met the Confederate force under Cockrell, where the roads intersected, and a battle was fought around the tree, brother against brother, for both forces were native Missourians. A few years afterward the old tree fell, a victim of the merciless relic hunter, whom, like the poor, we have always with us. There is a marble shaft within a few yards of the site of the tree, at the village of Lone Jack—a shaft erected to commemorate the battle. Recently the early settlers have designated the exact spot where the famous Lone Jack oak stood, and the shaft is to be removed to this spot.

The DILEMMA.

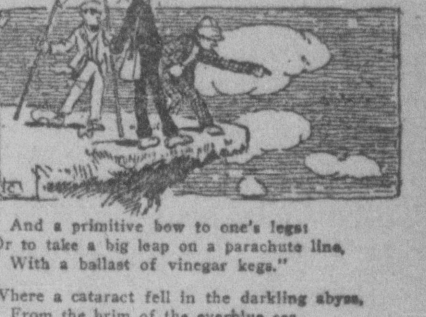
THREE travelers came to the ends of the Earth,
Where the Jumping-Off Place falls sheer,
And they gazed straight down toward the nadir girth,
Where the stars glowed pallid with fear,
And they said to themselves, "It's all life's worth
To stand on one's head over there;

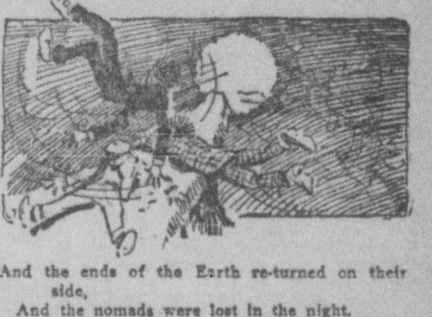
"Or to hang by one's toes to a cockleburr vine,
And juggle a basket of eggs;
Or to hover far out with a haughty incline



And a primitive bow to one's legs;
Or to take a big leap on a parachute line,
With a ballast of vinegar kegs."

Where a cataract fell in the darkling abyss,
From the brim of the everblue sea,
The mist and the rainbows, the tumult and hiss,
Enticed them with wonder and glee,
And they stood a long time to cogitate this,
And guess what its meaning could be.

And while they remained by the spumescent tide,
The Sun, in a glory of light,
Caved down through the mist in his colors bright dyed,
Ah, truly a rapturous sight!



And the ends of the Earth re-turned on their side,
And the nomads were lost in the night.

But quickly they scrambled to safety on top,
As the waters began to reverse,
"Ah, truly, a pretty antipodal flop!"
"Indeed, it might well have been worse."
Another one sighed, "I feared we should drop—
Then who would have sent for the hearse?"

THE COWBOY "LEASED" A GUN.

Dealers Find a Way to Evade Texas Firearms Tax.

A cowboy walked into a hardware store in Austin, Tex., the other day and asked to be shown a good six-shooter.

"How much is it?" he asked when he had looked it over.

"I can't sell it to you," the dealer replied, "but I will lease it to you for fifty years for $15."

"This is a dad-blamed funny kind of a joint," the cowboy said. "I don't want to lease a gun; I want to own it."

He started to walk out but was called back by the dealer, who patiently explained that the last legislature of Texas had passed a law which imposes a tax of 50 per cent on the gross proceeds from the sale of pistols.

"If I sold you this six-shooter for $15 I would have to pay the state a tax of $7.50," the hardware man explained. "I can lease it to you, however, for fifty years and won't have to pay the state anything."

The cowboy saw the point and leased the gun.

The law which was enacted for the purpose of taxing pistols out of existence in Texas has been in effect more than nine months. During that period only two pistols have been sold in Texas, according to the tax receipt records of the state comptroller's office. One of these weapons was sold the other day in Amarillo for $15 and the dealer made a remittance of $7.50 tax on the sale to the state comptroller. The other pistol was sold at Gainesville several weeks ago for $10, one-half of which sum passed into the coffers of the state.

It is said, however, that dealers all over Texas are evading the new law by leasing pistols for periods of fifty years and more. This is practically the same as a sale, as the life of a six-shooter will hardly exceed fifty years. The promiscuous carrying of six-shooters has resulted in many killings in this state and the legislature hoped to diminish the fatalities by making it as difficult as possible for a man to acquire one of the weapons. Pistol "toting," as it is called, is not openly practiced in any part of Texas. Many men still wear six-shooters, but the weapons are secreted from the eyes of the officers of the law. There has been a wonderful change throughout the Southwest in this respect during the last fifteen or twenty years. In the early days almost every native wore one or two six-shooters in holsters attached to a belt around his waist. It was the general custom and nothing was thought of it. Then the moral wave which wiped out gambling and is about to do away with the saloon in Texas came along and the six-shooter lost its popularity.

A PARDONED FRENCHMAN'S MURDER CONVICTION STILL STANDS.

Because He Has Not Been Officially Declared Innocent, Louis Danval Would Return to New Caledonia Rather Than Remain in France.

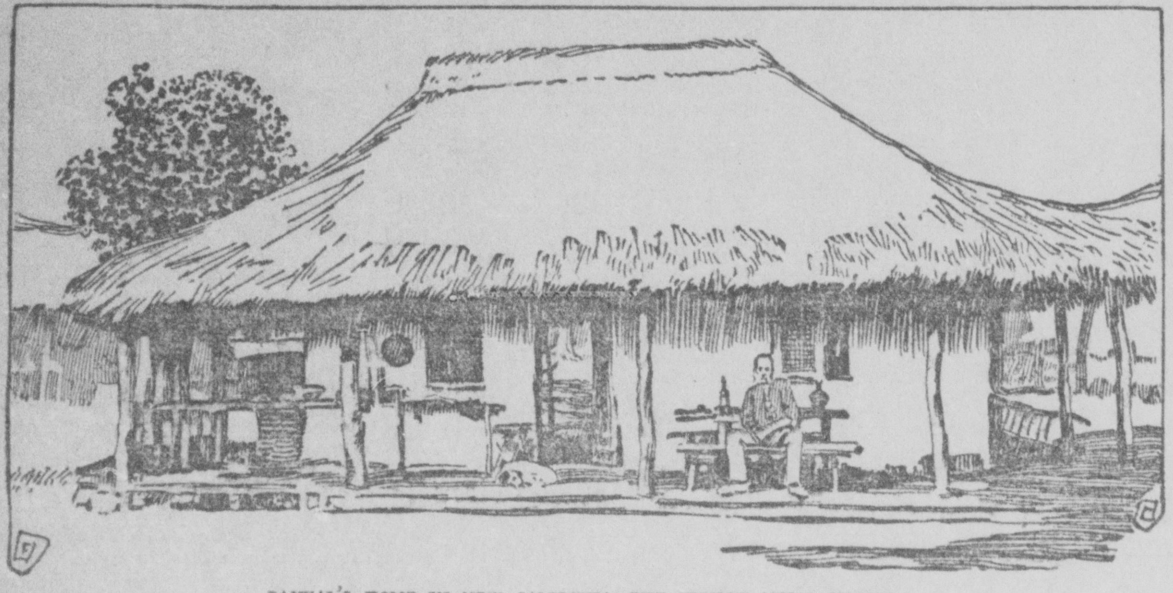
"Innocent, recognized as such, pardoned as such, but not yet rehabilitated, my life is henceforth in this land of France, to which, for twenty-five years I ardently longed to return, that of a desperate man. I cannot struggle any longer, my strength is spent. I ask you, Monsieur le Presidente, to allow me to go back to New Caledonia. For twenty-five years I have cried aloud my innocence * * * henceforth hope is fled!"

These are extracts from a pitiful letter which Louis Danval has addressed to the president of the French republic, praying to be allowed to return to the French penal settlement as a convict. Strange and bitter indeed must be the experience of a man who voluntarily seeks to exchange freedom in his beloved native land for the companionship of criminals in a distant colony.

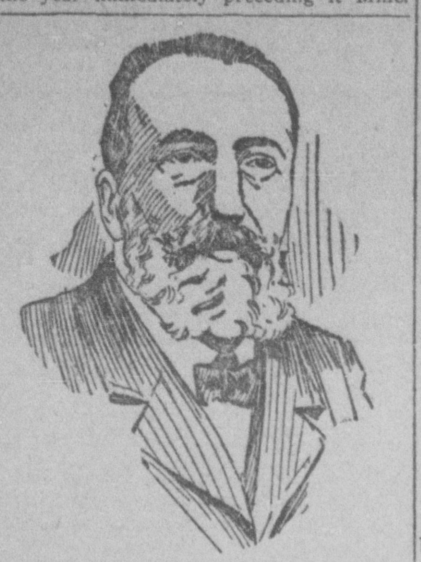
Danval's petition is the culminating tragedy in a life story full of suffering and pathos; it is a story of injustice and the martyrdom which it entailed; of hopes raised high, after long years of patient endurance of unmerited punishment and obloquy, only to be dashed to the ground; of futile efforts to procure the reversal of a sentence which branded its victim a murderer; of a blighted old age crowned by poverty and despair.



DANVAL'S HOME IN NEW CALEDONIA, THE FRENCH PENAL COLONY.

ACCUSED AT 33 YEARS OF AGE.

Thirty years ago Louis Danval stood in the dock at the Paris assizes, charged with having murdered his wife by poisoning her with arsenic. At that time he was 33 years old, popular and prosperous, with the reputation of being a thoroughly reliable and honorable man. He was a chemist with a shop in the Rue de Mauberge, in which he employed several assistants and was making money.



LOUIS DANVAL, A FRENCH CHEMIST, WHO WANTS TO LIVE IN A PENAL COLONY AFTER PARDON, BECAUSE HIS SENTENCE OF MURDER STILL STANDS.

Mme. Danval, his young wife, was a woman of weakly constitution and apparently suffered from a nervous disease. Their marriage was in January, 1876. In the year immediately preceding it Mme. Danval had an attack of typhoid fever, and in the same year also had been attended by Dr. Dervillez for a disease of the stomach. This fact is of great importance, for Danval affirms that whereas, he was in ignorance of it, the experts, who were in possession of Dr. Dervillez's evidence, persistently ignored it. A month after her marriage, Mme. Danval fell ill and Dr. Ozanam, who attended her, diagnosed cholerine. The symptoms recurred at unequal intervals until April, 1877. In August of that year pains became constant and were accompanied by incessant coughting. A fortnight before her death, however, Mme. Danval was well enough to dine with her husband at the house of friends and a week before her death she was able to go with her husband to St. Maur and, on returning to Paris, walk nearly three miles; and four days before death she was out marketing. September 6 Mme. Danval took to her bed; on the 7th Dr. Colvis diagnosed giddiness, cephalia and high fever, the same evening Dr. Ranault found her delirious and on the morning of the 9th she expired in an attack of syncope.

WIFE'S RELATIVES MADE TROUBLE.

These conflicting diagnoses show that the doctors had never grasped the true nature of Mme. Danval's malady, and for that very reason they were all the more ready to accept the hypothesis of arsenic poisoning when they learned afterward that arsenic had been found in the stomach.

"For some time previous to my wife's death," M. Danval said, "I was on bad terms with her relatives, and neither she nor I saw them. Mme. Danval was no sooner dead than they began to spread rumors of her having been poisoned. Finally they laid a formal charge against me in the hands of the public prosecutor. The experts found an infinitesimal quantity of arsenic, not as much as would harm a child of 2 years; not as much as one might find in a glass of many mineral waters which we drink.

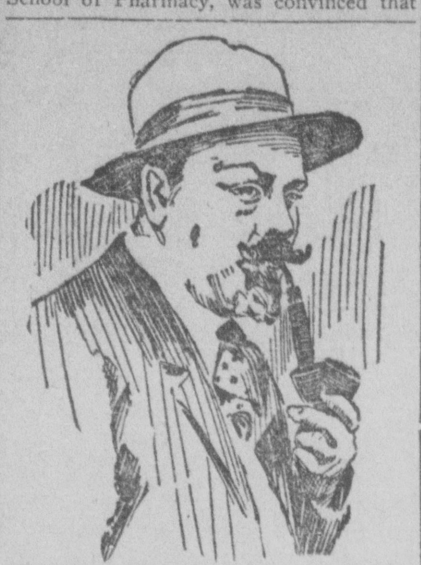
"The experts set to work to account for the presence of this arsenic. They investigated everything, even to the aromatic substances with which the body had been embalmed. They found nothing, and, therefore, concluded that my wife must have swallowed the arsenic. They asked me if my wife had been ill before her marriage. I answered no. I was ignorant that she had suffered from a malady which was only known to doctors some years later.

BECAUSE HE WAS A CHEMIST.

"But the experts knew from Dr. Dervillez that Mme. Danval had had gastroenteralgia before her marriage, yet they persisted in ignoring his deposition in their conclusions. Again, they analyzed the dust under the bed curtains (the curtains contained thirty-six grams of arsenic), but they collected the dust on the side of the lining, and, of course, found no arsenic. They, therefore, concluded that Mme. Danval could not have swallowed arsenic by breathing the dust under the curtains. Since, therefore, the presence of the arsenic could not be otherwise accounted for, and as I was a chemist, they came to the conclusion that Mme. Danval's death was due to poisoning."

Danval, found guilty, was sentenced to deportation for life. The unhappy man, when he heard his doom, turned to the jury and uttered these words: "Gentlemen, I forgive you, for you have been misled. I am innocent."

M. Bouis, the learned chemist at the School of Pharmacy, was convinced that there had been a miscarriage of justice. Year after year, in the course of his lectures, after describing the properties of arsenic, he would turn to his hearers and say solemnly: "Gentlemen, this poison is the cause of a great judicial error, the condemnation of the innocent Danval!"



JACQUES DUHR, A JOURNALIST WHO SECURED DANVAL'S RELEASE.

For twenty-three years the chemist-convict endured his hard fate in New Caledonia, without a murmur.

Hard-working, thrifty and of blameless conduct, Danval prospered. He was allowed to farm. There, in the spice-laden breezes of an almost ideal climate, he would have gladly spent the remainder of his life, had it not been for the awful stigma with which he had been branded. He was still an assassin in the eye of the law and doomed to hand to his innocent offspring an assassin's name. He was buoyed up by the hope that one day his innocence might be proclaimed before the world.

A JOURNALIST HELPED HIM.

Jacques Dhur, an editor, viisted Danval in the course of his inquiry into state prisons and was profoundly affected by the convict's history and the palpable injustice of his sentence. He promised to exert himself to bring about the public recognition of Danval's innocence and he kept his word.

In the summer of 1902 President Loubet signed Louis Danval's pardon, and in August of the same year the ex-convict, having disposed of his concession in New Caledonia, set foot once more on his native soil after twenty-four years of exile. His heart beat high with hope, despite his white hair and his shattered life, for the realization of his most ardent desire, the restoration of his good name, seemed near at last. Danval lost no time in petitioning for the revision of his sentence.

The court of appeals appointed a commission to re-examine the case, but it reported that no new evidence had been found and no new light had been thrown on old evidence to warrant a change in the verdict. In effect this refusal left Danval still branded as a murderer. It was a crushing blow to Danval. He had returned to France to secure the rehabilitation of his good name—the right to hold his head high among his fellow men. For five years he had struggled to get justice done him. He had exhausted his means. His spirit was broken. There was nothing left him to live for. When the sentence of guilty was pronounced against him he had a floruishing business. Now in his old age he was reduced to working as a shop assistant from 6 o'clock in the morning until 8 at night for a small wage.

The president of the Syndicate of French Chemists has announced, on behalf of his society, that $1,600 had been set aside with a view to forming a fund wherewith to buy Danval, who is now 63 years old, an annuity to shield him from destitution. This was coupled with an appeal to the general public to subscribe to the fund. And the public is responding liberally.

WASHINGTON'S NEW STATION.

The Great Vestibule an Example of Monumental Treatment of Terminals.

From Sylvester Baxter's "The Railway Beautiful" in the April Century.

One of the finest instances of recent railway progress in the appreciation of the traffic promoting value of beauty is furnished by the history of the movement for the embellishment of the national capital. The chief feature of the plans, the magnificent mall, would have been impossible had the railway line which until lately has had its station on Pennsylvania avenue continued to occupy that location. The enlightened and public-spirited president of the company, however, the late A. J. Cassatt, declared himself heartily in agreement with the project. He looked at the question from the point of view of an American citizen, appreciating that if Congress intended to make of the mall what the founders of Washington intended it to be, no railway should be allowed to cross it. His consent to a new location was also justified from a strictly railway point of view. With the carrying out of these plans, Washington will be made the most beautiful capital city in the world, and will correspondingly attract increased travel thither, greatly to the profit of the railways. In architecture and in site the new station is one of the finest ever erected, even surpassing the splendid terminals that characterize the large cities in Germany. It stands on Massachusetts avenue, facing the capitol, and yet not too near it. Fronting upon a semi-circular plaza 600 feet wide, the building is nearly fifty feet wider than the capitol. It is constructed of white marble, with a facade of classical style. The plaza before it is a fine feature in itself, and provides a place where bodies of troops or large organizations can be formed for inauguration ceremonies or on other occasions. The railway station thus forms the great vestibule of Washington, a fitting introduction to its attractions.

The monumental treatment of railway terminals to express their functions as the modern gateways of a great city has received a remarkable impetus from the example set at Washington. Direct consequences are the two magnificent stations now under construction in New York, the Union station in Cleveland and the beautiful Atlanta terminal built in the style of the Spanish renaissance.

THE REASONS FOR THE SLANDER SQUAD.

Nobody ever yet heard of a franchise grabber, or election thief, or crooked lawyer, or discredited politician, who did not have a personal grudge against such a force for decency and honesty in the community as they all recognize in The Star.

If this newspaper had been less a friend to the people than it has been, by that degree the malevolence of The Star's enemies—the corrupters of politics, the loan sharks and the franchise grabbers—would have been less than it is.

The Star could at one minute silence the Metropolitan and its disreputable slander squad by acquiescing in the Metropolitan's franchise extension, by helping it to beat the people of Kansas City out of ten million dollars, by extolling the outrageous peace agreement and by opposing an effective Public Utilities Commission.

The best proof of The Star's faithful service to Kansas City is the people's loyal support because of The Star's invariable aid to all that makes Kansas City a better place to live in.

The next best proof is the enmity to The Star of the Metropolitan, the disreputable saloon men, the loan sharks and all others of the Slanderbund, because of The Star's invariable opposition to their greedy and vicious schemes.

HOW THE SUN GIVES LIFE TO THE EARTH.

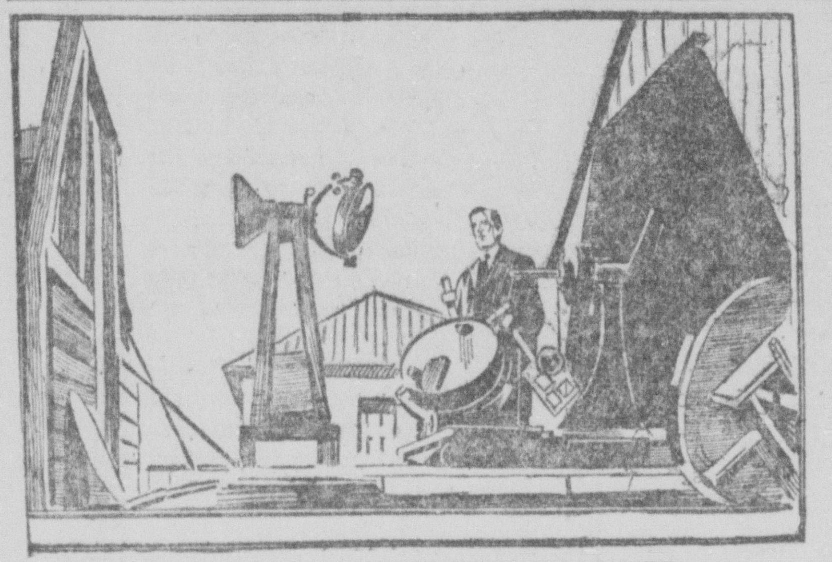
RECENT SCIENTIFIC INVESTIGATIONS HAVE UPSET OLD THEORIES OF HEAT RADIATION

THAT the sun gives earth only half as much heat as many astronomers have supposed—that its radiation is variable instead of constant, as has been believed, and that our atmosphere shuts out from man one-half of the heat given to earth, are among the important announcements to be made soon by the United States astrophysical observatory.

The astrophysical observatory, maintained by the government under the administrative guardianship of the Smithsonian institution, is the only station of its kind in the world, and these epoch-making discoveries could not, as a whole, have been made elsewhere. Their announcement has been awaited with great interest by astronomers and meteorologists the world over and will be the first general statement of the results of the unique research in solar physics inaugurated by the late Prof. S. P. Langley thirty years ago. This research has been developed in recent years by C. G. Abbot, director of the astrophysical observatory, who, with F. E. Fowle, jr., has improved the observatory's instruments and methods to their present high state of efficiency and has obtained the valuable results to be announced.



MIRROR THROWING SUNBEAM INTO THE BOLOMETER.

"The sun is the promoter of all life on earth and maintains the earth itself at a habitable temperature," said Mr. Abbot recently. "It does this through the rays which it sends to earth and it is our first interest to learn the amount of these rays available to us. Exaggerated estimates have prevailed for the last thirty years.

HOW HE MEASURED IT.

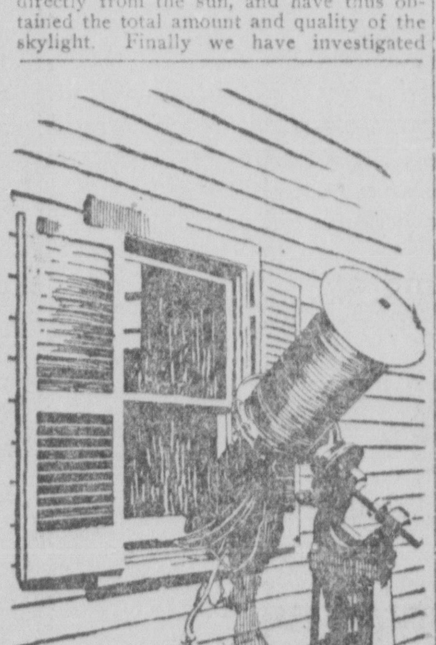
"Our computation that the average intensity of the sun's radiation is 'two' means that it is two calories per square centimeter per minute. These are strange terms to most people. A cubic centimeter is about the size of dice used in gaming. Suppose we place up above the earth's atmosphere and thus independent of its clouds and dust, a little cube of water of that size. Now, if the sun's rays shining directly on one side of this cube for one minute could be wholly absorbed in it they would raise its temperature two degrees Centigrade. That is what we mean by our two units—our new estimate of what astronomers have termed the 'solar constant of radiation,' so called because the sun has been supposed to give a practically constant radiation for days and months and years.

"Far from constant is its intensity. It often varies as much as 4 or 5 per cent; sometimes as much as 10 or 15, even when making allowance for its distance, according to seasons.

"We could not make such measurements up above our atmosphere. We did the next best thing and measured how much of the sun's radiation is lost in passing through the air. We obtained our estimate by adding this to the amount received here at the surface of the earth.

"We measured that lost in coming down through the air by measuring the reflecting power of clouds, and thus the proportion of rays which clouds throw back into space; also the transparency of the atmosphere itself on cloudless days—how it varies in different altitudes at different times and for the many colors and kinds of sun rays. We have compared the light received at the earth's surface by reflection from the blue sky with that coming directly from the sun, and have thus obtained the total amount and quality of the skylight. Finally we have investigated how earth loses heat coming to it through the atmosphere—how much of the sun's radiation it reflects into space and how important a part is played by humidity of the atmosphere in maintaining the earth's temperature nearly constant. In fixing the connection between the sun and climate all of these factors are indispensable.

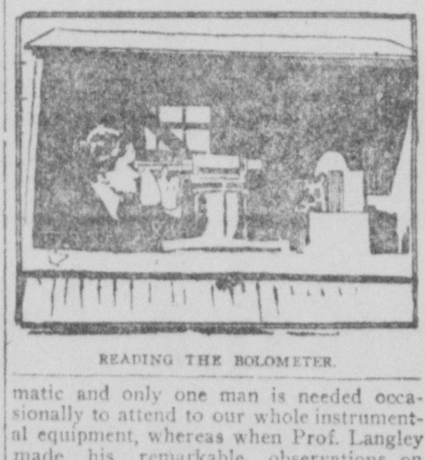


THE PYSHELIOMETER.

"By two methods we have obtained new estimates of the sun's temperature, which we find to be at its surface from 6,000 to 7,000 degrees centigrade, or, on the scale of our household thermometer, 10,000 to 13,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Astronomers in the last fifty years have variously estimated it to be from 2,000 to 2 million degrees centigrade, but all estimates of the last ten years have ranged from 5,000 to 10,000 degrees.

"Just outside our southern window we have a 'pyrheliometer' for measuring the rate at which the sun's heat is received at the earth's surface. Now, a bucket of water is warmed by the sun much faster upon a high mountain top than it would be at sea level because there is between it and the sun less air to cut off its rays by absorption and scattered reflection. If one of these instruments were mounted at the very top of our atmosphere and another at sea level comparison of their readings would show how much of the sun's heat is lost in the atmosphere, because of clouds, moisture, dust and smoke and in the molecules of air itself.

"But it being impossible to get above our atmosphere, as said, we directed the pyrheliometer at the sun as it approached the horizon and shone through thicker and thicker layers of air. But this instrument gives such measurements only for the complete rays of light, whereas a sunbeam is composed of rays of many colors, which the air scatters and absorbs differently. So by means of an arrangement of mirrors outside the laboratory we throw a constant beam of sunlight into a dark room, where a prism resolves it into rays of different colors which fall singly upon the 'bolometer,' a very wonderful electric thermometer, invented by Prof. Langley, which measures to no less than a millionth of a degree the heat of the separate colored rays from morning until noon. The slightest changes in radiation of the rays thus admitted to the bolometer are registered by a magnetic needle carrying a mirror about the size of a pin head and throwing a tiny beam of light which at every movement of the needle makes a zigzag upon a long, moving, photographic plate. This plate, when developed, gives the record of the sun's changes in radiation. These instruments are nearly automatic and only one man is needed occasionally to attend to our whole instrumental equipment, whereas when Prof. Langley made his remarkable observations on Mount Whitney four men were needed in making a single observation.



READING THE BOLOMETER.

"We find that half of the sun's rays received at the outer surface of earth's hull of atmosphere fail to penetrate through to the land surface inhabited by man. We find this after allowing for the absorption as well as the reflection of the clouds and of the atmosphere in general. Thus only 50 per cent of these sunrays are actually received to warm the earth and maintain it at an average surface temperature of 15 degrees Centigrade or by the household thermometer, 59 degrees Fahrenheit.

THE ARMY TO USE AIR DATA.

"An inquiry came recently from an engineer officer of the army, who wanted to know the transparency of the lower air for light of different colors. I gave him the transparency of the mile of air nearest earth and stated how much of the rays of each color would be reduced in passing through this mile of air. But this sort of information is likely to prove useful, particularly for experiments in agriculture. Plants do not grow in darkness, and each variety doubtless requires light of a particular quality and intensity for its best development. Our work is adapted to show where these best conditions—when they shall be known—are most generally to be found—whether in Arizona or in New England, for example.

"Arizona sunlight is much richer in those rays at the blue end of the spectrum. Light at the surface of the earth is sunlight plus skylight. The amount of each depends upon whether you are at sea level or high up. At sea level much of the light is from the sky, while higher up it is mostly from the sun directly, the shadows being much deeper, the diffused light of the sky comparatively weak.

IT'S DARK ABOVE OUR AIR.

"If you stood just above our atmosphere you would find the day sky everywhere as dark as night. You would see all of the stars shining out plainly and everywhere else darkness except the blazing and blinding disk of the sun. The lower you would descend into the atmosphere the more it would scatter the sun's rays and the more skylight you would receive. Where you receive equal amounts of total sunlight and skylight, you would receive several times as much blue from the sky as from the sun.

"Probably cloudy or hazy days on the sun changes in the envelope of mainly gaseous matter which surrounds the sun cause the changes in the intensity of the sun's radiation. We find, also, indications that these variations in the sun's radiation are partly due to sun spots. It seems pretty clear that variations in the temperature of earth take place simultaneously with the eleven-year period of sun spot frequency. But this periodic variation of the earth's temperature is too great to be accounted for by the mere darkening of the sun by sun spots alone, and there seems to be something associated with the spots—such as the sun's atmosphere becoming less transparent when the spots are most numerous.

"From our study of variations of the thermometer at fifty scattered stations of the world it appears that changes in the sun's radiation produce well-marked and recognizable changes of temperature over the continents. Fluctuations of 5 per cent or less in the amount of solar radiation occur so rapidly—often within ten-day periods or thereabouts—that they do not produce much apparent effect on weather, because the earth's great capacity for heat makes it respond sluggishly. But we have noted changes of 10 to 15 per cent in solar radiation, which continued long enough to make marked difference in temperature. In February and March, 1903, we found the radiation of the sun 15 per cent higher than in the preceding and following months. Our expectation was prevailing warm temperatures. Such were, in fact, recorded for these months very generally over the world.

THE SEA COOLS MORE SLOWLY.

"We find that the average temperature of inland districts falls off 4 degrees Fahrenheit when there is a decrease of 10 per cent in the sun's radiation, followed by a recovery of intensity within about a year. But we find that the sun's changes affect the temperature of places on the seacoast and on sea islands only from one-half to one-third as much as they do that of inland regions. This is because the sea is warmed much deeper than the land by the sun, and having therefore a much greater capacity for heat, responds more sluggishly to changes of the radiation of the sun.

"In order to test thoroughly the connection between solar changes and the variations of our temperatures daily observations must be made at a few favorable stations established in cloudless localities and adapted to obtain accurate measurements of the sun's radiation. From occurrences similar to that of 1903 it is believed that investigations like ours will prove of value in weather forecasting. We have perfected and tried the methods of observation and have obtained sufficient evidence of considerable solar changes to make it worth while to go on getting a complete record of the sun. It now depends upon the cleverness of meteorologists to put it to use. Since the observations of the sun, if to be used for forecasts, must be made nearly every day in the year, we can't expect success unless we have separate summer and winter stations where the weather is cloudless during their respective periods of observation. The winter station should be located in the Southern hemisphere, or perhaps in Mexico. Our information to date is sufficient to warrant the beginning of the work on these lines, and it is gratifying to find that meteorologists of India and Australia, as well as of our own country, are expressing much interest in the results we have obtained."

Lady Mary's London Letter.

LONDON, March 25.—If any evidence were needed of the ascendancy of American women in the king's immediate circle it could be found ready to hand at Biarritz. It is an understood thing that King Edward shall make no engagements that will interfere with his daily afternoon teas with Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. This American favorite of the English ruler always carries about with her for his consumption a special brand of China tea which comes to her direct from the gardens in which it is grown. The king himself is strictly forbidden by his physician to touch either India or Ceylon teas and as he is very fond of the British national beverage you may be sure that he highly appreciates the tactful provision of his favorite hostess.

The duchess, by the way, has introduced a few new American women to the king. It is one of this woman's prerogatives that she shall pass upon every American woman before she is admitted to the royal friendship. The king made this arrangement some time ago and he has been delighted with the way it has worked as it saves him a lot of trouble and annoyance.

Mrs. Harold Baring, who was passed in this way by Consuelo about two years ago, now is high in the royal favor. There is a story afloat that her dinner to King Edward the other night was not arranged of her own initiative but at the suggestion of the king himself. It came quite as a surprise to this smart American hostess and the Biarritz market was found unequal to the task of supplying the delicacies beloved by the king. Hurry calls were sent to London and by special service such incidentals as asparagus at $6 a bunch and strawberries at $7.50 a pound, or about fifty cents a berry, were brought to the French watering place in time to tickle the palate of the royal guest.

The king's favorite terrier, which has been in the habit of accompanying him about on his strolls and calls is now in disgrace and spends his days as well as his nights in his kennel. The cause of all this is a ferocious and fatal attack the dog made on one of Consuelo's pet Persian kittens, of which she is very fond. It happened during one of the daily calls of the king at the Villa de Miragol, which the American-born duchess has taken for the season. The terrier is extremely jealous of his master's attentions to any other animal. Knowing this, the king thought to tease him by fondling one of his guest's kittens. Finally, when the king grew tired of it and deposited the kitten on the floor his terrier, "Jack," rushed at it and killed it with one savage bite. The king gave him the soundest kind of a thrashing and relegated him to his kennel for an indefinite period.

If Mrs. Armstrong Smith, our latest of society hostesses from New York, ransacked all London, she could not find a finer house in which to entertain than Lord Nunburnholme's mansion in Grosvenor square, which she has taken. It has been in the Wilson family, to which its noble owner belongs, for years and from it several of the daughters, which includes Lady Chesterfield, Countess Cowley and Mrs. Chaplin, were married. The Wilson girls were the talk of London for their beauty and unconventionality six or seven years ago and the entertainments at the mansion which Mrs. Armstrong Smith has acquired were some of the most brilliant and popular that enlivened the London season.

The ballroom is a magnificent affair, decorated in Louis XV style. At one end is a gallery for the orchestra. It is one of the few private ballrooms in London the floor of which is hung on chains.

Mr. Wilson made his "pile" out of the steamship line which bears his name. Although he was born in Yorkshire, where they are as "careful" of their money as in Scotland, he spent it royally, as anyone can see who visits the mansion in Grosvenor square, which is now the property of the present peer.

It will be remembered that the Miss Wilson who is now Mrs. Guy Fairfax was once engaged to the present Duke of Manchester, who subsequently married Miss Zimmerman of Cincinnati. Mr. Wilson discovered the extent of the duke's debts and set up an awful howl. "No, thank you," he said, "he won't suit me or my daughter. He had better get an American heiress to pay his creditors. I have no desire for the honor." Then and there he made his daughter break with His Grace.

People who have heard of the advent of Mrs. Armstrong Smith are as anxious to see a wonderful ring we are told she possesses as to see the woman herself. I hear this ring cost $125,000 and is made up of a cluster of famous diamonds and one ruby. When she wears it she is said to cut the third finger out of her glove. Frankly, such a jewel strikes me as being distinctly vulgar. It is nearly as bad as Mrs. Ogden Goelet's diamond buckles on walking shoes which so thoroughly annoyed the Duke of Roxburghe. But neverthleess we are just dying to see that ring.

The restaurant dinner is no longer considered "smart." Instead it is now "the thing" to entertain your friends in your own house. If you do not possess a home and live in an hotel then you must have a private room for your dinner parties. Of course, such an affair is not apt to be very lively. Truly, I know of no more dull party than that which takes place in a private sitting room of an hotel. There is a nameless something about the whole thing which is depressing in the extreme. But the fiat has gone forth. If you mean to be chic you must not take your friends to the restaurant.

One of the reasons why these hitherto very popular methods of dispensing hospitality have become bourgeoise is that of late some outrageously common people have been seen dining at even the most exclusive places like Claridge's and the Ritz. You know, of course, it was you Americans who introduced us to the charm of the restaurant dinners. Where you lead we usaully follow. Now, however, the tables are turned.

The change has meant a great boom in chefs. People who were satisfied with an ordinary cook at home, as they nearly always dined out and inevitably took their guests to the Savoy or the Ritz, now find it essential to hunt for a competent chef who can turn out dishes as recherche as those to be had at the swagger restaurants. The problem is a grave one and is causing many women very bad hours of financial figuring. Perhaps the new fashion will bring about a revolution in things domestic and after all prove a blessing in disguise. I know at the present moment of half a dozen patrician young women, including the daughters of two peers, who are, so to speak, taking the bull by the horns. In other words they have joined a swagger cookery school to be initiated into the mysteries of perfect French cooking. By becoming thoroughly equipped in the culinary art they hope to be quite independent of the chef. The most fantastic aprons are designed for these amateur cooks. Indeed, so fetching are they that it is no wonder so many are taking up the cult of the frying pan.

It has been suggested in some quarters that some one with originality should found a palatial eating house for the smart set only, ostracising actresses and all who could not show a pedigree. Can you imagine such a deadly prosaic state of affairs? Think of parties made up of gentlewomen only. Can you realize anything so dull and preposterous—so respectable? I always sympathize with the witty American woman who exclaimed, "You may call me anything but respectable."

LADY MARY.

AUSTRALIAN MOUND BUILDERS.

Birds Build Mounds of Brush Which Are Twelve Feet High.

From the Sidney, Australia, Times.

Our mound builders, the brush turkey, the mallee hen, and the jungle fowl, are ranked by naturalists among the bird wonders of the world. The mounds are built in dark scrubs of earth, leaves, and twigs, which are scratched up by the hens for a considerable radius. The mound of the brush turkey measures as much as forty feet in circumference, and ranges from five feet to twelve feet high. The eggs are placed in a ring, small end down, and incubated by the heat of the decomposing vegetable matter. The young can fly as soon as they have rooted their way out. Though the parent birds are sedulous in their care of the nest, they take no notice of the chicks. The little ones are absolutely on their own resources from the time they leave the shell.

Those champion feathered architects, the bower builders, are unique in that they construct an elaborate playground in addition to an inconspicuous nest. At times the bower, or playground, is made by arching the tops of two tufts of grass, or low clumps of bushes, but often the birds make two lines of earth, along which tall spears of grass are planted, the tops being overlapped to form an arch. The bottom of this hall is strewn with any small bright objects they can pick up. They stole Gould's watch on one occasion while he was camped in the bush. I noticed a pink-crested bower bird one day fly off with a piece of bright tin in its beak, and followed it to its playground. This consisted of two walls of long spear grass, about a foot apart, leaning towards each other, and overlapping at the top, with a light partition across the center, in which was a small opening. The floor was strewn with little pieces of broken china, trinkets, beads, shells, chips of tin, glass, brass buttons and various other bright and glittering fragments. When playing they carry these pieces from one apartment to the other. They strut to and fro passing each other at the doorway, with neck feathers ruffled like clucky hens, and cooing and chattering all the while. What the game really is I have no idea. They may play it for five minutes, or five hours, or five years, but there is no more finish about it when they leave off than there was at the beginning.

John Bull's Declining Thirst.

From the Westminster Gazette.

It is reassuring to learn from Dr. Dawson Burns's annual review of the United Kingdom's drink bill that although we spent £590,000 more on intoxicants last year than in 1906 the average expenditure per head fell from £3 16s. 3d, to £3 15s. 9d. From 1872 to 1878 the average expenditure never fell below £4 a head, and in 1876 it touched £4 9s. On the other hand, from 1841 to 1851 (both years included) it never rose as high as £3, while in 1842 it fell as low as £2 8s. 5¼d., or less than two-thirds its present amount. As matters are we stand exactly where we stood in 1866, when the expenditure per head on alcoholic liquors was, as last year, £3 15s. 9d.

Beardsley's Achievements.

The Star has printed full page advertisements discussing the achievements of the Beardsley administration. The statements made in them are readily capable of verification. And they suggest once more this important consideration in the campaign:

Mayor Beardsley is a trained and capable executive, thoroughly familiar with the details of city affairs.

Under his supervision the water works plant has been rehabilitated, the gas question settled, the street department equipped, public improvements to the extent of ¾ million dollars made out of the revenues, the disgraceful accommodations for medical treatment at the city hall replaced by a modern emergency hospital and the Twelfth street trafficway started toward completion. In short, the large and complicated affairs of the city have been conducted on a good business basis.

This is the sort of administration that any city might be proud to have the chance to continue.

THIS INDIAN IS AN ARTIST

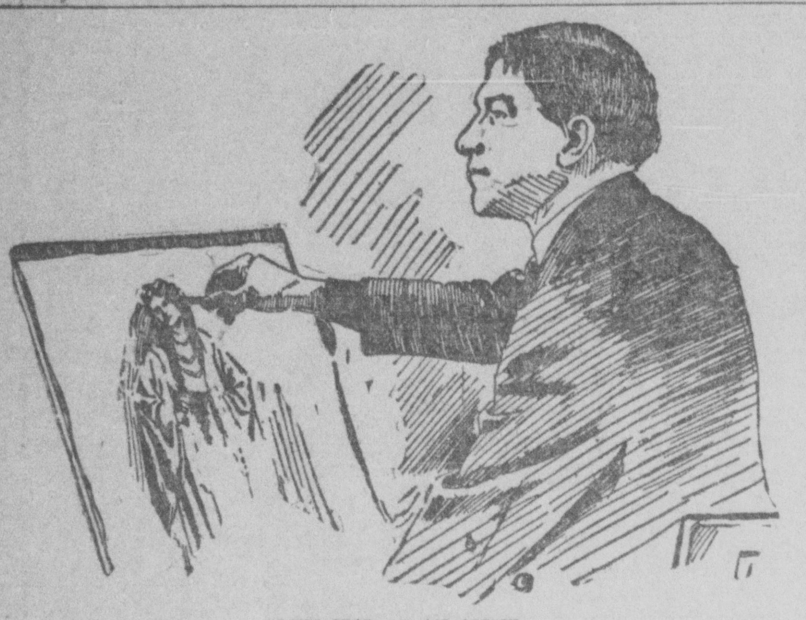
LONE STAR, A SIOUX BRAVE, SAYS HE HAS A MISSION.

His Ambition Is to Paint His People as They Really Are, Not as They Are Portrayed by the White Man.

From the teepee of the Sioux comes a red skinned Moses who is creating a furore in more circles than his chosen one of art. Picturesquely and prophetically named Lone Star by his Sioux parents, he promises to shine in the artistic firmament as the only faithful portrayist of the real life of the redskin as it is lived today. Lone Star's life so far is summed up in a few brief lines: Born in a Sioux village; his early life spent in blankets; selected by the perspicacity of those in authority for education at Carlisle; a strenuous Indian in all his studies; a husky tackle on the Indian football team of the recent season; a silent, studious, successful chap with the artistic instinct finely developed.



LONE STAR, AS AN ARTIST.

From Carlisle, still as a government ward, he went to the School of Industrial Art in Philadelphia and there he is progressing with remarkable rapidity in his studies. He purposes trying for the laurel wreath of fame as an artist who paints Indian life in a manner that will be new to the world—that is with fidelity. Whether or not the world will accept Lone Star's faithful pictures in preference to the fanciful drawings of imaginative artists remains to be seen. The late lamented Phineas T. Barnum probably would have pooh-poohed Lone Star's idea of painting Indian life with fidelity. Barnum in all probability would have said:

THE REDSKIN AS A DESTROYER.

They like to see the redskin pictured as a ferocious creature, shooting coach drivers, drawing a circle of fire around a devoted band of survivors making their last fight behind a breastwork of recumbent horses, or shooting flaming arrows as a signal for the red men to ride on red raids.

But Lone Star has the courage of his convictions. He was born an Indian, he knows how the Indian of to-day looks and acts and he is determined to give us a new type of Indian in his pictures—the Indian of to-day minus the theatrical and ferocious attributes which the artists who paint pictures of the popular variety attach to Lo.

Lone Star is an educated Indian. He has studied the history of his race and is able to deliver forceful and interesting speeches on the red man's characteristics. He will not make the scalping knife a prominent feature of his Indian pictures, as so many do, for the reason that he claims the scalping of a foe was a bloodthirsty idea introduced by the whites into this country and from them borrowed (and perhaps improved upon) by the Indians. Lone Star declares that the original white foes of the Indians took to scalping because they found the red man had a superstitious belief that, like Sampson, their strength was derived from their hair. The gentle settlers, says Lone Star, decided to work upon this superstition and so scalping became the fashion among those who practiced such little pleasantries in those days.

POOR LO IN PEACEFUL ROLES.

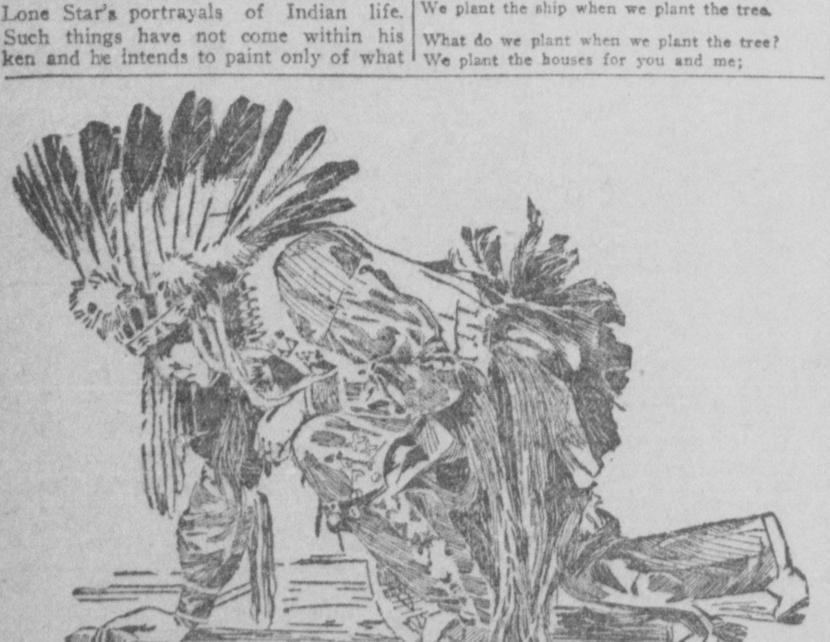
"There will be no flaming arrows, fights for water holes, attacks on coaches or massacres of women and children in Lone Star's portrayals of Indian life. Such things have not come within his ken and he intends to paint only of what he knows and has seen. There will be no lack of subjects, even though the lurid themes of long ago be discarded. Lone Star will transfer to canvas the picturesque dances of the red men with (and this he says is important) the costumes and surroundings true to life and not a mosaic of bits of environment mirrored on the mind of an artist during a flying trip in search of local color.



LONE STAR IN THE WAR DRESS OF HIS TRIBE, THE SIOUX INDIANS.

Lone Star's brush will show us the hidden side of Indian life. He says it will be a new and a better side. He will paint the civilized Indian of pure stock. The obtrusive half breed, with the worst qualities of both races well developed, too often hides from view the nobler red man who has added to the finer qualities of his own race the more admirable accomplishments of the whites. Lone Star says he will take us behind the screen of degenerates that the whites view as the real representatives of the Indian race and show us the home life that the vices of the white men have failed to corrupt.

Lone Star has inherited a gorgeous collection of costumes. In full dress he is gorgeous. Arrayed in all his Sioux splendor with masterful eye and strong, stern face, Lone Star is a sight worth seeing. In appearance he is the ideal of the type of Indian that Fennimore Cooper pictured. But this is all on the surface. Beneath the beads and feathers there is a being of whom Cooper never dreamed—the artist who is to give us, he says, our first real picture of life among the red men.

ARBOR DAY IS ALMOST HERE.

April 10 Is the Date in Missouri, April 19 in Kansas.

A Scotchman once said to his son: "When ye hae naethin' else to do, be aye stickin' in a tree—'twill be growin' when y're sleepin.'"

On April 10 in Missouri and April 19 in Kansas, hundreds of children and others will be "stickin' in a tree."

It is estimated that ¼ million acres of forest are cut annually in the United States. Th efforts of the advocates of Arbor day not only are intended to inculcate the young with a love of nature, but also to overcome as far as possible the effects of this wholesale destrucion. In one year after J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska City, Neb., founded Arbor day in his state, in 1872, 1 million trees were planted in Nebraska. Since that time 350 million trees have been set out in the state. Many of these trees died at once or did not reach maturity, but an estimate has been made that about 300 million reached the age of 5 years. At the low estimated value of twenty-five cents a tree, thesse trees have increased the value of Nebraska's property 75 million dollars. Nebraska once was known as the "treeless state." Many farmers believed it was useless to plan trees. The experiments of Mr. Morton, exploited by the United States Department of Agriculture, convinced them that arborculture was possible.

Charles R. Skinner, state superintendent of schools of New York, declared recently that the value of New York school property had increased nearly 2 million dollars in the last few years, owing to the improvement from the trees, shrubs and flowers planted by pupils and teacherss on successive Arbor days. The total value of the state's school property is 88 million dollars. In the state of New York, a record was kept between 1889 and 1899 of the number of trees planted by school children aside from those planted during Arbor day ceremonies, but owing to Arbor day influence. The report shows that more than 200,000 trees were "set out."

Arbor day exercises consist usually of formal tree plantings, nature lectures, choruses, verse reading and, in the country, picnics. In Sweden, where tree planting is almost a cult, the state authorities prepare the ground for planting the seed and take the children of the schools to the place. There each girl is given a sack of seed and is placed at the head of a row of holes dug to receive them. Behind each girl, a boy follows with a spade. His business is to fill in the earth over the seeds. A band precedes the children, who march across the tract, preceeded by the national banner of Sweden. When they arrive at the opposite side they gather around the flag and sing the national anthem. Then the commune gives them a picnic luncheon. Sometimes thirty to fifty acres are planted in this way in a day.

To illustrate the usefulness of tree planting, J. Sterling Morton, then Secretary of Agriculture, read the following poem at an Arbor day celebration some years ago:

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
We plant the ship which will cross the sea;
We plant the mast to carry the sails;
We plant the plank to withstand the gales,
The keel, the keelson, the beam, the knee;
We plant the ship when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
We plant the houses for you and me;
We plant the rafters, the shingles, the floors;
We plant the studding, the lath, the doors,
The beams, the siding, all parts that be;
We plant the home when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
A thousand things we daily see;
We plant the spire that out-towers the crag;
We plant the staff for our country's flag;
We plant the shade from the hot sun free—
We plant all these when we plant the tree.

Mr. Morton also told this story of how two Georgia "crackers" helped him to establish Arbor day in the pine district of that state:

"I had made my regular talk in a county schoolhouse of logs and had failed to impress the natives, if the expressions on the long, sad, yellow faces before me indicated anything. When I finished a tall, rawboned patriarch of 80 arose and said: 'Mr. Morton, suh, we-alls is slow to change. When I was a boy I went to this here school an' sot at a pine bench with nary tree to keep the sun from shinin' acrost it. I reckon that what was good enough fer me is good enough fer them as follers after. We-alls got our edications in the good old fashioned way.'

"'Yas,' said another old brother who had followed the talk closely, 'we-alls got our edication in the good old fashioned way and you-all take notice what it done to us. Me an' you owned as purty a piece o' timber as you-all could find in this yere county an' we sold the timber fer $1,200 apiece. Now that there land ain't wuth a darn and we-alls has spent the money. Ef Mistah Morton had only a-come in time to show me an' you how to jes jolly that timber along an' cut an' plant an' cult'vate, we-alls would have the timber and the money, too. I wants to serve notice that this yere school has a Arboh day, ef I has to do the plantin' myself."

"We had an Arbor day right there," said Mr. Morton.

AGED MAN WAS TOO GENEROUS.

Gave His Fortune to Feed the Poor and Has to Seek Poorhouse Shelter.

From the Boston Post.

Among the hundreds who went to the Massachusetts state poor farm at Tewksbury during the week, there was one, Dr. John Wesley Sill, whose case is a little sadder than all the rest.

He is a man who had accumulated a fortune and was a philanthropist of wide repute. He gave all his goods to feed the poor—now he is in the poor farm.

And this is the sad story of a man who once was looked up to by society, whose name meant something among the people of this state. Now his name is just a passing fancy, and people who know of his unfortunate condition can only say, "too bad!"

He is the man who saved the life of Governor Russell; the man whose father was for years a trusted soldier in the Thirty-third British regiment—the Duke of Wellington's famous band of soldiers.

He could speak twelve different languages, and had been in about every civilized country in the world—but he is to-day without a chick or child in all the world.

Dr. Sill—"the dear old doctor," they affectionately call him at the charitable institution—is playing his last cards. He is now 82 years old, with silvered hair and tottering footsteps. A kindly old man, but sadly unfortunate.

A year ago he decided that he could not live more than six months, and therefore gave away all his property, retaining only enough money to keep him the rest of the year.

The amount has been all used, and as he has no relatives, and nothing to live on, he asked the county to care for him.

The doctor was the son of Captain John Sill, that favorite of the English army, who was for years in the Thirty-third regiment, favorite of the Duke of Wellington, and who won fame for his battles in India.

Captain Sill was at the Island of St. Helena when Dr. Sill, this son, was born and the lad grew up under army influence. He went with his father to many of the English countries and English possessions when a boy, and it was there he learned the languages of different peoples. He speaks Spanish with wonderful fluency, is a master of the German, French, English and a half dozen other languages, and was in his day considered one of the best educated men in the East.

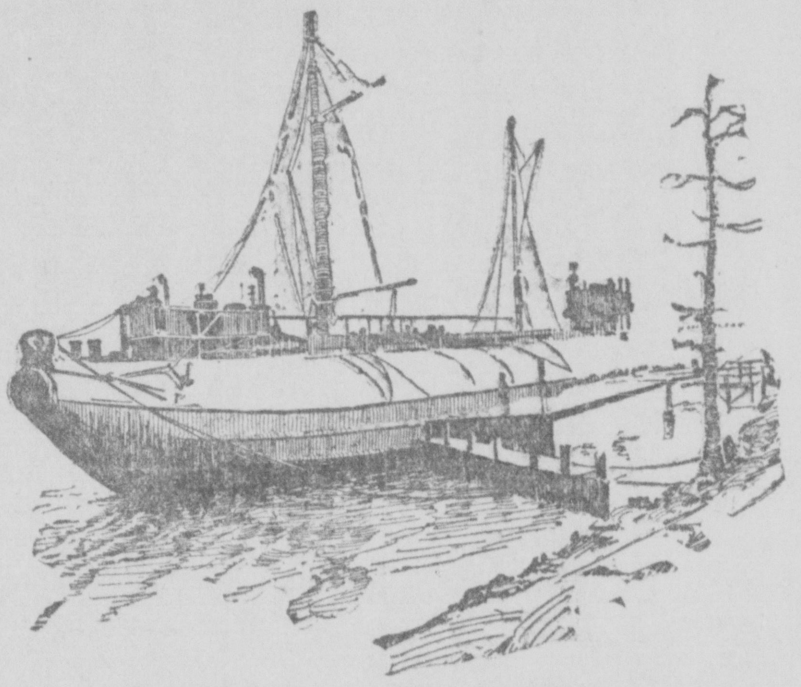
He married Desdemona Couch, and three children blessed the union. One of these died in infancy, the rest grew to be man and woman but are now dead. His wife passed away some twenty years ago, and at her death the doctor was alone—his last relative was gone.

Some of the old legislators can best tell the story of the doctor's savig the life of Governor Russell of Massachusetts. The governor was sick in bed, helpless and hopeless. Sill lived in Worcester at the time, and in desperation they sent for him to attend the governor.

Nobody believed there was an even chance to save the governor, but the veteran doctor went about it in his methodical way—so characteristic of him to-day, when he says, "God's will be done"—attended the governor and brought him back to health.

He is to-day only one of the hundreds of unfortunates of the big buildings of the state poor farm—a tottering old man, clean cut in figure, military sort of like—only that he is away from the life that rightly belongs to him—apart from those with whom he should mingle. He is a weary unfortunate, whose sad life is beyond description when one understands the romance and success of his former days.

THE FIRST OCEAN-GOING VESSEL TO ENTER A NEW TEXAS PORT.



The recent completion of a twenty-foot channel from the mouth of the Neches river to the Port Arthur and Sabine ship channel enables sea-going craft to make regular visits to Neches river points as far north as Beaumont, Tex.

The opening of this new waterway promises to lead to the development of a large section of Southeast Texas which heretofore had been without direct water communication with the markets which are reached by the ocean-going vessels. It also has brought to public notice a new deep water port which is being established on the Neches river about four miles above where that stream empties into Sabine lake. The new shipping point is called Port Neches. One of the big oil refineries of John W. Gates and associates is located there and it is developing into an important shipping point. The first and largest of the ocean-going vessels to pass through the new channel was the whaleback barge Dallas, owned by Mr. Gates, which made a run up to Port Neches and took on a load of asphalt. The Dallas is 264 feet long, thirty-six feet in breadth and draws seventeen feet of water when loaded.

Other large oil tank vessels and barges now are making regular trips through the new water way and up the Neches river to Beaumont, where they take on loads of oil. The Neches river is thirty to forty feet deep at Beaumont.

The Average Family.

The average Kansas City family spends, say, $75 a year in car fare.

With 4-cent fares it would save $15 a year; with 3-cent fares, $30. Perhaps it is possible for the city to reduce fares. An effective Utilities commission would find out.

An effective commission could not be expected from a mayor owing his election to the Metropolitan.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE SPEEDWAY

REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE
1111 Grand Avenue
KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI

March 28, 1908.

Dear Sir: DO YOU WANT A SPEEDWAY, OR RACE TRACK, ON PARK OR BOULEVARD PROPERTY IN FRONT OF YOUR HOME?

Mr. H. D. Train, a horseman of this city, is sending broadcast, to all horsemen of Kansas City, a letter urging the establishment of a speedway. In this letter he states:

> "With Mr. Beardsley elected Mayor we will have no speedway, AND I CAN SAY TO YOU, with "Mr. Crittenden as Mayor we will have a speedway. It behooves the advocates of the speedway "to get busy and see that their man working for them is registered and votes on election day."

This means that Mr. Crittenden has promised Mr. Train that if he is elected Mayor, he will establish a speedway, or see that the same is done. The speedway advocated by Mr. Train and his associates involved the question of locating the same in a neighborhood (Gillham Road) over the protest of the property owners of that district. We herewith send you a printed copy of the protest with a list of the signers thereto. No opposition has been or is now made to a speedway in a neighborhood where the property owners do not object thereto.

Where the speedway promised by Mr. Crittenden is to be established is not disclosed. The one advocated by Mr. Train is on either Park or Boulevard property. It may be in front of your home. If you do not desire this speedway, with its danger to children, and the conditions surrounding fast driving and horse racing, placed in front of your home, or in front of some other person's home who has like objection, it behooves you to know these facts and to vote accordingly on April 7th.

Yours Truly,

Clyde Taylor

Chairman Republican City Committee

THE RIGHT OF REMONSTRANCE

To the Honorable Board of Park Commissioners:

We, the undersigned citizens and property owners in the Westport and South park districts, most earnestly protest against the making of a contract with private persons or otherwise providing for the construction of a speedway in Gillham Road. This is contrary to the purpose for which Gillham Road was condemned as a public parkway, for which the property owners were taxed. We believe a speedway as proposed in that part of Gillham Road south of Forty-first street will practically amount to a race course and exclude the general public from the use of a part of the parkway.

To the Honorable Members of the Kansas City Park Board:

We, the undersigned, represent and show that we are residents and property owners in the vicinity of, and adjacent to, Gillham road, from Forty-third street to Forty-sixth street. We are informed through the public press that it is proposed to devote Gillham road between the streets above mentioned to the use of a driveway or speedway. We became property owners and residents in the vicinity of that part of Gillham road, believing it was acquired for the purpose of a parkway, and would be continuously used for that and no other purpose.

The property which we own has suffered the burden of establishing this parkway, and will be subject to its maintenance. The use of Gillham road for a speedway will, as we assuredly believe, make that part of Gillham road very undesirable, unsafe and annoying, and will seriously affect the value and desirability of our property for the purposes for which it was purchased and improved. No one of the undersigned would have located in that vicinity or purchased or improved property, had it been understood that such action would be taken on the part of the park board or any public authority having control.

We therefore ask that the park board will revoke any action which may have been taken toward the devotion of any of that part of Gillham road to a speedway, and that any application for the use thereof for any such purpose be denied and refused.

We also respectfully ask and petition that upon any application made for an order to divert Gillham road from the uses for which it was obtained and made be set down for proper hearing, and that property owners and residents interested be enabled to be present and be heard.

All of which is respectfully submitted, believing that the honorable park board, when the true conditions are understood, will not take the step which has been announced and stated in the public press, to the effect that Gillham road is to be devoted to a speedway in the interest of a few individuals desiring to use the same for speed purposes. ## THE ROCKHILL REALTY AND IMPROVEMENT COMPANY

To the Honorable Board of Park Commissioners, Kansas City, Mo.:

January 13, 1908.

Gentlemen: I desire to protest most emphatically against the building of the proposed track for fast horses, or speedway, in Robert Gillham parkway.

I am the owner of a large amount of property near the part of Gillham road chosen for this speedway. All the frontage adjoining it on the south is owned by me. It is my firm opinion that not only would the adjoining property be damaged beyond repair, but that the value for residence purposes of every foot of property in the district would be seriously impaired by the building of a track or road where crowds may, and doubtless will, assemble to witness contests of speed between fast horses. I fail to see how the creation of such a place would have other than a detrimental effect on a neighborhood of homes.

Personally, and through the Rockhill Realty and Improvement company, I have been engaged for many years in building up in this section a resident district second to none in Kansas City. A large amount of money has in this time, month by month, been expended for labor in the prosecution of this purpose. Property owned by me was taxed $11,921 to pay for the land condemned for Robert Gillham parkway. This parkway was a valley inaccessible to my property and Robert Gillham parkway was without an outlet to the south. After paying the park tax, I gave to the Park Board the sum of $12,000 to build a public roadway to afford an outlet south. This Board will recall that at the time the route of this road was changed, there was a suspicion that the change was suggested to accommodate a speedway later on, and that I was assured in the most positive way by members of this Board and by its engineer, Mr. Kessler, that no such project was under consideration. If the property owners taxed for Gillham parkway had known, when the parkway was projected, that the Park Board had in mind a plan to build a speedway where fast horses may be raced regardless of speed limitations; if there had been an intimation of a purpose to utilize ground paid for by all the property owners of the park district for what is substantially a substitute for a private driving club, for the enjoyment of the few, not of the many—they certainly would not have consented to the improvement without a resort to the courts, and I certainly would not have given $12,000 for the south outlet.

Furthermore, I am now building at private expense a roadway skirting the hillside on the south and extending from Gillham parkway to Charlotte street, which I purpose making a most attractive drive. This purpose will be defeated if the speedway plan is carried out.

I do not believe it just or fair to devote, at this late date, property, paid for by the people of the park district, to a purpose so detrimental to property values as a speedway.

The statement has been published that the Park Board contemplates the acceptance of a contribution of $2,500 from interested owners of fast horses for the purpose of aiding in construction of the speeedway. If the determination of this project is to become a matter of bidding, I can well afford to give $2,500 to the Park Board, to be used for such purposes for the enjoyment of all of the people as the Park Board may decide, on the sole condition that this speedway be not built. Verytruly yours, (Signed) W. R. Nelson.

We, the undersigned citizens and property owners in the Westport and South park districts, most earnestly protest against the making of a contract with private persons or otherwise providing for the construction of a speedway in Gillham Road. This is contrary to the purpose for which Robert Gillham Road was condemned as a public parkway, for which the property owners were taxed. To the Honorable Board of Park Commissioners:

Gentlemen:—We, the undersigned citizens and property owners in the district traversed by Gillham road south of Fortieth street, earnestly protest against any plan to convert any part of this fine parkway into a speedway as proposed between Forty-first and Forty-second streets. We believe it will practically make of that part of Gillham road a race track, with the attendant annoyances of dust and danger to persons who would desire to use the thoroughfare for driving pleasure.

The parks and boulevards are for the benefit of the whole people. To divert any part of Gillham road to the exclusive use of a few will be unjust to the owners of the property taxed to pay for it.

Board of Park Commissioners, City Hall, City.

Dear Sirs:—I desire to add my protest to that made by other property owners against the granting of the privileges of a speedway on Gillham road between Forty-third and Forty-sixth streets.

I do not think the proposition for this enterprise should be entertained by you for a minute. My home is at 4332 Campbell, and I should feel, if such a driveway as proposed is established there, it would injure me very much.

The installation of Electric park was a hard enough blow to property owners in Sunny Slope addition, without having this added to the burden.

Yours very respectfully,

(Signed) W. E. Bomgardner.

MARKETS & MONEY

LAST WEEK'S TRADE IN GRAIN

DIMINISHING SPECULATIVE INTEREST IN THE WHEAT MARKET.

Daily Fluctuations in Prices Are Narrow—Dry Weather in Kansas and Nebraska Is a Sustaining Influence—High Corn Prices Are Maintained.

Contending forces in the speculative wheat market were pretty evenly balanced last week. There was just enough uncertainty concerning the outcome of the new crop in the western part of the winter wheat belt to offset the effects of a slow domestic demand for cash wheat and indifferent markets abroad, due to the continued outpouring of wheat from Argentina. The demand for spot wheat was less urgent, perhaps, than at any time previously this year and for that reason there was greater pressure to sell May wheat in all markets, while the deferred futures were relatively stronger, owing to the reports of deficient moisture in Western Kansas and Nebraska.

Early in the week there were declines of a little more than 2c in the May wheat price and of 1½c in the July price in both the Chicago and Kansas City markets. This was due to reported general rains in the hard winter wheat territory, but when it suddenly turned cold, with little rain in Kansas west or north of Wichita and not any of consequence in Nebraska, and the temperature dropped to 12 to 24 degrees over nearly the entire territory, all of the loss in the July delivery and most of it in the May was regained. There was another setback Friday, following a forecast for showers in Kansas and Nebraska, and although the expected rain did not come, the fear of it over Sunday kept prices within a narrow range yesterday and the closing quotations were ⅝c to 1¼c lower than a week ago.

SMALL MARCH RAINFALL.

The records of the weather department in Kansas City show that last month was the dryest March in the last twenty years. The records at Lawrence, Kas., show that only two times in the last forty-one years has the rainfall for March been less than it was last month. Each of the above records show only .86 of an inch of rain during the month and no snow.

Many letters and telegrams were received from Kansas and Nebraska that rain was badly needed and in some instances that the wind was blowing the dirt away from the roots of the wheat, and that it was turning yellow in spots, but the professional traders refused to enthuse on the buying side, evidently preferring to follow the reports of the experts sent out from Chicago. These, together with the line house companies, nearly all report the outlook as very promising up to the present time and no injury to the plant from drought or other causes so far.

While moisture is needed west of the Missouri river, there has been an abundance of rainfall everywhere east of here, and parts of the Ohio valley are getting too much rain. Speculation has narrowed until the daily fluctuations are insignificant. Some new development is necessary to stimulate an interest in the market. Another week of dry weather west of the Missouri river is likely to start a buying movement, and, on the other hand, relief from the dry weather will start the market down again.

The government crop report, due Wednesday, probably will show about the highest April winter wheat condition on record, with two or three exceptions. That, of course, will be a depressing factor. But after that is out of the way, professional traders who have faith in wheat values—and there are some who still believe that the effect of last year's crop deficiency has not been exhausted—will be more inclined to pay attention to the dry weather west of the Missouri river.

WHEAT RECEIPTS HALF LAST YEAR'S.

The movement of wheat from the country to market centers last week was slightly less than in the preceding week, and was only a little more than one-half as large as in the corresponding week last year. The greatest falling off was in the spring wheat territory. Minneapolis and Duluth received only 1,516 cars, compared with 1,605 cars in the week before and 3,025 cars a year ago. In Kansas City there were 239 cars, against 265 cars in the previous week and 550 cars a year ago, while at Chicago and St. Louis the receipts were somewhat smaller than in the preceding week and slightly larger than a year ago. The visible supply comparison to-morrow promises to be favorable for higher prices. A year ago there was an increase of nearly 2½ million bushels, while to-morrow's statement will likely show a decrease of ½ million bushels or more. This would reduce the total to 37½ million bushels, compared with 49¾ million bushels a year ago. The increase at Minneapolis and Duluth last week was nearly a million bushels less than the increase a year ago. Kansas City stocks show a decrease of about 100,000 bushels, reducing the total to 1½ million, and St. Louis has less than ¾ million bushels of wheat in store. A year ago the stocks were 3,669,000 bushels in Kansas City and 2,084,000 bushels in St. Louis. Chicago's stocks (public and private) are now 8 million bushels, compared with 14½ million bushels a year ago.

NORMAL WORLD'S SHIPMENTS.

Bradstreet's reported the exports of wheat and flour from the United States and Canada last week as equal to 2,911,000 bushels, which is larger than was generally expected, in view of the fact that there has been practically no new export business reported for several months past. The week's world's shipments will be about the same as those of a year ago, 9,824,000 bushels. Argentina again sent out over 6 million bushels, 2½ million more than for the corresponding week in 1907. From all other sources, however, the shipments were exceedingly small: India, none; Australia, 48,000 bushels; Russia and the Danubian ports, probably about ½ million bushels together.

The closing quotations for wheat in Liverpool yesterday were practically the same as a year ago, equal to $1.01¾ for the May delivery and $1.03½ for July. The margin of 9c and 15⅛c between these and Chicago prices for the same deliveries is the widest that has existed for several months past, and the new crop futures are not far from a "working" basis.

Reports regarding the condition of the growing crops in foreign countries have been generally favorable so far, though a cable from Russia yesterday said the weather has become unfavorable and the outlook less promising.

CORN PRICES STAY UP.

Except on Monday and yesterday, when the bull leaders in Chicago stirred the market out of its lethargic condition during a part of each session, speculative corn prices remained within narrow limits all last week and trade was lighter than at any time previously on the crop. May corn in Chicago sold at 65⅛c and at 66¾c Monday, and this was also the range for the week. The close yesterday was at 66½@66⅝c compared with 65¼c a week ago. There was even less fluctuation in Kansas City prices, with a net gain of 1c for the week.

Receipts of corn at primary markets were moderate, nearly the same at Chicago and St. Louis as in the week before and about the same as a year ago, but at Kansas City there were only 146 cars, against 287 cars in the preceding week and 518 cars a year ago. A light movement from now on until farmers finish their spring work is expected. The domestic demand for cash corn is limited and the export demand is almost nothing at all. Foreign markets are out of line and for the next few months Argentina will probably supply the bulk of the demand abroad for corn as that country is now doing for wheat.

There is no more corn coming to central markets than is necessary to supply current demands, and until there is an increase in supplies, no decline in prices is to be expected, though there is a rather large long interest in the Chicago market to be liquidated.

Everything indicates that a largely increased area of corn will be planted this year.

The range of prices for the active grain futures last week and the close Saturday, with comparisons, are here shown:

LOCAL SECURITIES.

Active Trade in Bank of Commerce Stock at Advancing Prices.

An active demand for National Bank of Commerce stock carried the price up to $126 a share last week. The new stock sold prior to the reopening of the bank last Monday brought $110 a share and that price represents approximately the book value. The demand for the stock was stimulated by the promising conditions under which the bank has resumed business. Instead of losing by withdrawals it has steadily gained deposits since the opening. The expectation that large amounts of the stock would be offered for sale have not been realized. There continues to be an active demand for Commerce Trust company stock and it sold above par. There are some inquiries for Pioneer Trust company stock.

Some brokers reported sales of cement stocks and of Kansas Natural Gas stock at about the prices previously prevailing. Inquiries are numerous for Central Coal and Coke stock. Buyers want to get it cheaper, owing to the threatened coal miners' strike, but holders are not disposed to cut the price.

There is demand for fairly large blocks of Kansas City Railway and Light common stock at 40 bid and for the preferred at 72 bid.

Demand for high grade bonds continues to improve as the money market grows easier.

FEWER IDLE FREIGHT CARS.

The Number on March 18 Was 45,000 Less Than Six Weeks Ago.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The number of idle freight cars was 17,920 less on March 18 than on March 4, and 45,175 less than on February 4, according to the report of the American Railway association. The idle cars March 18 numbered 297,042, or 13 per cent less than six weeks ago.

SMALL AVERAGE DECLINES IN WALL STREET PRICES LAST WEEK.

Visions of an Erie Receivership Had a Depressing Influence—Railroads Reducing Operating Expenses—Lower Rates for Commercial Loans.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The upward movement of prices in the stock market was halted this week by uncertainties respecting Erie financing, and fear of another railroad receivership was an unsettling influence, though the average level of prices at the close to-day was less than two points below the average of a week ago. There was a decided falling off in the volume of trade. The market seemed to have assumed a waiting attitude, rather than to have developed a marked reactionary tendency.

The uncertainty respecting Erie's finances caused a drop of 2⅜ in Erie common stock and 6 in the first preferred, while the notes due April 8 sold at the low price of 86, which showed plainly that some holders were afraid they would not get their money. A sharp recovery in the securities to-day seemed to indicate that some plan for taking care of the road's maturing obligations has been arranged. There are 5½ millions of notes due April 8, of which E. H. Harriman holds 2 millions and the Wells-Fargo Express company 3 millions. The question has arisen as to whether there is some disagreement among the interests involved, with a chance that Harriman will be able to add Erie to the growing list of the properties that he controls.

ROCK ISLAND'S SMALL NET EARNINGS.

The shaky situation of Erie had a disturbing influence on other low priced stocks, especially Southern Railway and Rock Island, both of which are supposed to have financing difficulties confronting them. The Rock Island report for February showed a decrease of $362,126 in gross earnings, and an increase of $171,107 in expenses and taxes, making a decrease of $533,233, or 44 per cent in net earnings. The February net earnings were only 16 per cent of the gross earnings, a dangerously narrow margin.

The Frisco road made a much better showing, with a shrinkage of 18 per cent in net earnings, and an operating cost, including taxes, of 70 per cent of the gross.

The belief prevailed at the close of the market to-day that a receivership for Erie would be avoided, and that the other roads with a narrow margin of net earnings would be able to pull through.

REDUCING OPERATING EXPENSES.

The Pennsylvania railroad's February report showed a shrinkage of $1,637,000, or 14 per cent in gross earnings, but almost a proportionate cut in operating expenses was made, so that net earnings decreased only $339,400, or 17 per cent. The Chicago & Alton showed a greater reduction in operating expenses than in gross income, so that with a loss of $99,000 in receipts there was a gain of $35,000 in net receipts. The railroads are gradually accomplishing the readjustment of expenses to diminished business, thus maintaining a hopeful outlook for their security holders.

The Atchison company this week reduced its semi-annual dividend from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent. The 3 per cent semi-annual dividend was first paid in June, 1907. Since last fall it has been a foregone conclusion that the dividend would be reduced, and it had no effect on the price of the stock, though it was an added depressing influence in the general situation.

MARKET SHOWS RESISTING POWER.

Considering the week's developments, actual, impending and rumored, the setback in the market has been much less than was to be expected and the stability of prices, under the circumstances, had a reassuring effect on those who believe that the course of the market will be toward improvement in the coming months.

A gradual improvement in the business situation is reflected by the reports from merchants and manufacturers, though the gains are coming slowly.

MONEY GOES ON ACCUMULATING.

The tendency in the money market is bearing out general expectations. Accumulation of reserves continues. The New York banks gained 7 millions in cash this week and the surplus reserve is now above 40 million dollars. A more liberal loaning policy is evident from the fact that loans increased nearly 16 millions this week. The rates for collateral loans, 3 to 4 per cent, are so much below those for commercial paper that the latter have been reduced to 4½ and 5 per cent, compared with 5½ to 6 per cent a week ago.

In Europe the easier drift of the money market has been checked by the announcement of a German loan of 162½ million dollars, bearing 4 per cent, at about 99½, which probably will prevent a London bank rate below 3 per cent for some time to come, though predictions have been made that the Bank of England would reduce its rate to 2½ per cent in the near future. But there seems to be nothing in sight to materially advance foreign rates of discount.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

Most of the Wheat Area in Kansas and Nebraska Needs Rain.

Fairly good rains fell last week in Southern and Eastern Kansas, and light showers in Central Kansas and Eastern Nebraska, but the greater part of the winter wheat area in these two states has had no rain of any consequence for six weeks. In some fields wheat is beginning to show the effects of dry weather, but it is not thought that any material impairment of the plant has occurred and good rains within the next week or two would save the crop from any important damage.

Reports of light rain falling at Hutchinson, Kas., were received last night.

East of the Missouri river moderate rains were general last week and there is abundant moisture. The condition of the wheat plant is generally promising.

The April government crop report will be issued Wednesday, April 8, at 10 a. m., Kansas City time, two days earlier than usual. It is expected to show a winter wheat condition of about 93, which compares with 91.1 last December, 89.9 in April, 1907, and a ten-year April average of 86.

The area sown in winter wheat last fall, as estimated by the Agricultural department, was 31,068,513 acres, about ½ million acres less than the area sown for the preceding crop, and 2,937,000 acres more than the area harvested last year. The government's estimate of the area sown in Kansas last fall was 5,930,000 acres; in Nebraska, 2,359,000 acres; in Oklahoma, 1,378,800 acres. The Kansas area, as estimated by Secretary Coburn, probably will be about 7 million acres.

During part of last week the weather in the Northwest was favorable for seeding in some localities, but in the Red river valley 4 to 6 inches of snow fell during the week. Sowing spring wheat has begun earlier than usual, with favorable soil conditions.

MONEY IN CIRCULATION.

A Small Decrease in March, but 321 Millions Over a Year Ago.

The amount of money in use outside of the United States treasury on April 1 was 12 million dollars less than on March 1, and 321 millions more than a year ago, according to the circulation statement of the Treasury department. The amount held in the treasury as assets of the government increased 20½ millions, and the total stock of money in and out of the treasury increased 8½ millions during the month. There was a deficit of 8½ millions in the government revenues in March. The increase of 20½ millions in treasury holdings of cash, despite the deficit of 8½ millions in revenues, shows that 29 millions of government deposits in national banks were returned to the treasury during the month. There was an increase of 6¾ millions in the country's total supply of gold money, an increase of 1 million in subsidiary silver, and an increase of ¾ million in national bank notes.

The amount of money in use, outside of the treasury, on April 1, 1908 and 1907 is here shown:

| | April 1, 1908. | April 1, 1907. |

*A reduction of 135 millions in the estimated amount of gold in circulation was made last August, to allow for duplications and errors in the figures, so that the present circulation of gold and gold certificates is 273 millions larger than a year ago, instead of 138 millions larger, as implied by the above comparative figures.

Successful Women Drivers of the Coast.

From the Los Angeles Examiner.

That automoiling is gaining a strong foothold with the weaker sex is manifest by the number of women who skilfully drive their own cars without the aid of "mere man." Not contented with simple road running, some women have piloted cars in racing and with considerable skill.

One of the first and most successful women drivers on the coast is Miss Minnie Roberts, who appears at the wheel in company with Mrs. H. D. Ryus, the latter also being a skilled driver. Miss Roberts has made several trips over the state, having driven her car almost incessantly for the past three years.

Recently Miss Roberts had her White touring car built over into a gentleman's modern roadster. When the car was ready for the road she drove it from here to Madera, a distance of 310 miles over the steepest grade in America and one of the highest passes in the West. In this run there are upwards of a dozen summits to climb, all over 2,000 feet high. But the young woman was not daunted and made the trip in two days, enjoying the experience of meeting a cloud burst in Tejon pass.

Among the drivers of Los Angeles and its vicinity is one who is very seldom spoken of, but if reports are true, she can accomplish nearly anything that any one can, and this little lady is Miss McNair of 1411 South Hoover street, and the trips she has been taking of late has caused old drivers to sit up and take notice.

A little over a week ago Miss McNair with a party of lady friends decided on a trip up around the kite and no sooner said than done, as with a little 30-horse power Pierce Great Arrow she thinks nothing of 100 or 200 miles for a trip, and so of course the trip was made.

Tobacco Beds in City Back Yards.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

A number of large land owners, whose homes are in this city, have planted tobacco beds in the gardens and back yards of their residences in this city and will therefore be ready to plant tobacco when the time comes if the state can give them the protection.

For obvious reasons the persons who are said to have planted such tobacco beds are anxious that their action shall be kept secret, and, it is understood, have enjoined upon their friends and other visitors to their houses not to speak of what they have done, as even with the protection of the police force of a large city their premises might not be safe from depredations, and the stock and buildings on their farms in the county would be open to attack from night riders. Notwithstanding these precautions it is strongly believed here that such beds have been planted in the city and that the clouds of smoke which have hung over the back premises of a number of city residences have come from burning brush over tobacco beds and not from the ordinary preparations for planting a garden.

On account of cutting out the tobacco crop a large crop of hemp will probably be raised in the blue grass region this year, although on account of the scarcity of good seed the crop of hemp will not be so large as it would if the seed was more plentiful.

Arles to Celebrate Two Poets.

From the London Globe.

The city of Arles, in Provence, intends to hold a fete during the ensuing spring in honor of the immortal Homer. The raison d'etre of the celebration is at first hard to see, for Arles does not happen to be one of the seven cities which claim to be the birthplace of the great poet. But Arles is proud of possessing a native "poet and peasant," M. Charloun by name, who has devoted the spare moments of a lifetime to translating the Odyssey into the dialect of Provence, and whose patriarchal appearance reminds one, says a French contemporary, of Homer himself as he is supposed to have been.

New Enemy Appears in Mississippi.

From the Meridian Star.

We are facing here the sale of a villainous compound known as "Jake," composed of one part alcohol, one part extract of ginger and two parts hell. It does not create a whisky diseased habit, but follows as the natural consequence of first creating a whisky thirst. It differs from cocaine in that it more frequently kills the user of it. Cocaine is as liable to kill a man who knows nothing of its effect. "Jake" deserves the serious consideration of the Meridian police department.

SAW BULL RUN'S BATTLES

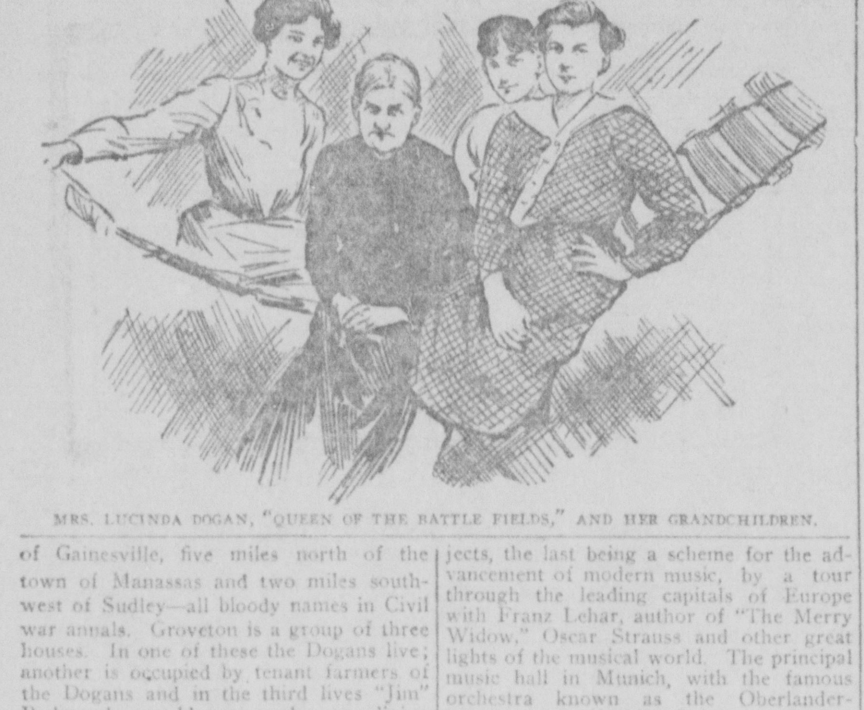
FROM A HILLTOP LUCINDA DOGAN WATCHED A BLOODY STRUGGLE.

Because She Carried Water to Wounded Soldiers After the Fighting Had Ceased She was Called "Queen of the Battlefields."

Mrs. Lucinda Dogan, 90 years old, called in the northern part of Virginia 'Queen of the Battle Fields," is still living at Groveton, a little hamlet one mile west of and overlooking the field of the first battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861. Her home was the central point in the second battle of Bull Run, August 29 and 30, 1862.

This old woman saw both battles of Bull Run and looked upon the fields in all their horror when the firing had ceased. With her children she walked among the dead and wounded carrying buckets of water and gourd dippers, giving drink to the moaning soldiers of both sides.

Groveton is a hamlet of tragic memories. It is on the Warrenton pike, five miles west of Centerville, three miles east of Gainesville, five miles north of the town of Manassas and two miles southwest of Sudley—all bloody names in Civil war annals. Groveton is a group of three houses. In one of these the Dogans live; another is occupied by tenant farmers of the Dogans and in the third lives "Jim" Redmond, an old negro who was living there at the time of the fighting, saw the same scenes Mrs. Dogan looked upon and worked with the burial parties in digging the long trenches in which the Confederate dead were laid.



MRS. LUCINDA DOGAN, "QUEEN OF THE BATTLE FIELDS," AND HER GRANDCHILDREN.

Groveton is on high ground and a hundred yards east of the group of houses is a hill that commands a fine view to the east. It was from this hill that Mrs. Dogan saw the fighting on July 21, 1861. Telling of the events of that day, she says:

"The Yankees were all around Centerville and our boys were lying along Bull Run. Some of our troops kept coming through Gainesville from the Valley of Virginia. Early Sunday morning we heard shooting down the pike toward the stone bridge, and my husband called out that the Yanks were coming. We went up on the hill yonder, and a lot of the neighbors came up, too. We could see smoke rising above the trees about the stone bridge. Off towards Sudley we coluld see clouds of dust. After the shooting had been going on for half an hour we could see crowds of men running back from the stone bridge to the Sudley road and then going on towards Sudley. Southern troops were coming up from towards Manassas marching across the Henry fields, then over Buck hill and onto Sudley. Not long after this the shooting began between the pike and Sudley. We could hear the sharp cracking of the muskets and the loud reports of the cannons and could hear the men shouting. Not long after the men that had gone north towards Sudley came running back through the woods and across the fields, stopping now and then to shoot. Not far behind them came crowds of other men running and shooting. More Confederates were coming from the direction of Manassas and were forming on Buck Hill and the Matthews farm. After fighting there for some time our boys ran back over the Henry place and the Yanks after them. More men kept on coming up from Manassas. Then the Yanks went up Henry hill. The shooting had got so fast now that we couldn't hear any single musket, and the firing of cannon was so fast that you sometimes couldn't pick out a single shot. The country down there was now so covered with dust and smoke that we couldn't see the men and you couldn't distinguish the shooting from the shouting. About four o'clock in the afternoon the noise was at its loudest and we could see small bodies of men going back across the Matthews place and on towards Sudley. Then more and more went back that way, and finally the fields over there got so full of men that we couldn't see them for the dust they made. The shooting quieted down so that we could hear single shots, and the dust in the Henry field got thinner and higher. We knew that the Yanks were running back to where they came from.

"About 6 o'clock that evening my husbany and I drove over to the Henry place. The Henry house was nothing but smoking ashes. My old friend, Mrs. Judith Henry, who was sick in bed when the fighting began, had been killed that morning by a shell which burst in her bedroom. All the trees about the place had been shot down so that only the stumps were standing. Parties of Confederates were picking up bodies and burying them. We saw a great many wounded men, and nearly all of them were begging for water. The field was just littered with muskets, coats, caps, knapsacks, belts and such like."

Mrs. Dogan, after clearing up the breakfast dishes on August 29, 1862, was told by a staff officer of "Stonewall" Jackson to move off her farm, as there would be fighting there that day. There had been heavy fighting the day before around Gainesville, three miles west, along the pike. Mrs. Dogan and her children had not reached the home of her father, two and a half miles away, when a Union battery and supports took station near the Dogan house and opened on Jackson's line along the abandoned railroad cut that ran through the back part of the Dogan farm. All day of the 29th and the next day fighting around Groveton was fierce and bloody. The railroad cut, where the losses were heaviest, was a thousand yards in the rear of the Dogan house. Pope withdrew on the night of August 30, and the next morning Mrs. Dogan and her children returned to the farm. Of this the old woman said:

"Funeral parties of both armies were burying the dead. When the children and I got back to what had been home, large parties of men were going about gathering up the wounded and putting them in rows in our yard or wherever there was shade. There were hundreds everywhere about the fields, the thickets and along the fence lines. The children and I took buckets of water and went out in the field and did what we could for the poor fellows. Most of the wounded in this field were Yanks, but that didn't make any difference after they were hurt. All of our bed sheeting and table linen went for bandages."

GREW RICH FROM BLACKMAIL.

A German Barber Had Plans for the Advancement of Music.

One of the most astounding blackmailing cases ever brought before a European tribunal has just been disposed of in the criminal court in Munich. The victim, a wealthy German aristocrat and lawyer, parted with $150,000 or more, before he finally screwed up his courage and went to the police. His persecutors, a one-time barber and his wife, who had been living like princes on their ill gotten gains have been sentenced to five years' hard labor.

The most prominent character of the story was August Woelfl, who, beginning life as a working barber, developed into one of the gayest members of the world of pleasure in the Bavarian capital. He opened a number of barber shops, then went into the amusement business, bought up cafes and tea rooms and concert halls, meanwhile spending money like water. He launched into all kinds of ambitious projects, the last being a scheme for the advancement of modern music, by a tour through the leading capitals of Europe with Franz Lehar, author of "The Merry Widow," Oscar Strauss and other great lights of the musical world. The principal music hall in Munich, with the famous orchestra known as the Oberlanderkapelle, was Woelfl's latest acquisition. He was one of the best dressed men in the city, owned motor cars and horses and gave gorgeous champagne entertainments. But finally the crash came.

Recklessly driving a big motor car through Augsburg, Woelfl ran into a street railway car and as a result of the smash was arrested and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. Before it was over the police found he was wanted for a much more serious affair, which went back some fifteen years.

There lived in Munich at that time a young and wealthy lawyer, belonging to one of the most aristocratic families in the city, August Buerkl, who had formed an indiscreet acquaintance. This was well known to Woelfl. After some years the barber began a steady course of blackmailing the unfortunate Buerkl, which continued until a few weeks ago. At first his demands were small, a couple of dollars or so, going up to forty dollars. Then they began to increase rapidly until they mounted up into the thousands.

Buerkl, who seems to have been very much afraid of his family hearing of the affair, was an easy mark, and in the beginning parted with money without much protest. Woelfl finally reached a point where even his audacity wasn't great enough to support him in demanding more money for himself, and so he hit upon the idea of inventing other blackmailers. He told Buerkl that another man had suddenly appeared on the scene and had been to him to ask for hush money. The first of these imaginary persons was a "Karl Meier," for whom Woelfl procured nearly $3,000. Then came another, "Ludwig Steidl," and he had to be bought off. Next came a woman, "Marie Sarvi." "Marie" proved very expensive, the unhappy Buerkl putting up over $30,000 to get her off to America.

This always was part of Woelfl's little game to pretend that he was sending these other claimants out of the country. In fact, he made two trips to the United States himself at Buerkl's expense. "Ludwig Seidelmayer" and "Johann Grueber" were another two of the mysterious parties who had to be paid; the first cost Buerkl $17,000. Woelfl's wife, a young and attractive woman, backed up her husband's imposture and spent a not inconsiderable part of the spoil upon herself. The unfortunate Buerkl went on paying out money, to procure which he was gradually realizing all his property until he found himself poorer by more than $150,000. Then he thought it was time to stop before he was completely ruined and so he told the whole story to the police.

Before a court packed to the last seat, the trial lasted two days. Woelfl and his wife put up a bold front. The former insisted that the imaginary persons for whom he had received money actually existed and had duly received all the sums stated. Pressed for their present addresses he finally said that it was so long ago that he had entirely forgotten them.

The jury was not long in finding both prisoners guilty. Woelfl was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, a fine of $750 and ten years' loss of civil rights, and his wife received the same term and fine and five years' loss of civil rights. It is stated that shortly before the trial Woelfl attempted to commit suicide, but the prison wardens frustrated his efforts.

News in Turkey.

From the Westminster Gazette.

The Turkish papers have published their version of the tragic death of Dom Carlos of Portugal. In the Levant Herald we read that the king and the crown prince "died on their way back to the palace after an excursion." The Stamboul says: "Dom Carlos is dead. His son, Manuel, has succeeded in the throne. There is therefore no change in the destinies of the country." And this, of course, is in accordance with the traditions of the Ottoman press, which is never allowed by the censor to admit that any chief of any state or any member of any royal family has died a violent death. It stated that Alexander of Servia and Queen Draga "died of indigestion at the dead of night," that President Carnot succumbed to a "chill," and that the Empress Elizabeth of Austria "had a sudden attack of apoplexy on one of the steamboats on the Lake of Geneva."

A Natural Mistake.

From the Baltimore American.

"Do you know, I thought the numerous members of that hunting club whom I saw coming together were getting up a mass meeting."

"No, it wasn't a mass meeting; just a meet massing."

A CLERK WHO GIVES BOOKS TO SOUTHERN MOUNTAINEERS.

Charles Carroll Brooks Has Sent Thirteen Little Libraries to the People of Mountain Villages in the Appalachian System.

From the New York World.

Andrew Carnegie and Charles Carroll Brooks, rivals in building libraries, one with a fortune of more than 300 million dollars at his disposal, the other with a slender salary as a clerk in an insurance office. In cities all over the civilized world the steel king is building great palaces for the accommodation of millions of books. In tiny mountain hamlets, where half the adult population cannot read or write, the insurance clerk is establishing collections of fifty or a hundred volumes, most of them second hand, which are circulated among the mountain boys and girls and are inspiring them to higher ideals.

And Brooks has done more than send collections into these isolated villages. He has opened reading rooms in some of them, where old magazines and illustrated papers are spread upon rough wooden tables, lighted only by oil lamps. Here the mountain boys gather at night. If they cannot read they look at the pictures and these stimulate them to master the mysteries of the alphabet. How many boys and girls have learned to read just that they might enjoy the advantages of the "Very Small Library," as Mr. Brooks is pleased to call his collections, it is impossible to say, but there have been many of them.

BEGINNING "THE VERY SMALL LIBRARY."

To-day Mr. Brooks has established thirteen libraries in the mountain districts of the Eastern United States, stretching in a string from New York to the Carolinas and westward to Arkansas. In almost every library a reading room has been opened and the residents for miles around go to the general store or schoolhouse, where the library is, to get books and to look over the latest magazines and illustrated papers.

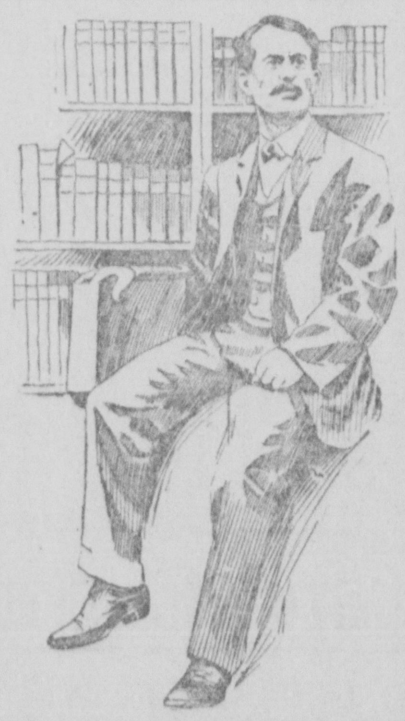
Mr. Brooks was born in the mountains of West Virginia fifty-two years ago. His boyhood was similar to that of thousands of other boys who belong to that strange part of the American people known as "the Southern mountaineer." Hemmed in in his mountain home he longed for knowledge of the outside world and he gained it through the few books which came his way and the occasional newspaper which drifted up into the mountain hamlet. He was a voracious reader and his education came from his reading for the mountains of West Virginia do not furnish advanced schools.

Fourteen years ago Mr. Brooks came to New York and was engaged as a clerk in the offices of Newman & McBain, insurance brokers, 54 Maiden lane. The whirr and hurry of the great city did not cause him to forget his mountain breeding or the hunger he used to feel for something to read. But several years elapsed before he worked out his plans for sending books into the mountains to break the monotony of life.

In 1905 he was spending his vacation at Silver Grove, near Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and talked the matter over with old "Uncle George" Staub, a typical mountaineer, who kept the general store at Silver Grove. "Uncle George" who kept his books with a lead pencil and knew nothing of Spencerian curves, was enthusiastic. He offered, if Mr. Brooks could get the books, to give a corner of his store for storing them and to act as librarian. That was the beginning of "The Very Small Library" which has spread down through the mountain chain.

BOOKS TO DELIGHT BOYS.

Upon his return home Mr. Brooks got busy. He called on his friends. They dug around in forgotten boxes and gathered up volumes of Oliver Optic, Horatio Alger, E. P. Roe, Harry Castlemon and other books they had read when they were boys. Mr. Brooks does not agree with the librarians of the big Carnegie libraries and the Boston book purveyors that these books are not of sufficiently high literary standard to find a place on library shelves. He remembered how his boyish heart had been fired over the adventures of "Frank in the Forecastle," "Through by Daylight," "Tattered Tom," and other heroes of a generation growing gray-haired now.



CHARLES CARROLL BROOKS AND ONE OF HIS LITTLE LIBRARIES.

He knew that "Paul and Virginia," and "Scottish Chiefs" had caused thrills and tears in the log cabin days in the Virginia mountains and that "The Opening of a Chestnut Burr" and "'From Jest to Earnest" had kept the feminine members of the family late out of bed on many occasions. Looking back over it all he did not believe any of them had been spoiled by reading of this caliber, despite the condemnation visited upon it by the library critics. He was glad to get these books. They were just what he wanted to start the mountain boys, get them interested and cause them to form the habit of reading. Once they had devoured these he knew they could readily be led on to something else, and he hoped and prayed the something else would come.

FROM 36 BOOKS TO 700.

The first library at Silver Grove was opened with thirty-six books on the shelves. With continuous additions it now has 700. This is for a population of 175. The reading room, opened in an abandoned log cabin, became an instant success. The mountain boys "chinked" the logs, put the old fireplace in good condition and they are liberal in their supply of kerosene oil for the lamps which light it at night. The winter evenings in Silver Grove are not so long as they used to be. More than that, every boy and young man in Silver Grove has learned to read and write. It is a disgrace now not to be able to patronize the free library.

"Uncle George" was a faithful librarian. He never failed to send a monthly report to Mr. Brooks. The old man took great pride in the growth of the library and his monthly reports, printed in large capital letters with a lead pencil, with his own original idea of spelling, gave minute information as to how the project was progressing.

The school teacher at Silver Grove was not possessed of that missionary spirit without which no teacher can be a success. She struck, declaring she could not eat the "grub" furnished in Silver Grove. "Uncle George" was in despair. For three months the school was closed. Then he printed a long letter to Mr. Brooks, explaining the situation and declaring the library never could be a success if the residents of Silver Grove did not learn to read.

Mr. Brooks was struck by the strength of the claim. He wrote to the state superintndent of schools of West Virginia. A new teacher was appointed and the Silver Grove people were so delighted that they raised $125 for repairs to the schoolhouse. The new teacher took a lively interest in the free library. The young men learned to read and there has never been any let up in interest in Silver Grove since.

Thirteen of these "Very Small Libraries" have been established by Mr. Brooks, as follows:

One at Ponca, Newton county, Arkansas, founded April 1, 1907, with thirty-six books; Gassville, Baxter county, Ark., fifty books; Lovel Green, Rockcastle county, Arkansas, thirty-six books; Annisville, Westchester county, New York, April 1, 1906, seventy books; Continentalville, Putman county, New York, August 16, 1906, fifty-three books; Metropolitan hospital, Blackwell's island, November 17, 1906, 166 books; Putnam Valley, Putnam county, New York, January 25, 1907, fifty-eight books; Pleasantside, Westchester county, New York, July 10, 1907, fifty books; Taft, Buncombe county, North Carolina, July 10, 1907, fifty-four books; Haw Creek, Buncombe county, North Carolina, forty books; Chatham Valley, Tioga county, Pennsylvania, September 10, 1907, forty-three books; Westfield, Tioga county, Pennsylvania, thirty-eight books; Silver Grove, Jefferson county, West Virginia, the original library, founded July 4, 1905, with thirty-eight books.

THE RAINBOW TROUT.

Specimens at the Aquarium That Were Hatched There Four Years Ago.

From the New York Sun.

Among the trout of various species at the New York aquarium there are a dozen or more rainbow trout that were the first of their kind hatched out in the aquarium's model hatchery four years ago. The largest of these rainbows is now about sixteen inches in length and would weigh about two pounds.

The eggs from which these fishes were hatched came from the United States fish hatcheries at Wytheville, Va., and the eggs from which the parent fishes were there hatched came from the United States fish hatcheries on the McCloud river, in Shasta county, Northern California, which is the native home of the rainbow trout, in the tributaries of the Sacramento.

By the distribution of eggs it has within the last thirty years been transplanted into various Eastern waters, so that it is now to be found on this as well as on the other side of the continent.

"Jim" Gray's on the New Job Now.

From the New York Morning Telegraph.

Of course there are those who refer to Mr. Gray as James Gray, but for twenty-six years he has been Jim Gray to the folk who regarded the Fifth Avenue hotel as an oasis wherein to rest and recover from the fatigue of travel along Broadway.

Jim Gray was the man in the white apron behind the bar. He began mixing things in the Fifth Avenue hotel bar in the days when Tom Collins was a fashionable drink. He has shaken ice and alcohol together into pleasing prescriptions for all the really great men of the country within the last quarter of a century and was regarded as one of the reasons for the existence of the Amen corner.

On Saturday last Jim Gray was told that the old hotel was coming down and that he would have to shake a leg.

"We close up here on the fourth of April," said the proprietor, "and you'd better look around for something to do."

It was hardly a case of "looking around." At least a dozen of the old-timers had pleaded with Jim Gray to go with them to their new homes and each had insisted that his favorite mixologist should be set in as chief ornament in the bar in the hotel selected as a successor to the Fifth Avenue.

Mr. Gray elected to go to the Hotel Albemarle. It saddened him to make the shift after twenty-six years of faithful service in the old dump, and it was with tears in his voice that he told the proprietor of the Fifth Avenue that he was scheduled to go on the bridge in the Albemarle on April 1.

"Well, what's the matter with your going now?" asked the proprietor of the Fifth Avenue, with a trace of sarcasm in his voice.

"Sure," said Mr. Gray.

Tuesday he collected his month's wages from the cashier. The proprietor had deducted three days' pay from the envelope.

"And after twenty-six years without a cash register," sighed Mr. Gray heavily. "I wish I had got wise to those guys twenty-six years ago."

Bryan's Eloquence.

From April Lippincott's.

Williams Jennings Bryan was addressing a political meeting in Iowa on one occasion when, it is said, he fairly carried away his audience by the power of his oratory. Among those most impressed by the Nebraskan's effort was a man known to be very deaf, but who nevertheless seemed to be listening with breathless aention to Bryan, and who apparently caught every word that fell from the speaker's lips.

Finally, when a particularly fervid passage had been delivered by the man from Neebraska, with the effect of eliciting a storm of applause from the audience, the deaf man, as if he could contain himself no longer, yelled in the ear of the man next to him:

"Who is that speakin'?"

"William Jennings Bryan!" shouted the man addressed.

"Who?" roared the deaf man, still louder.

"William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska!" came from the second man in a piercing shriek.

"Well, well!" exclaimed the deaf man, excitedly. "It don't make any difference, after all. I can't make out a word he or you are sayin'; but, good gracious, don't he do the motions splendid!"

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE OF ELECTION OF FREEHOLDERS.

OFFICE OF BOARD OF ELECTION COMMISSIONERS, Kansas City, Missouri, March 10, 1908.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in Kansas City, Missouri, by the qualified voters thereof, on Tuesday, the 7th day of April, 1908, for the purpose of electing a board of thirteen Freeholders to draft a charter for said city as provided by the Constitution of the State of Missouri. The ordinance providing for such election, the proclamation of the Mayor of said city for said election and the names of the thirteen Freeholders filed by said Mayor with the Clerk of said city to be voted upon at said election, are as follows, viz:

AN ORDINANCE

PROVIDING FOR A SPECIAL ELECTION TO ELECT A BOARD OF THIRTEEN FREEHOLDERS TO DRAFT A CHARTER AS PROVIDED BY THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI, AND APPROPRIATING TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS ($2,000.00) OUT OF THE EXPENSE DEPARTMENT TO DEFRAY THE EXPENSES THEREOF.

Whereas, It is deemed advisable for the City of Kansas City, Missouri, to frame a charter for its own government, as provided by the Constitution of the State of Missouri, and as provided by a certain act of the Legislature, entitled: "An act providing that any city having a population of more than one hundred thousand inhabitants may frame a charter for its own government, and regulating the same," approved March 10th, 1887. Therefore,

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COMMON COUNCIL OF KANSAS CITY:

Section 1—There shall, on Tuesday, the 7th day of April, 1908, be held in Kansas City, Missouri, a special election for the election of a Board of Thirteen Freeholders, each member of which board shall have been, for at least five (5) years, a qualified voter of Kansas City, Missouri, and which said board shall, within ninety (90) days after the election thereof, return to the Chief Magistrate of Kansas City, Missouri, a draft of a Charter for said city, which said draft shall be signed by the members of said board, or a majority of them.

Section 2—The Mayor shall issue his proclamation for said special election, fixing the date as herein provided. Said proclamation and the names of said Thirteen Freeholders, also a notice of said special election, shall be published for at least twenty (20) days in three (3) newspapers of the largest circulation in Kansas City, Missouri, one of which shall be a newspaper printed in the German language.

The City Clerk shall deliver a certified copy of this ordinance, a certified copy of the Mayor's proclamation and a certified copy of the names of the Thirteen Freeholders, to the Board of Election Commissioners of Kansas City, Missouri, and said Board of Election Commissioners shall cause the publication herein provided for to be made as herein provided, and shall fully give notice and conduct said election as required by the laws of the State and the charter and the ordinances of Kansas City, Missouri.

Said special election shall be held on the date hereinbefore fixed therefor, the returns thereof certified and canvassed and the result determined and certified to in conformity with the existing laws of the State of Missouri and ordinances of the city applicable to elections held in Kansas City, Missouri, under the supervision of the Board of Election Commissioners. Said Board of Election Commissioners shall deliver to the Mayor of the city a certified copy of the result of said election; which certificate and its recital shall be conclusive and binding upon the city.

The ballots to be used for the purpose of voting at said special election shall be prepared by the Board of Election Commissioners of Kansas City, Missouri, according to the State laws regulating such matters.

Section 3—There is hereby appropriated out of the expense department the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) to meet the expenses of said special election.

The City Auditor is directed to draw a warrant for said sum, payable to J. M. Lowe, U. S. Epperson and D. B. Holmes, the Election Commissioners of Kansas City, Missouri, who shall in turn disburse the same as may be necessary to defray the expenses of said election. The City Comptroller is hereby directed to countersign and the City Treasurer is directed to pay the same upon presentation.

Section 4—All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict with this ordinance are, insofar as they so conflict, hereby repealed.

I hereby certify that funds are in the City Treasury to the credit of the expense department heretofore unappropriated sufficient to meet the requirements of the foregoing ordinance.

GUS PEARSON, City Comptroller.

Passed November 18, 1907.

GEORGE HOFFMANN,
President Upper House of the Common Council.

Passed December 2, 1907.

D. B. SPALDING,
Speaker Lower House of the Common Council.

Approved December 3, 1907.

GEORGE HOFFMANN,
Acting Mayor.

NOTICE OF ELECTION—UPON THE question of increasing the rate of taxation for school purposes in the school district of Kansas City, Jackson county, Missouri:

Notice is hereby given that at the biennial election for school directors of the school district of Kansas City, Jackson county, Missouri, to be held on Tuesday, the seventh day of April, 1908, there will be submitted to the voters of said school district, who are tax payers of said school district, the question whether the annual rate of taxation for school purposes in said school district for each of the years 1908 and 1909, shall be increased, as proposed by the board of directors of said school district; that is to say, whether there shall be levied for school purposes in said school district for each of the ensuing two years, to be levied and collected at the same time as other school taxes for the years 1908 and 1909, a tax of twenty (20) cents on the one hundred dollars' valuation of all property subject to taxation, in addition to the sixty (60) cents on the one hundred dollars' valuation mentioned in section 11 of article 10 of the constitution of this state, as amended. The voters who are tax payers voting at said election shall vote by ballot; those voting in favor of such increase of the annual rate of taxation shall have written or printed on their tickets the words "For increase of annual rate of taxation for school purposes," and those voting against such increase, the words, "Against increase of annual rate of taxation for school purposes."

All qualified voters of said school district, who are tax payers thereof, who live within the territory adjoining the city of Kansas City, not included in the city limits of said city, may vote at such voting precinct in said city as they would be attached to if the precinct lines of said city were extended and produced through such adjoining territory.

This question is submitted and this notice is given in pursuance of a resolution of said board of directors of the school district of Kansas City, adopted on the fifth day of March, 1908.

JOSEPH L. NORMAN,
President of the Board of Directors of the School District of Kansas City, Jackson county, Missouri.

W. E. BENSON, Secretary.

WHERE The BIG FISH LEAP.

THE ST. FRANCIS RIVER, IN MISSOURI'S EARTHQUAKE DISTRICT, IS THE ANGLER'S HEAVEN.

> We may say of angling as Dr. Boteler said of strawberries: "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did;" and, so, if I might be judge, God never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling.—Ibid.

FISHING time is drawing near. The anglers are employing their spare time in overhauling their tackle and replenishing it in anticipation of the call of the lake and stream. Reels are to be taken apart and carefully cleaned and oiled; lines are to be tested to make certain they did not rot from being put away damp last season; lures must be sorted and the stock added to; the tackle merchant must be visited and his wares inspected—there might be any number of new and enticing baits which should by all means be added to the equipment of the modern angler. The joy of possessing a well fitted tackle box is excelled only by the rapture of the fishing itself. And there is, as a matter of course, a vast deal of discussion about the "best" fishing places.

A fishing place, growing in greater favor every year with Kansas City anglers is the St. Francis river in the "sunk lands" near the state line between Missouri and Arkansas. Away back in 1811 the St. Francis was like other Ozark mountain streams. It's clear, steel-blue waters were confined in rocky banks. On each side grew immense cypress and gum trees with an occasional stately elm.

Then came an earthquake. For about eighty miles the land on each side of the river, extending back from fifty yards to a mile or two from the water, dropped or sank many feet. The water spread over this sunken land, making what probably is the finest breeding place for game fish in this country. For eighty years the fish practically were undisturbed—in fact, it is only within the last ten years that any fishing to speak of has been done there, and only within the last three years has there been any considerable number of anglers from a distance visiting the St. Francis. Consequently the fish increased until the place became a veritable paradise for black bass, crappie, pike and other varieties.

One of the favorite fishing points on the river is at Bertig, a little station on the Arkansas side. The trip from Kansas City there is not unpleasant nor tedious. Leaving Kansas City on the Frisco at 6 o'clock at night the angler arrives at Jonesboro, Ark., at 6:30 the following morning, where a change is made to the Cotton Belt railway as far as Paragould, Ark., about thirty miles. There is met the Paragould & Southeastern "accommodation," consisting of a veteran coach, a few freight cars and engine No. 1. This constitutes the entire rolling stock of the road, which is thirty miles in length.

INTO A WATERY WILDERNESS.

It is eight miles from Paragould to Bertig, a lumber camp of a half dozen houses and a general store situated on a peninsula in proximity to the main channel of the river. After countless stops, not noticed because of the ever-changing view of the country through which the road runs, the train draws into a low lying region where the occasional houses are built on "stilts." In the woods, close to the track on either side, can be seen pools of water, becoming larger and more frequent as the train draws nearer the stream. Presently the track crawls out on a wooden trestle and it doesn't come to solid earth again for several miles. The water now is everywhere. One gets the impression that he is in the midst of an endless swamp. This impression is dissipated after a closer inspection of the water. It is observed that there is no stagnation. The water is clear, cold and steel-blue and it is moving. Several species of flags and clean, crisp moss grow in profusion in the water, impeding the free progress of a boat. But there are channels—runways, the natives call them—extending back into the woods in all directions. It is quite possible to row a boat into a jungle of big timber, fasten it to a giant gum or cypress tree and fish in the shade in fifteen feet of water.

The sportsman with red blood in his veins will feel a thrill of excitement as soon as he steps from the train and surveys the scene. He instinctively knows that in such water black bass are at home. There is a clubhouse on the Missouri side of the main channel. This house, like nearly all in the region, is built upon piling. It is the work of but a few minutes to get settled and the fishing tackle rigged. And now to fish!

WHEN THE FUN BEGINS.

There are plenty of boats and you pick out a wide, heavy old "tub," being "wise" to the caprices of the lighter craft. A dozen strokes of the paddle (one paddle is all that is ever used to propel a boat on the St. Francis) and you reach water that tempts you to stop. The boat is shoved over a point of moss, to anchor it, and a lively "shiner" is dropped over the side. Possibly there is a patch of white sand under the boat. If so, it is quite possible to observe every living thing that comes over the sand, even to a depth of twenty feet. The water is as clear as crystal. The minnow darts bravely about, gradually making his way downward. Suddenly a dark body shoots out of a clump of moss, and true as bullet it strikes the minnow. The line sings at is unwinds from the reel.

That is a bass!

Before you can recover the command of the reel there is twenty-five yards of line out. Then you begin to reel in, to find, probably, that the bass has entangled himself and the line in a ton, more or less, of river moss. You must be quicker to strike him next time. When, at length, you bring the fish to net, as like as not he will weigh three pounds or more. The St. Francis seems to contain millions of bass of about that weight. Bass weighing five and six pounds are caught every season, but such captures are rare.

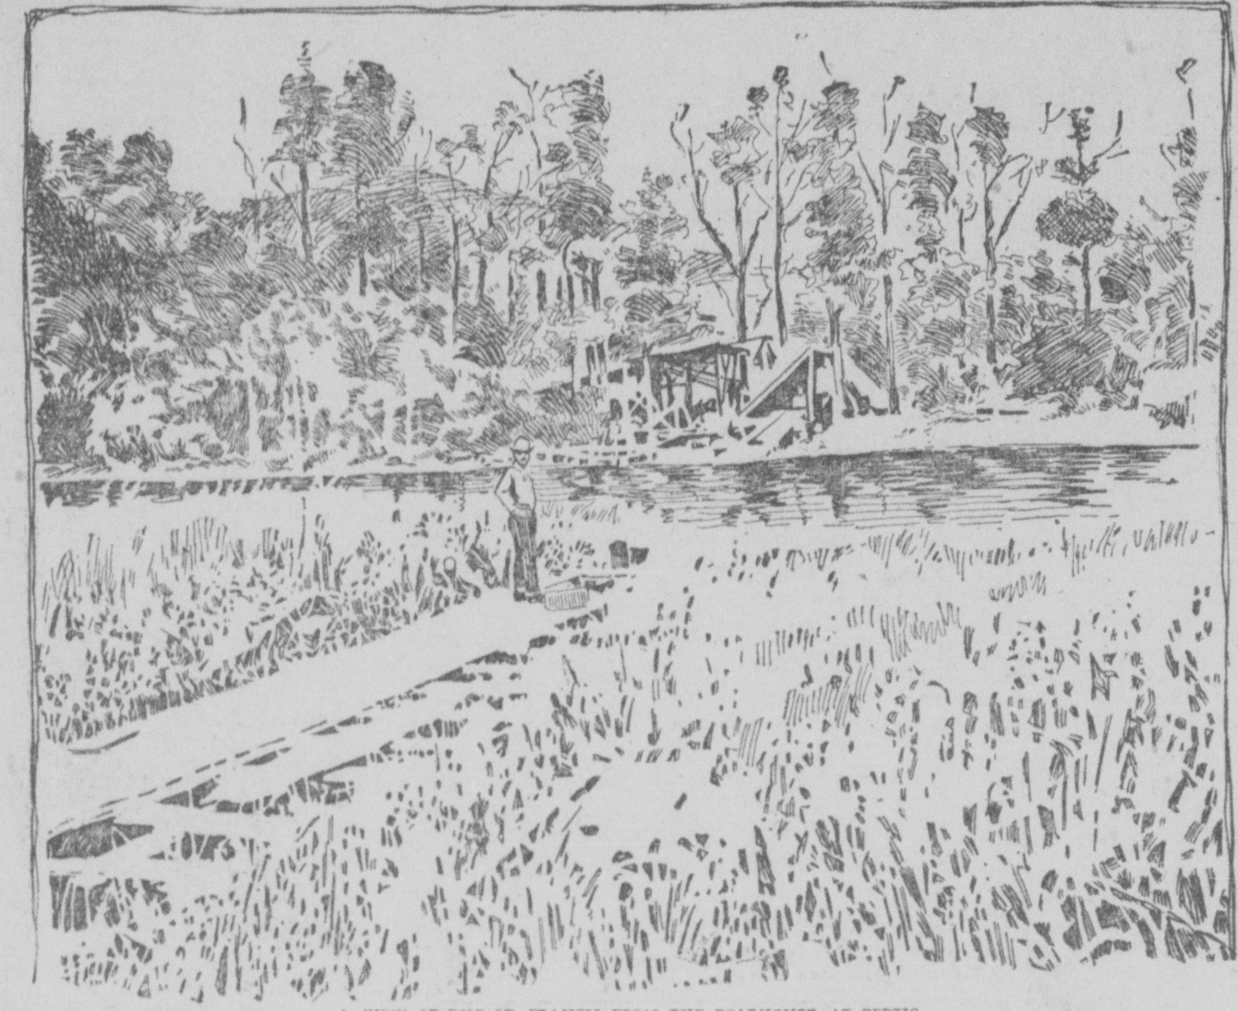
The St. Francis is an ideal stream in which to study the life and habits of fish. The clearness of the water enables one to see clearly to a depth of fifteen feet or more.

HOW THE NATIVES CATCH FISH.

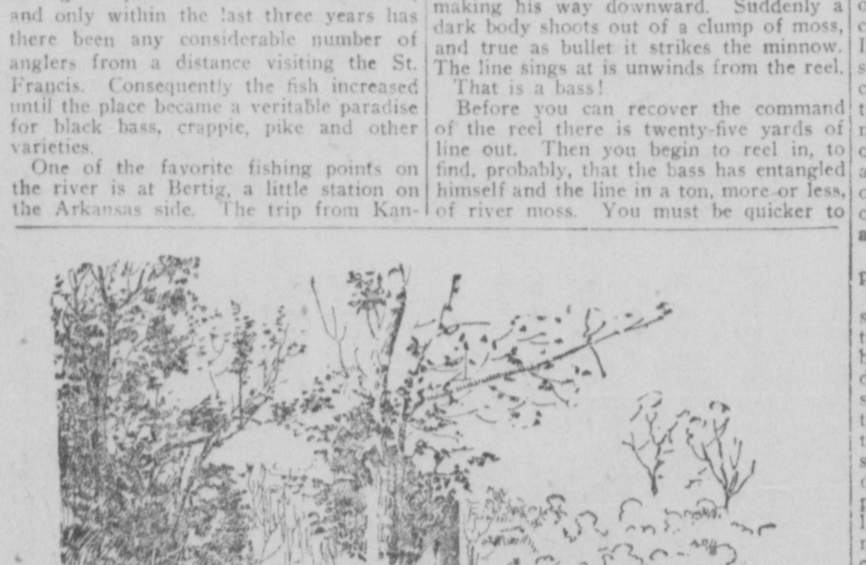
Minnow fishing is not practiced to any extent by the fishermen who live near the St. Francis. The greater number fish with a tackle they call a "skitter." This tackle consists of a long cane pole with a line not more than one and one-half feet in length. Attached to the line is a sort of a metal imitation of a butterfly with wings, which spins as it is drawn through the water. One man paddles the boat while another moves the "skitter" from side to side, always in front of the boat. The bass and pike seem unable to resist this queer lure.

It is entirely possible for a visiting angler to get lost on the St. Francis river if he ventures too far from the clubhouse. There are many of the runways that one may mistake for the main channel. Frequently these by-paths, if the term is permissible, are larger than the main channel. Only after having pulled several miles, perhaps, does the stranger awake to the fact that he is out of the channel and unable to proceed further because of a barrier of high flags or a thicket growing out of the water. But, after all, that makes little difference, because one spot is as good as another on the St. Francis. Drop a hook anywhere and a "strike" is pretty certain to follow.

The St. Francis is at once a paradise and a purgatory for the fly fisherman. The luxuriant growth of moss, flags and rushes leaves but a limited area of open water, and considerable precision in casting is necessary to avoid entangling the line in the vegetation. To the fisherman possessed of a deft wrist, however, there is unlimited sport. The protection afforded by the vegetable growth permits the fish to loiter, hidden, near the surface of the water, where they are always on the alert for feathered tid-bits. A heavy fish once hooked, must be played vigorously and with a firm hand to prevent his rushing into a tangle of moss or flag roots.



A VIEW OF THE ST. FRANCIS FROM THE BOATHOUSE AT BERTIG.



A "POCKET" IN THE FOREST OF THE ST. FRANCIS. WHAT APPEARS TO BE THE SHORE IN THE BACKGROUND IS BUT A TANGLE OF VEGETATION GROWING IN THE STREAM, THROUGH WHICH A BOAT MAY PUSH INTO A WATERY WILDERNESS FOR MILES.

PERSIAN SHEEP IN AMERICA.

Imported Lamb's Wool Coats Can Be Duplicated Here.

Colonel Charles Goodnight of Goodnight, Tex., founder of the famous ranch by that name and owner of the largest herd of Persian lambs in America, says that within a few years it will be possible to excel Persia in the manufacture of fine cloaks from the pure blood lamb skins. He owns nearly 200 of these sheep, many of which are fullbloods, and declares that among the 114 different varieties of weeds grown in this country the Persian lamb eats 100 of them.

Secretary Rusk, under the first Cleveland administration, is responsible for the introduction of the new sheep, spoken of in the Bible, and so much admired by the patriarchs of biblical times. Prior to his administration the Persian lamb and cloak industry belonged to a principality in Persia, and the importation of the sheep to other countries was strictly prohibited by the ruling prince, who had a monopoly of the fine cloaks made from the lambs. Secretary Rusk secured six head and had them shipped to San Jose, Cal.

Cloaks and caps made from the skins of these lambs are very expensive, the cheaper grades ranging from $350 to $500. It is believed that even the more expensive cloaks, costing from $1,500 to $2,000, can be produced in this country for less than one-half. In fact, Colonel Goodnight says the mixed-breeds are capable of producing a very high grade of fur, and can be raised for even less than the ordinary sheep in this country. The fur of the young lambs is jet black and curled and kinked in a most artistic manner.

Discussing the industry and its many possibilities, Colonel Goodnight says:

"I have passed the seventy-first milestone in life's journey and cannot expect to conduct my experiments much longer, but I feel sure that much good can be done towards the development of the Persian lamb cloak industry in America, thereby saving many millions of dollars that annually go to Persia. The lamb spoken of in the Scriptures is the same today as it was in olden time, and with proper care and scientific crossing I believe we can produce a much better animal. They are endowed by nature with certain physical characteristics which make them an ideal sheep for the Southwest. They formerly inhabited the desert, and could go weeks without food and water when necessary.

"The 'rump' mentioned in the Bible is a long flap which hangs down behind, resembling a saddle skirt. This flap is usually about ten inches long by three in thickness, and is a lump of fat which forms during the grazing season. The animals apppear to be able to subsist on this during a greater part of the winter months. This flap is sweet and very nutritious, and I believe the most delicious dish I ever ate. I am not surprised that the patriarchs of old scrambled for this portion of the mutton when visiting the butcher shop."

He Had an Interest.

From Judge.

At the time the first suffragettes were arrested in London there was a big mass meeting of their sympathizers. Many speeches expressing various degrees of indignation and horror were made, but it was left for Mr. Cobden-Sanderson to reach the climax of feeling.

He declared, in vehement tones, "I will pledge myself to give ten pounds for every day my wife stays in jail!"

Wasted Sympathy.

From the Chicago News.

"Poor little girl!" said the benevolent old lady. "There is a lump in your throat Are you sad?"

"No'm," lisped the little girl in the big sunbonnet. "It's a lump of chewing gum."

KANSAS CITY DEMOCRATIC SHOEMAKER BEAT A REPUBLICAN LEADER.

When John P. Duke's Friends Suggested He Try for an Important Place Under President Hayes's Administration They Mistook Their Man.

John P. Duke of Kansas City, formerly of Independence, who died at the age of 83 about a month ago, was one of the few Missouri Democrats to receive a Republican appointment to a position involving the naming of 200 important subordinates in the state. And Mr. Duke was not a politician, but a shoemaker. Early in 1880 he kept a small cobbler's shop in a small frame building at 519 Main street. One day he picked up a Kansas City Times and read a Washington dispatch that President Hayes was about to appoint 150 government supervisors to have complete supervision of the taking of the decennial census that year and that the country had been mapped out into 150 districts. Each supervisor was to appoint 200 enumerators, and, as there was a presidential election coming on that fall, the positions would naturally be of great political importance. The Kansas City district comprised about twenty-one counties, mostly in Southern and Southwestern Missouri. Of course, the supervisors would virtually represent the dominant party, but it was decided to give a few, as a sort of sop, to the Democratic minority in Congress. A good salary was attached and the enumerators were to receive a generous allowance. In a jocular way Duke, who liked to talk politics, was asked why he didn't apply for the position of supervisor.

"Oh, go on; quit your kiddin'," he replied.

His friends continued to tease him about it and "Duke's candidacy" became a mild joke in the neighborhood.

Finally, Duke said in a spirit of petulance: "Now that you know so much about it, go ahead and write a letter of application to President Hayes and sign my name, but promise me that you will keep right at it."

The letter was written by the jokers with much chuckling and many winks. Within a week a reply came from President Hayes that the application would be filed and given consideration. He also advised that a duplicate application, with references, be made promptly to the Secretary of the Interior, Carl Schurz. Some friends were in the shop at the time and had their fun with Duke. The matter was treated as "one of Duke's little jokes." But Duke was serious now. Letters were written to Senator Cockrell and Senator Vest on the subject and a rather encouraging reply came from the former. Vest also promised to do his share, but Cockerell said he would make it a matter of personal effort. Things began to progress now. It was suggested to Duke one day that he avoid a long petition, but prepare a short one with only seventy names attached, to be sent to Secretary Schurz with a new application. Although they were signed only perfunctorily these names were weighty ones. Duke dropped his apron and tools one day and ran out and got them in an hour. They were the mayor of Kansas City, the president of the board of trade, the president of the school board, the presidents of the three leading banks and the dry goods merchant, T. B. Bullene.

Many letters came from Cockrell, who although he never had seen Duke, was working in his usual energetic manner. The Republican press of Missouri demanded that no Democratic supervisorship be appointed in this state, when Washington advices said that out of the number assigned to Missouri perhaps one might be appointed as a concession to Senator Cockrell and Senator Vest.

One night, late in the session, the list of 150 supervisors was sent to the Senate by President Hayes for confirmation. The names appeared in the next morning's Times. The one selected for the Kansas City district was there. He was a well known Southern Missourian Republican politician who had a long start of Duke and had the Republican machine working for him. There was a peculiar look on Duke's face when he read it. "Oh, well, the jig is up, but I had my fun out of it, after all," he said as he jammed his awl into a piece of shoe leather and waxed the thread once more. "But," he was told, "you haven't completely lost yet. Don't give up the fight. The confirmations won't take place till to-night." He replied: "By George, I guess you're right. We will give 'em a further tussle for the place." Once more the wires were busy and Cockrell and Vest actually succeeded, at the last hour, in having the Republican appointee's name wiped off the slate. It was left blank, temporarily, and within forty-eight hours they had John P. Duke's name inserted and he was confirmed by the United States Senate. In a few days he received his commission. So an unknown shoemaker got a Republican appointment, although a Democrat of Confederate sympathies. And to his credit, let it be said, he secured a first class staff and he made a splendid record in the office, giving satisfaction to the people of Kansas City and the whole census district. He received a personal letter of commendation from Washington for his work.

A few weeks before Mr. Duke died the House of Representatives passed a bill to reimburse him for the loss of $2,400 worth of boots taken by Colonel Jennison's Kansas cavalry in one of its visits to Independence. Duke was the principal boot and shoe merchant of the town at that time. Most of the boots were of the red top variety. Many persons believe the Kansans got their name of "red legs" from these boots. The claim of Mr. Duke was pressed in Congress at each session. A few days before he died he remarked jokingly to a friend that he hoped to live until he got his $2,400. His death followed unexpectedly a few days later.

A Cut in Sailors' Wages.

From the Boston Transcript.

The bark Boylston lies at anchor in the harbor awaiting a favorable opportunity to get away for a trip to Port Jobis, Porto Rico, having on board 2,564 empty barrels, which she will have filled with molasses at the Porto Rican port to bring back to this country. She has a full crew on board, and contrary to the experience of many commanders of deep sea sailing craft up to recent date the captain of the Boylston had neither difficulty in rounding up a crew nor in keeping the men aboard while waiting for a favorable wind.

The fact is that for the first time in months there are many more sailors looking for berths than there are berths to fill, which is due to the tremendous slump in the offering of freights of sailing vessels. So dull are freights that the vessel owners have felt compelled to retrench on expenses, so as a general rule they have made a cut in the wages paid the sailors. On coastwise schooners, on which the rates held at $30 while freights were plenty, the new rate is $25; on vessels for the West Indies wages have been cut from $25 to $23, and on vessels sailing to South America the wages have been reduced from $23 to $18. At the new figures there are plenty of sailors available.

"LAYS" GHOSTS WITH A CLUB.

This Enterprising Englishman Has Declared War on Spooks.

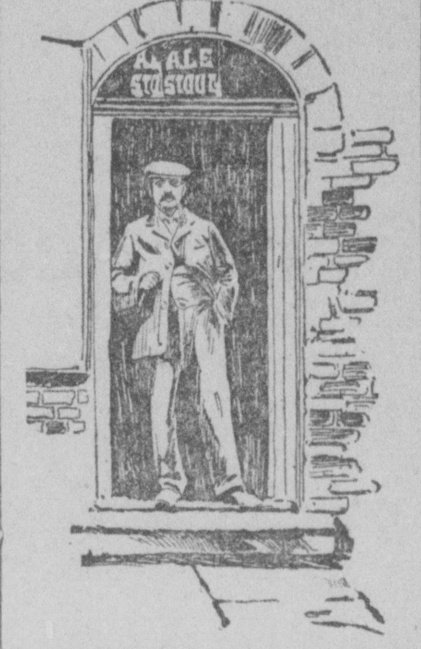
There are said to be two kinds of ghosts—good ghosts and bad ghosts. The bad ghosts are supposed to haunt houses and castles and belfries and make their appearances at uncertain and too frequent intervals. The good ghosts never unnerved anybody except by their absence. They make their appearance usually once a week, in most cases on Saturday, as the workday is drawing to a close and the weekly spending money has reached a low ebb or has entirely disappeared.

It is hardly necessary to say that the English Society for the Extermination of Ghosts, which has just entered upon its work, is concerned with the bad and not the good ghosts. It offers to "lay" any of the former variety of ghosts for a few dollars. No matter how persistent, how terrifying a midnight visitor may be, the members of the organization stand ready to lay in patient wait for him, or her, or it, and knock him, her or its head off with a stout oaken stick.

The scheme is the idea of Charles Dove, formerly a commercial traveler, but at present the proprietor of the "Dew Drop Inn," otherwise known as "The Ark," a diminutive resort for refreshments in one of the poorer districts of London. It seems that this establishment, hardly big enough for a good sized man to turn around in, is the meeting place of a club of English athletes. That is, the members of the club called themselves athletes, but their energies never took them beyond a perusal and discussion of the latest sporting news in the morning and evening papers, and heated arguments on the relative abilities of the several cricket stars of the moment. Dove, who used to sit behind the counter and listen in resignation to the endless repetition of figures and facts and opinions, finally hit upon the bright idea of converting all this "hot air" into physical energy.



CHARLES DOVE, THE LEADER OF A SOCIETY FOR THE EXTERMINATION OF GHOSTS.

Dove had thought a good deal about ghosts.

When he mentioned his plan to the athletes they took to it like ducks to water. Advertisements were sent to the London papers, carrying the good news that any place could be rid of its spectral figures by the mere payment of a substantial fee. The "Death on Ghosts" brigade declare they will use no firearms but will proceed to their work armed only with handy oak sticks. They confidently believe that the ghost does not exist that cannot appreciate the persuasive virtues of the latter weapon.

When he first broached the scheme, Dove, who is six feet, two inches in height and weighs about the same as Jim Jeffries, said that in cases where only one ghost of the ordinary variety had been reported he would proceed to the business of extermination alone. Since then, however, his enthusiasm has cooled a little bit and he now thinks that he will have to have the help of at least one assistant, in any case.

Hailstorms and Caterpillars.

From the Rhodesia Herald.

An army of 200 million caterpillars has appeared in the Kruegersdorp district, which recently suffered severely from a hailstorm.

Old colonists connect the visitation with the recent fall of hail, and they recall instances where plagues of insects have invariably followed a phenomenal storm.

It is suggested that the stones carry some germ which is launched into life when the melting process begins, and farmers who have penetrated deeply into the mysteries of the veld trace the periodical visitations of huge swarms of butterflies and moths and even of the dreaded tick to the evolution of a germ in the hailstone deposited on the ground.

Venerable Free Staters now resident in the district have vivid memories of frightful storms in the late '60s, and in the early '70s, when similar caterpillar plagues devastated the crops in the conquered territory, and they also recall the interesting fact that when the black insects arrived the locusts disappeared.

Before the Bank Safe.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

"This is an open winter," observed the first burglar.

"Yes," replied the second burglar, "but there's going to be a terrible blast!"

HERE IS MRS. HUMPHREY WARD'S PLAN FOR TRAINING CHILDREN TO BE GOOD CITIZENS.

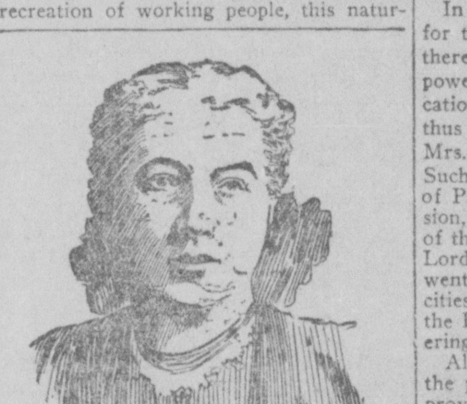
HER "PLAY CENTERS" IN LONDON ARE PROVIDING AMUSEMENT AND INSTRUCTION FOR THOUSANDS OF STREET WAIFS.

WHEN the International Congress of School Hygiene was meeting in London last summer, several of the American delegates visited at the Passmore Edwards settlement, the vacation school founded six years ago by Mrs. Humphrey Ward. After passing through all the departments, where 500 or 600 children were basket-making, sewing, cobbling, cooking, clay-modelling, drilling and working in wood, a delegate remarked: "Well, it's true we had vacation schools in America before you had them here, but we have nothing like this."

But while it is generally known that Mrs. Ward took from the United States the summer vacation school idea which she has developed so extensively, probably most American readers are not aware that in the mind of this English novelist originated the evening recreation school or play center for poor children which of recent years has been taken up so extensively by American municipalities. Mrs. Ward now is enjoying her first visit to the United States. It is her intention to travel for two months at least, and although she declares that the trip, on which she will be accompanied by her husband and daughter, is solely for a holiday, she is looking forward with much interest to seeing what American cities have done and are doing in the direction of what seems to her the great educational reform of the future.

HER "ROBERT ELSEMERE" IDEALS.

It was in the autumn of 1897 that Mrs. Ward first thought of the "play school." To realize some of her "Robert Elsmere" ideals, she had previously raised money to start a social settlement near King's Cross. As a center for the education and recreation of working people, this naturally would be used principally in the evenings, so before the building was finished Mrs. Ward began considering how its rooms could be utilized in the daytime. Among the first plans occurring to her was a Saturday morning playroom for poor children, whose only resource outside school hours was the streets, and this Mrs. Ward proceeded to act upon by opening the new building's large hall to the children of the immediate neighborhood.



MRS. HUMPHREY WARD, THE FAMOUS AUTHOR, WHOSE HOBBY IS SAVING POOR CHILDREN.

A feature of the playrooms called "singing games" attracted so many children on Saturday mornings that Mrs. Ward began thinking of some provision for recreation during the late afternoons. Thus came the "children's hour" at the Settlement, beginning with one or two recreative classes a week. Soon, however, the demand for admission to these classes made necessary an increase to three or four every evening. Mrs. Ward worked constantly at her new plan despite other calls upon her time. One evening a week she read to a class of boys. She interested her two daughters in the games, stories and handicraft work, and gradually enlisted the services of many friends. Presently the Duke of Bedford became helpfully interested, too. And gradually the weekly attendances rose from about 250 to 1,800 or 2,000.

Three years ago Mrs. Ward began extending her work to other districts of London by organizing the Play Centers' committee. Its members were persons already known in social work, and their efforts have produced sufficient funds to put in operation ten new play centers where the average weekly attendance last winter was 1,400. For these the London county council has allowed the use of public school buildings. A superintendent, on a salary of $200 to $250 a year, assisted both by paid and voluntary helpers, carries on the games, dancing and gymnastics, the classes in manual training, cobbling, cooking, etc., as they now exist at the Passmore Edwards Settlement center.

"My first thought was to counteract the horrible street life which fascinates poor children so early," said Mrs. Ward in telling how her work began. "No proper provision ever has been made for the play time of the children attending the elementary schools of London and our large towns. The richer classes and all secondary schools lay great stress upon organized games, and, up to the age of 14, upon supervision during the leisure hours of a child's day. Play time is considered as important as lesson time, but in the majority of cases London's poor children must play after school hours either in the streets or in the small, over crowded living room of a tenement where all the daily work of the household is going on. As a rule the children are turned into the streets with the babies after tea and told not to come home till bedtime. There is, of course, a certain amount of street trading and wage earning for the elder boys after school, and in some districts where the mothers work out till late, and the men lead a nomad existence, the elder children seem practically to do the work of the house. But allowing for these various occupations, there still remains an army of children in London who roam the streets after school hours and for whom, in certain districts, at any rate, the life of the streets is a school of sharpness indeed, but at the same time of idleness, mischief and dishonesty."

AID EXPECTED FROM PARLIAMENT.

In the revised education bill prepared for the present session of Parliament there is a clause giving local authorities power to establish play centers and vacation schools, and if in the end the state thus takes over and continues her work, Mrs. Ward's ambition will be realized. Such a clause went through both houses of Parliament without opposition last session, but necessarily was lost when the bill of that time was defeated in the House of Lords. A short "enabling act," however, went through last session. Under this, cities may assist recreation schools, and the London county council is now considering to what extent it will use this power.

Although American cities, by means of the public money they can spend, have provided a more complete playground organization than exists in England, the play grounds of London are much better than the playgrounds of New York, and in summer almost all the play center games and occupations are transferred to the open air and the playgrounds. Moreover, the whole scheme looks to the future. The hand work classes are designed to be a preparation for special study of some art or trade and the play centers are becoming feeders to the public evening schools.

From small shopkeepers and from the police in play center neighborhoods, one learns how petty theft, street fighting and gambling and other juvenile crimes have decreased as a result of the counter attractions. Many children who roam the streets are taught in their earliest years first how to beg, then how to steal, and the influence of the play centers is of great value in overcoming these evil habits.

At all the centers attendance has steadily risen, until this winter 14,000 and 15,000 have been common weekly attendances. At the same time the annual cost of maintenance has climbed from $600 per center to $750.

"Of late," Mrs. Ward says, "at a suggestion of a member of the county council's education committee, a few children who have got into trouble with the police and have been brought up before the Industrial schools section have been sent to neighboring play centers instead of being committed to an industrial school. The results have so far been encouraging.

"Not all centers are equally successful, but to those of us who have watched it from the beginning, it is evident that the play center movement has enormous possibilities. It is the natural completion of the child's school time and would do more to save our growing boys and girls of the elementary school age and class from hooliganism and degeneration than any other single reform."

Beardsley's Performances

VERSUS

Crittenden's Promises?

WHICH SHALL YOU VOTE FOR NEXT TUESDAY, MR. KANSAS CITY MAN?

Lest you forget we will tell you again.

Mr. Beardsley was President of the Upper House and President of the Board of Public Works in 1904 to 1906. He has been Mayor from 1906 to 1908. During this time there has been paid off $310,897.37 of the accumulated debts of the James A. Reed administration.

Again! The city during these four years paid out of the revenues received more than THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION DOLLARS for Public Improvements, necessary buildings, civic equipment and other vitally necessary and unusual items in great city buildings.

In two years of the James A. Reed administration from 1902 to 1904, the total collections from licenses amounted to $487,130.05. During the first year and ten and one-half months of the Beardsley Administration, ending March 1, 1908, the total collections from licenses from exactly the same classes of business were $868,771.89, or a net gain to Kansas City of $384,904.22.

It is easy to see how Mr. Beardsley could add $200,000 to the $250,000 bond issue and pay for a $450,000 hospital, besides expending other great sums out of his Revenue Balances for other buildings and public improvements.

Beardsley's Performances Versus Crittenden's Promises?

Fighting the People's Battles

HENRY M. BEARDSLEY belongs to that grand galaxy of fearless, honest American Mayors, like Tom Johnson of Cleveland, Brand Whitlock of Toledo, and Mayor Thompson of Detroit, who are governing these big cities in the United States in a way to bring glory out of the shame of past municipal governments of this country. Beardsley is one of the great mayors of the United States who has the courage to defy and fight the stock watering utilities corporations—fight them in the interests of the people who give these corporations their life.

MAYOR BEARDSLEY has already shown that he has the right kind of mayoralty stuff in him, the kind that Kansas City needs, the kind that Kansas City must have if she is to continue along her present high and mighty course of achievement.

WHAT IS TO BE GAINED BY EXCHANGING a man like Henry M. Beardsley, who has proven himself safe, sane, sound, fearless and honest for a man who has only promises to offer?

BEARDSLEY'S PERFORMANCES ARE PLACED AS A SOLID AND SUBSTANTIAL ASSET WHICH KANSAS CITY HAS NOW AGAINST CRITTENDEN'S EMPTY PROMISES.

Beardsley and Missouri River Navigation

A man, to properly discharge the duties of Mayor of such a City as Kansas City, should be a man not only capable of caring for the business details of Municipal Government, but should be a man possessed of broad culture, a wide acquaintance with public men and public affairs and a man who can in all cases where he represents the people of this city, acquit himself creditably. Mr. Beardsley is fitted in high degree with all the qualifications that go to make an ideal Mayor of a proud and progressive community like Kansas City.

It is conceded on all hands that one of the most important questions confronting the people of America, and especially of Kansas City and the great West, is the question of Waterway improvement. By reason of the interest Mayor Beardsley has taken in this movement in cooperating with those who have pushed this question so vigorously and successfully in the last two years, he has become known over the entire country as one of the strong factors in this movement, and much efficient work is expected of him in the near future. Last December, Mr. Beardsley was Chairman of the Delegation which attended the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington; he represented Kansas City and the great West as one of the speakers at that Convention, being on the programme with some of the ablest men in the United States, and delivered a speech that ranked along with the best. He was delegate to the recent Waterway Convention at Sioux City, being one of the speakers on the programme, and assisted very materially in bringing about an organization of all the interests which should be favorable to the improvement of the Missouri. He has plans now under way for the improvement of our wharves and levee, and for the protection of our water fronts. Mr. Beardsley's splendid work in behalf of Missouri River improvement is only one of the many big problems which he is working zealously to solve in the interest of Kansas City.

Can the people of Kansas City afford to trade horses just now?

How Beardsley Looks After the Health of Kansas City.

Achievements of the Beardsley Administration in the Department of Food Inspection.

November, 1906, Food Inspection Ordinance Passed.

January 1, 1907, Food Inspection Ordinance Effective.

Probably the only city in the United having a distinctive Pure Food Department.

Food Inspection Department composed of a Physician, Veterinarian, Butcher and Baker.

Thorough Restaurant, Hotel, Bakery and Candy Kitchen Inspections. First time in Kansas City's History.

Paraffine in candy eliminated, also adulterations in spices, jams, vinegar, syrups, flavoring extracts, catsup and other food stuffs.

No city in the United States so free from adulterated foods.

A milk registration law that will give the city control of sanitary condition of dairies supplying Kansas City.

1,180 milk samples secured since January 1st, only 13 arrests for illegal milk.

1,028 samples taken since any added water has been found.

2,403 milk samples taken since any preservative (Formaldehyde) has been found.

20 milk samples taken nearly every working day.

Kansas City in the matter of standards now has as good milk as any city in the United States.

Some Interesting Figures From the Law Department of the City Government

During the four years of Reed's administration there were FOUR HUNDRED AND THIRTY-ONE DAMAGE SUITS brought against Kansas City.

During the four years of Republican administration there were TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FOUR DAMAGE SUITS brought against Kansas City

The large percentage of decrease in these damage suits was caused entirely by reason of the fact that our streets and sidewalks have been kept in a better state of repair.

There were but FORTY DAMAGE SUITS brought against the city during the whole of last year, being a less number than has been instituted for many years.

Without any desire to make odious comparisons we quote the following positive figures. While Mr. Ingraham was an efficient and conscientious City Counselor, yet he was, as stated above, absolutely handicapped because of the bad condition of the streets and sidewalks, which created a large percentage of these damage suits.

Mr. Ingraham's Administration

| | |
|---|---|
| Final judgments rendered against Kansas City in damage suits, fiscal year ending April, 1903 | $ 46,200.00 |
| Final judgments rendered against Kansas City in damage suits, fiscal year ending April, 1904 | 40,627.00 |
| Final judgments rendered against Kansas City in damage suits, fiscal year ending April, 1905 | 32,204.00 |
| Total | $ 119,031.00 |

Mr. Meservey's Administration

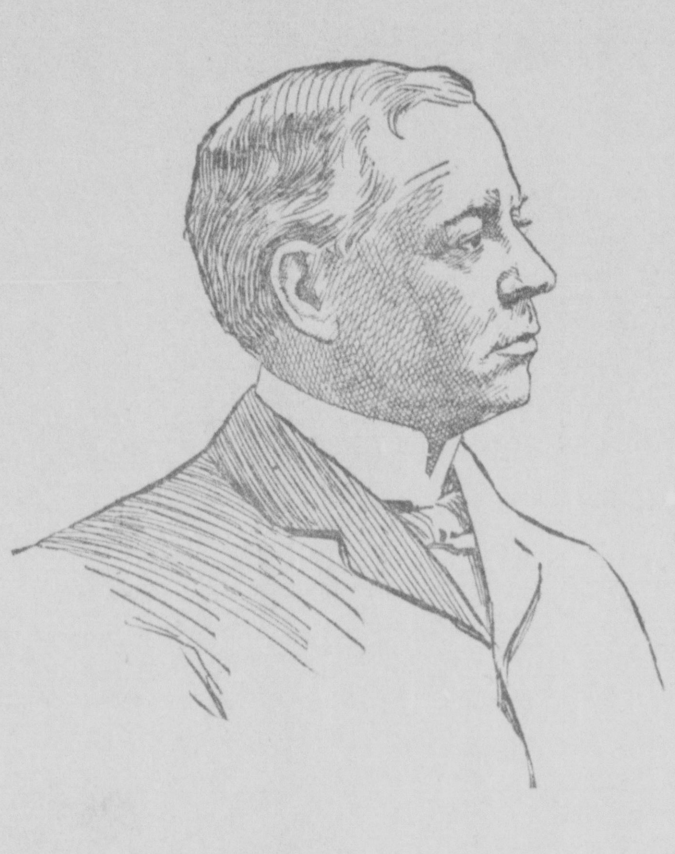
| | |
|---|---|
| Total number of judgments and damage suits for fiscal year ending 1906 | $ 19,729.00 |
| Total number of judgments and damage suits for fiscal year ending April, 1907 | 20,251.00 |
| Total number of judgments and damage suits for fiscal year ending April, 1908 | 11,190.00 |
| Total | $ 51,170.00 |

The total saving on the three years of the Meservey administration as against the three years preceding of the Reed administration is $67,861.00.

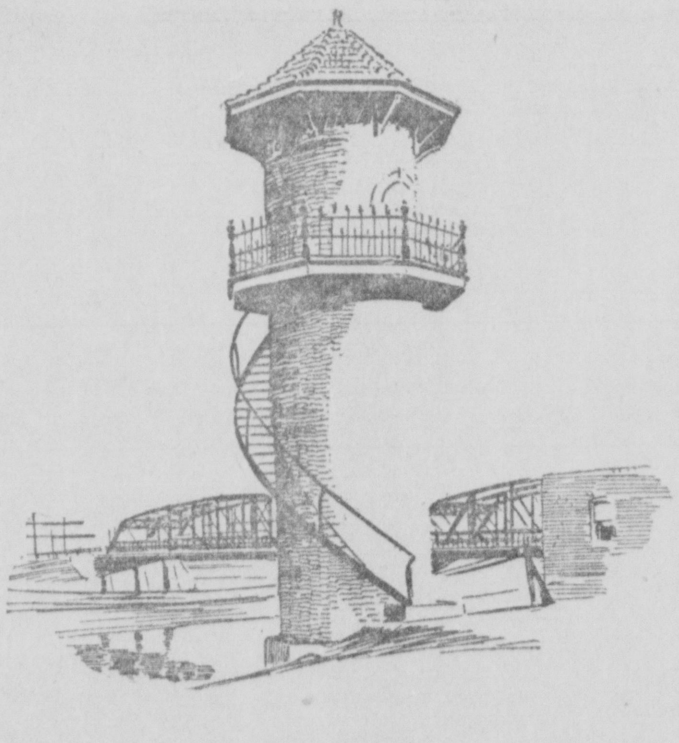
The above statement does not include judgments that were afterward set aside and new trials granted.

"At the time when Mr. Meservey became city counselor, April 17, 1907, the total number of judgments against the city pending an appeal were $114,973.00. At the present time the total number of judgments pending an appeal are $17,785.00, or a difference of NINETY-SEVEN THOUSAND AND NINETY-EIGHT DOLLARS in favor of the closing days of the BEARDSLEY GOVERNMENT as against the Reed administration."

All cost bills that have been rendered for suits tried under the Beardsley administration have been paid. There are no unsettled final judgments against the city.

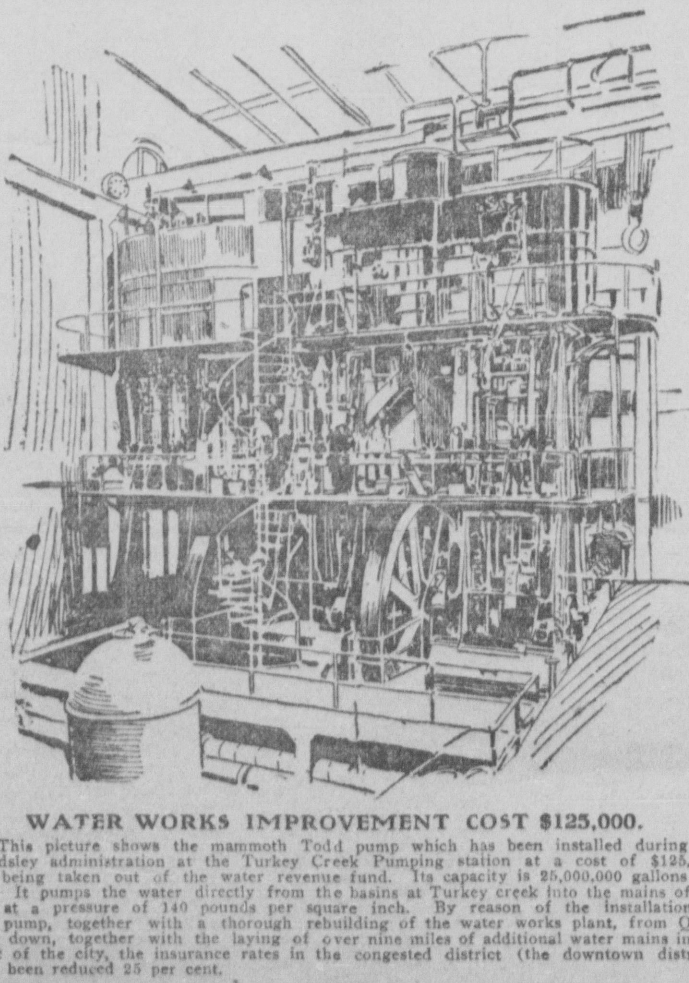


MAYOR HENRY M. BEARDSLEY.



WATER WORKS IMPROVEMENT COST $150,000.

The new tower over the west end of the Tunnel under the Kaw River. This Tunnel is 1,120 feet long by 7 feet in diameter. The tower is 48 feet high by 8 feet in diameter and it operates something like a standpipe—that is, the water coming down from Quindaro through the flowline is forced up into this tower and the downward pressure of that volume of water keeps the tunnel full of water at an even pressure. The cost of the tunnel and tower was $150,000, paid out of the water revenue fund. This helped to lower insurance rates in Kansas City 25 per cent.



WATER WORKS IMPROVEMENT COST $125,000.

This picture shows the mammoth Todd pump which has been installed during the Beardsley administration at the Turkey Creek Pumping station at a cost of $125,000, this being taken out of the water revenue fund. Its capacity is 25,000,000 gallons per day. It pumps the water directly from the basins at Turkey creek into the mains of the city at a pressure of 140 pounds per square inch. By reason of the installation of this pump, together with a thorough rebuilding of the water works plant, from Quindaro down, together with the laying of over nine miles of additional water mains in the heart of the city, the insurance rates in the congested district (the downtown district) have been reduced 25 per cent.

Speedway Questions for Mr. Crittenden

MR. CRITTENDEN: Please answer these questions for some very interested voters who will be at the polls next Tuesday.

We understand you FAVOR a boulevard SPEEDWAY in KANSAS CITY. You have gone on record repeatedly, so we are told, favoring a speedway on some of the boulevards. So that the voters may vote intelligently Tuesday, will you kindly make a public statement as to where you are going to put that speedway?

If you are going to put it on Gladstone boulevard say so. The voters on Gladstone would like to know it before they vote because they, of course, would like to have a race track in front of their homes.

Are you going to have it on Benton boulevard? If so, let the voters know it now so that they can go to the polls and "whoop it up" for you as no doubt they would like to have a speedway between their homes and the boulevard.

Are you going to put it on Linwood? If so, a square deal to the voters demands that you tell them so and that you do so before election.

Are you going to have it on Armour, Gillham or any other boulevard? If so, Mr. Crittenden, tell the voters now so that they can close their places of business on Tuesday and work from the moment the polls open until the polls close trying to elect you so as to get a race track and speedway in front of their homes.

Report of Civic League on Mr. Beardsley and Mr. Crittenden

The Civic League is composed of five Democrats and four Republicans. Its report is given below.

It's mighty interesting. Read on.

MAYOR.

HENRY M. BEARDSLEY, Republican, resides at 3621 Walnut street; present incumbent; born on farm in Knox county, Ohio, in 1858; lawyer. Came to Kansas City in 1886; was a member of the Upper House of the Common Council from 1898 to 1902; president of the Upper House 1904 to 1906; Mayor from 1906 to 1908. Among the important matters handled by his administration have been the gas question, which has been settled and in operation; the West traffic way and Union depot and terminal problems still pending; the establishment and effective operation of the pure food department; the improvement of the water works system; the improvement of the street cleaning department; new fire stations; the remodeling of the city market and the city hall. The public service corporations seem to oppose the election of Mr. Beardsley, but we think it is true as stated in our preliminary report that "he has managed the affairs of the city during the present term with fidelity, industry and wisdom of purpose. We believe Mayor Beardsley has sought to protect the interests of the people at every point." He is a man of high character, moral courage and good ability.

THOMAS T. CRITTENDEN, JR., Democrat, resides at 3240 Flora avenue; 44 years old; son of ex-Governor T. T. Crittenden. Came to Kansas City in 1884, since which time he has been chiefly occupied in the real estate and loan business. At the present time a member of the firm of Brent & Crittenden, real estate, loan and insurance brokers. HE IS ALSO A STOCKHOLDER IN THE MITCHELL-CRITTENDEN LUMBER AND TIE COMPANY, WHICH COMPANY SELLS TIES TO THE RAILROADS AND TO THE METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY. Mr. Crittenden was clerk of the county court of Jackson county for two terms from 1892 to 1900 and discharged the duties satisfactorily. The public service corporations seem to favor his election. Bears good reputation as a successful business man. Is a man of clean character and good ability.

Mr. Crittenden, Answer This Question Please

"Will you as mayor and president of the police board allow liquor to be sold in our public parks in the presence of women and children?"

Union Station Delay. Why? New and Difficult Questions Involved.

The contract finally submitted to the railroad companies contained the following propositions in the interests of the public and for each of which the city government contended:

First—That the streets crossing the right of way should not be vacated.

Second—That there should be as many viaducts and subways across these rights of way as are reasonably necessary for the public use.

Third—That the Terminal company should pay for and maintain such viaducts and subways, including the pavement thereon.

Fourth—That the Terminal company should pay all land damages to parties owning property adjacent to the proposed improvements.

Fifth—That all railroads entering or desiring to enter Kansas City should have the right to use the passenger and freight tracks of the Terminal company on exactly the same terms as are given the roads now interested in that company.

Sixth—That there should be four less-than-car-load stations where freight would be received and delivered at the same freight charge as though received and delivered at the local terminal of the particular road.

Seventh—That there should be no ownership or control of a freight terminal system. The rights of way being granted only for through traffic. It beiing agreed that if at any time it was desired to create a terminal system, the terms and conditions of the arrangements should be at that time settled between the railroads and the city.

Eighth—That that contract should contain a clause that if the Terminal company should fail to do anything of substance which it had agreed to do, or should do anything of substance which it had agreed not to do, its rights under the contract should be forfeited.

Ninth—That the interests of the general public and of the property owners of each particular locality should be worked out in the matter of roadways, grades, viaducts, etc., to the largest possible advantage to all.

It is needless to add more than a word.

The above broad and comprehensive field which raises before the mind's eye the tremendous, painstaking work, the hours, the days, the weeks and months of negotiating, brought the unavoidable one thing—DELAY—out of which our Metropolitan-Democratic campaign friends are endeavoring to make a campaign issue. Mr. Beardsley has spent tedious months in negotiations to work out the above propositions which the Democratic Platform in a very complacent way incorporates in its declaration of principles with the emphatic statement that those are the things that it would insist upon in settling the Union Station Problem.

DO WE WANT MR. BEARDSLEY TO FINISH THIS GREAT PROPOSITION OR DO WE WANT AN UNTRIED, INEXPERIENCED MAN TO TAKE HOLD OF THIS GREAT UNION STATION PROBLEM?

VOTERS! YOU WILL ANSWER THAT QUESTION NEXT TUESDAY AT THE POLLS.

MOTOR CARS STANDARD NOW

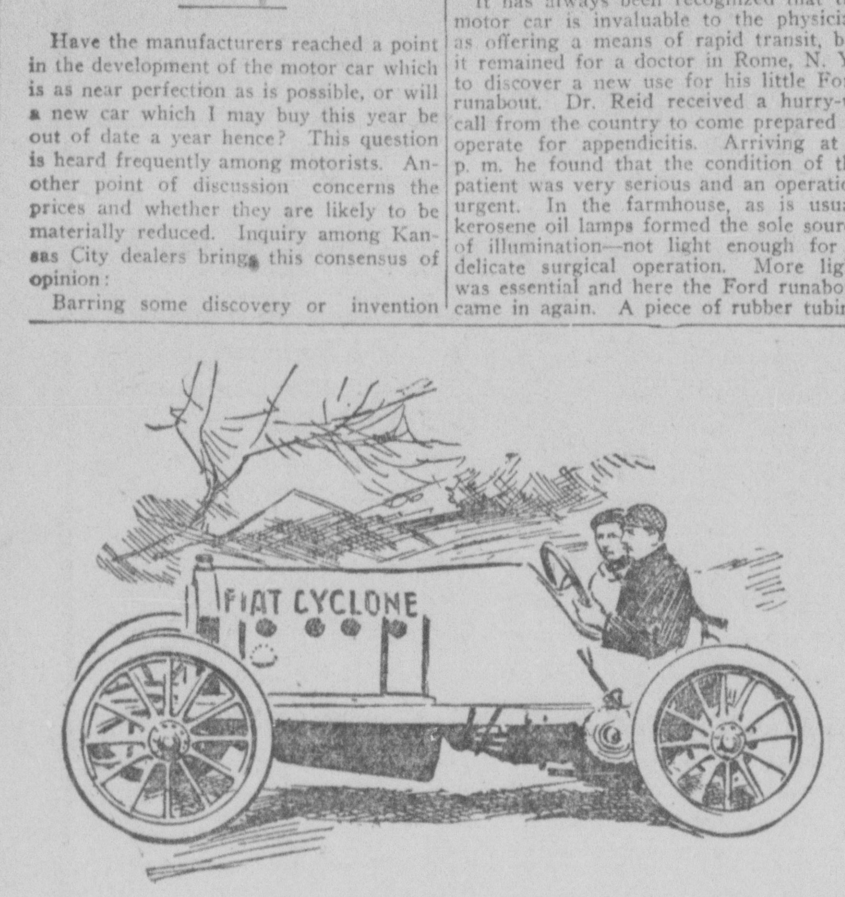
NEAR PERFECTION, BARRING NEW INVENTIONS, THE DEALERS SAY.

The Demand Is for a Low Priced Car and Many Manufacturers Have Announced Reductions—Club Still Seeking a Clubhouse.

Have the manufacturers reached a point in the development of the motor car which is as near perfection as is possible, or will a new car which I may buy this year be out of date a year hence? This question is heard frequently among motorists. Another point of discussion concerns the prices and whether they are likely to be materially reduced. Inquiry among Kansas City dealers brings this consensus of opinion:

Barring some discovery or invention which cannot be foretold, and which will make plainly desirablle a radical change in structural methods, it is safe to say that the motor car manufacturers of the world have attained a standard which is likely to be followed for many years.



THE CAR WHICH HAS A REMARKABLE CAPACITY FOR SPEED WON A RACE AT ORMONDE.

There are bound to be improvements in details, in fact the latest models prove this, but it is practically certain that the day has passed when the type of construction will undergo radical changes from year to year, and the time has come when a person selecting a motor car will consider his purchase with a view to driving the same car for a series of years, rather than for a single season. That time has already come abroad, and in England and Europe motorists take pride in using the same car year after year, instead of having a new model every twelvemonth.

As to the matter of price; that is a difficult matter upon which to make predictions. The general tendency, as far as there is any, appears to be towards a lower level. In several instances manufacturers who have each year added a little to their price to pay for improvements, have this year announced reductions. This is particularly true of the imported cars, some of the leading importers having cut their prices materially in order to bring their cars into direct price competition with the best of the American product. Comparatively few American makers have added to the price of the models for 1908 corresponding to similar models of last year. There is, however, an upward tendency but it represents increased power and greater capacity. Thus the six-cylinder car of much power and with a capacity for seven or eight persons, which stands at the top of the line of several manufacturers, costs more than the large four-cylinder, five-passenger car, which formerly was in the top place.

In the same way there has been a downward tendency by those manufacturers who have entered the field with motor cars for the masses. Whereas a couple of years ago a new car, well constructed and reliable, with reasonable carrying capacity and speed, which could be purchased for less than $1,000 or $1,200 was a rarity, now the person who desires to become a motorist and who does not wish to invest more than $1,000 in his car has a choice of several well known and reliable makes. These low-priced cars are mostly of the runabout variety, but in construction they are of the most modern type and that they have given excellent satisfaction is apparent from the number already in use and from the undiminished demand for them. New concerns have entered the low-priced field this year and they have demonstrated that a motor car can be built at a low price which is in every respect satisfactory for the person contented with a small car, reasonable speed, and with whom light expense of maintenance is very desirable. There are runabouts whose price is as low as $500 and from that figure the low-priced class may be said to include those cars listed at $650, $750, $850, $925, $1,000, $1,200 and so on up to $1,500.

The sight-seeing cars will resume for the season this week. Two cars carrying twenty-five passengers each will make two trips a day over the boulevards and through the parks.

T. H. Beekman of the Beekman Lumber company bought a four-cylinder Jackson touring car last week, replacing a two-cylinder car of the same make.

The committee of the Automobile club having the matter of the selection of a clubhouse in hand has reported unfavorably on the Vaile property near Independence, and this site is dropped from further consideration. The lessee would not permit the dispensing of liquor on the premises. The committee is now considering a desirable location on the rock road northwest of Independence. A proposal will be made to the club shortly.

The Automobile club is to hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday night of this week. The place of meeting has not been definitely determined upon. It will be at one of the hotels. W. W. Cowen, president of the club, said yesterday that plans for out-of-town runs and contests will be announced at this meeting.

It has always been recognized that the motor car is invaluable to the physician as offering a means of rapid transit, but it remained for a doctor in Rome, N. Y., to discover a new use for his little Ford runabout. Dr. Reid received a hurry-up call from the country to come prepared to operate for appendicitis. Arriving at 6 p. m. he found that the condition of the patient was very serious and an operation urgent. In the farmhouse, as is usual, kerosene oil lamps formed the sole source of illumination—not light enough for a delicate surgical operation. More light was essential and here the Ford runabout came in again. A piece of rubber tubing used for drainage was run from the automobile through the window into the room in which the patient lay. Then removing one of the gas lamps it was pressed into service in the improvised operating room. Turning on the gas and lighting the lamp the resulting illumination permitted the successful completion of the operation.

This conversation was overheard at a recent social gathering of motor enthusiasts:

Jennie—Aren't the toilettes exquisite?

Jack—Rather too many touring bodies and too few limousines for winter, seems to me.

Mrs. T. J. Templer purchased an R. & L. electric coupe last week.

The tire chains are undoubtedly doomed. A Chicago physician has discovered that they stir up the germs in the street dust, and he calls for the passage of a city ordinance forbidding their use. This physician's motto evidently is ,"Let Sleeping Germs Lie." Of course, the small amount of agitation due to horses and wheeled vehicles does not stir up the germs sufficiently to do any damage! Another way to deal with these refractory germs would be to have the water in the sprinkling carts so treated that it would kill the germs as soon as the liquid reached them—Automobile Topics.

"A great deal of unnecessary tire expense is borne by automobilists because they do not keep their tires pumped hard," says H. G. Fisk, secretary of the Fisk Rubber company. "The damage done by running tires insufficiently inflated," he says, "is due to the fabric in the casing. The play of the side walls in a soft tire has a tendency to separate the several plys of friction fabric so that they shuffle, as tire men call it. This shuffling cuts the threads and permits of a blowout. No tire in the world can stand being run only partly inflated. Motorists will get from 10 to 25 per cent more service out of tires if they are kept good and hard."

E. J. Lang of the Rauch & Lang Carriage company of Cleveland, O., spent several days in Kansas City last week. He was impressed with the city as an electric motor car town.

The Fletcher Cowherd, jr., Auto company reports the sale of three Stanley touring cars in Topeka last week.

C. W. Cunningham has just completed a 1,000 mile tour of Kansas in a Stanley steamer.

A Fitting Title.

From the Chicago News.

The plumber presented his bill for mending one small leak and received a new $5 note.

"I just paid 'his highness,'" announced Mr. Stubb, when his wife returned from market.

"Is the plumber of noble blood?" asked Mrs. Stubb in surprise.

"No, my dear."

"Then why should you say 'his highness?'"

"On account of his highness. Do you see the joke?"

And Mr. Stubb laughed so heartily that the cat took refuge under the table.

Her Innocent Comment.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"That man," said Mr. Ferguson, pointing him out, "is just as active as ever, and he's 70 years old."

"How well he holds out!" exclaimed Mrs. Ferguson.

"'Sh! You mustn't let him hear you say that. He's a street car conductor."

Done to Death.

There once was a dunner named Dun,
Who collected the mun with a gun;
And he killed a dead beat
Right out in the street.
Yes; that's what the dunner Dun done.

Touring with the Six Cylinder Car

The real delight of touring lies in a car of perfect control. Creeping on the high gear through picturesque spots—taking steep hills on the high gear—accelerating instantly in an emergency—doing away with the worriment of gear-changing ever present in a four-cylinder car—these contribute to the fullest enjoyment of a tour. And the only car capable of this control is a six-cylinder car and the most highly developed six-cylinder cars are the Stevens-Duryea Sixes. Ask for names of Kansas City owners.

EFFECTIVE Advertising is continuous Advertising. It is the only way to familiarize the buyer with your business so that when he wants what you have to offer he immediately thinks of you. Take even a small advertisement like this:

FURNITURE TO ORDER
Substantial, Artistic, Distinctive.
Bradshaw, Twelfth St., Kansas City

Inserted in The Star every morning, every evening and every Sunday for one year, at a monthly expense of only $47.01 an Advertisement occupying that space would be published more than

Ninety Million Times

and every possible buyer in Kansas City would know that advertiser's name and what he had to sell. To extend the publicity field to cover the whole of Kansas City's commercitl territory it is necessary only to add The Weekly Star. Morning, Evening, Sunday and Weekly, the little advertisement in one year would, in all, be published a cost of only $62.13 a month. Persistency wins.

One Hundred and Ten Million Times

J. KLEIN, Secretary.
Kansas City Socialer Turn Verein.

DIED.

BAILEY—At Kansas City, Kas., March 29, 1908, Oscar Allen Bailey, aged 27.

Oscar Allen Bailey was born at Granby, Mo., July 23, 1881. He was united in marriage to Miss Anna Shoemaker, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker, on May 10, 1906, by the Rev. R. J. Church. The deceased was an express messenger in the employ of the Wells-Fargo Express Co. and was murdered in his car somewhere between Florence and Newton, Kas. The funeral services were held at the home of Mr. J. H. Shoemaker on Wednesday, April 1. The large attendance showed what a large place Mr. Bailey had secured in the hearts of the community during a short acquaintanceship of two years. The casket was literally buried in floral offerings. The services, though sad in the extreme, were marked by the tender cord of sympathy which ran through them. Miss Carroll sang two beautiful appropriate solos, and Miss Ora Richardson and Mrs. Carroll sang an appropriate duet. The Rev. H. C. White, Ph. D., assisted by the Rev. R. J. Church, had charge of the services. The express messengers, friends of Mr. Bailey, acted as pall bearers at the house. The Masonic lodge had charge of the services at the cemetery. In a beautiful spot in Mount Hope cemetery we laid away his body to await the sound of God's trumpet on the Resurrection morn.

REV. H. C. WHITE, Ph. D.

CHITWOOD—Mrs. Minnie Rollins, died at her home, 509 West 43d, at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, April 4, of tuberculosis. She was 32 years old. She was the daughter of the late Robert S. Todhunter and is survived by her husband, L. O. Chitwood, her mother, Mrs. J. W. Barnard, of 511 West 43d, and one brother, Shelby L. Todhunter, Fayetteville, Ark. She had been a member of the Central Methodist church 15 years.

Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock from the residence. The body will be sent to Smithville, Mo., Monday for burial.

FRANKOVICH—Laurence, Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at residence, 410 Sandusky. His only relatives in this country are a brother-in-law and three cousins, and a father and mother in Croatia.

Funeral 2:30 Sunday from St. John's church, 4th and Barnett. Funeral under auspices of Croatian St. Joseph society. Remains will be placed in vault in St. John's cemetery.

McGOWAN—Mrs. Ella Jessie, born December 25, 1864, died April 3, 1908, at St. Joseph, Mo.

Funeral at Kansas City. Funeral notice later. Denver and Pueblo papers, please copy.

THE BIG ANNUAL

Vehicle Sale

GOES ON.

People know from experience that it means something when we advertise our special vehicle sale. They know there will be something doing, and that goods will be sold just as they are advertised—that is, from 20 to 40 per cent less than they can be purchased elsewhere. During this week we will continue to make the same low prices on regular stock, and will sacrifice 50 jobs of odd buggies, driving wagons, surreys, etc., at less than cost. Come on down.
PARLIN & ORENDORFF PLOW CO.,

Stevens-Duryea Used Cars

A SECOND HAND 4-CYLINDER STEVENS-Duryea, thoroughly overhauled in our shop, is a much better purchase than any new car selling under $2,000. It is high grade, hence will outwear cheap cars two to one; it is light weight, insures low tire expense and mechanical repairs; it is patented unit construction and 3-point support, makes a car capable of negotiating the roughest roads and yet retaining a perfect alignment of bearings.

Every purchaser of a used Stevens-Duryea last year is more than satisfied. Ask for names.

We have these cars, turned in by customers who have bought larger cars from us, from $1,350 to $1,800, usually equipped with top and five lamps. Write or call.

Phones 1790. 1612-14 Grand.

IF YOU HAVE $2,000 TO INVEST IN A touring car don't buy even the best new car made for that money, for you can't get a new car for that amount that will last. Don't be deceived by the looks. Take your $2,000 and buy the best second hand high grade car possible and you will have a car when a cheap new one is in the scrap pile. I have a 1907 4-cylinder touring car that is second to none which cost $4,000 last June. It has all standard equipment, including Isman magneto; am buying 1908 6-cylinder same make and will sell this car for $2,000 cash. I'm from Missouri and can show you.

Advertisements under this heading, morning and evening, 6c a word; Sunday, 4c a word. All advertisements payable in advance and none accepted for less than 30c for the daily or 50c for the Sunday.

THE SOURCE OF MYSTERIOUS WISDOM—MADAM GEYSER! MEDIUM, CLAIRVOYANT, PSYCHIC COUNSELOR!

Besides the knowledge and sagacity of this wonderful woman other mediums are as untutored children.

Consulted and recommended by some of Kansas City's leading citizens—sees the past as in a mirror and the future through a glass. The accuracy with which she reads your past will dumfound you—her knowledge of what the future holds is supernatural and will guard you from misfortune, bringing health, wealth and happiness—NOTHING is unknown to her!

Do not fail to consult Madam Geyser before starting on a journey, entering business transactions, making investments or plighting your troth. Her advice in business matters, law suits and investments is unfailing!

Other mediums may imitate her, but none can help you as she can. With her aid the longings and desires of your heart can be accomplished. Separated husbands and wives and estranged lovers brought together, difficulties and distances notwithstanding—insures you the love of the one you love.

Don't waste time on others less capable —come at once to

TELEPATHY IN A CAMPAIGN

WOMEN USED THOUGHT WAVES ON A HOSTILE PREACHER.

When the Rev. William Wasson Talked Against Prohibition in an Illinois Town Many Minds Sought to Confuse Him.

AURORA, ILL., March 27.—While the Rev. William Wasson, an Episcopalian clergyman of Riverhead, N. Y., argued against prohibition in Aurora last night before 4,000 hearers, a little band of women who believe in the powers of telepathy sat in the audience and sent out thought waves in an endeavor to confuse him in his arguments.

They were representatives of a newly organized woman's auxiliary to the Aurora local option organization. Some of the more imaginative and enthusiastic of the workers for local option purposed that an attempt be made to influence the mind of the speaker through the mysterious channels of thought, and those that attended volunteered for the trial. What they accomplished is known only to themselves, and they declined to give out any interviews after the meeting.

In any event, telepathy is to be a source of strength which will be called upon by the Aurora women from now on until the voters decide for or against prohibition. The leaders say they will have the power of the united, beseeching thought of 8,000 women reaching out to grapple with the doubting minds of men who would look upon wine when it is red.

ASK FOCK AND REISS TO QUIT.

Stoessel Writing Memoirs While His Friends Are Being Cashiered.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—The committee whose duty it is to pass on the qualifications of army officers, composed of Grand Duke Nicholas, Minister of War Rudimer and other officers of high rank, has invited General Fock and General Reiss to resign their commissions. These two officers were charged with complicity in the surrender of Port Arthur to the Japanese. General Fock declines, pending an investigation of the charges brought in connection with his recent duel with General Smirnoff.

General Stoessel, who is serving his sentence in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, is engaged in writing his memoirs.

HOPE FOR SENATOR PENROSE.

The Crisis in the Pennsylvanian's Illness Believed Past.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Senator Penrose, who is dangerously ill at his home in this city, is believed to have passed the crisis in his illness. The physicians and members of the family were more hopeful to-day of the senator's recovery. It was announced by a member of the family that the senator had taken a turn for the better late in the night and that he rested more comfortably. To-day he is fully conscious.

Senator Penrose's condition yesterday was very critical, so grave, in fact, that the physicians feared the worst. He suffered intensely and had to be relived with opiates which kept him in an unconscious condition most of the day.

A MILE IN 58 SECONDS.

The Pennsylvania Railroad to Operate an Electric Car Tested in Kansas.

NEW YORK, March 27.—What is intended for a record run is to be made with a new electric railroad car from Jersey City to Philadelphia next Sunday afternoon. The car, which is run by its own power, has been tested, it is said, in Kansas.

The trip will be made over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, and it is expected that an average speed of a mile in fifty-eight seconds will be maintained.

Officers of the Pennsylvania railroad and of the Westinghouse company will make the trip on the car.

GOVERNOR GUILD IS BETTER.

Additional Improvement in the Massachusetts Executive's Condition.

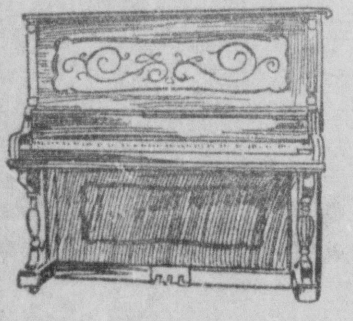
BOSTON, March 27.—There has been further improvement in Governor Guild's condition during the last twenty-four hours, according to a bulletin issued today.

Every Piano a Bargain!!

Here's the Famous
Steinway Miniature Grand
$800 IS THE LOWEST PRICE, and when compared with any other Piano at any price it would be cheap at $1,000. We are making some special terms for persons who wish a Grand Piano, but who do not care to pay all in cash.



THIS USED VALLEY GEM PIANO
(Baldwin Make)
Very largest size, beautiful quarter sawed oak case, full length music desk, double rolling lid, double repeating action, 3-string, 3 pedals, metal back, is equipped with mandolin and orchestral attachment, has been put in condition almost like new. It will surely please.
At Only $150
Pay $5.00 Monthly.

$215 Is $85 Less Than These Pianos Are Sold
We want you to come and test them. You'll appreciate their great value, if you do. Pay $7 monthly.

Better Come Now and Select One
AT THE Great Clearing Sale
OF THE
J. W. Jenkins Sons' Music Company

Scores of pianos are being put into homes, by this big sale, which before lacked the joy that music affords. It's the chance of the year for that family to own one which long has needed one, but felt that it could not afford the expenditure.
Never in the entire West has such a chance been offered to buy high grade pianos at such low figures. In former years we have had great sales, but none to compare with this one.
Besides scores of used and exchanged pianos which are the accumulation of many months, we offer prodigious bargains in thoroughly trustworthy new instruments.
We must sell these pianos because our business demands that our stock be decreased. We want our friends to buy them because we know they will never have a better chance to get better satisfaction for such remarkably small amounts.
This is true, so let's please each other.

Merely an Object Lesson

Yesterday a woman came to this store to buy a piano. While she was being shown through our display room she suddenly stopped before a new piano.

"Why!" she exclaimed, "that's just like one a friend of mine bought at another store here in town. How much is it?"

"One hundred and ninety-five dollars," the salesman said.

"What?" she cried, "one hundred and ninety-five dollars? Why, that can't possibly be. My friend paid $375 for a piano of this same make and style and it wasn't brand new either."

Being assured that the Jenkins price was $195 and no mistake the woman deplored the fact that her friend hadn't come here.

It pays to visit Jenkins before buying elsewhere.

Your Greatest Protection in Piano Buying
Is the time-tried ONE-PRICE-NO-COMMISSION PLAN. In these days of business uncertainty it is well to be careful in selecting those with whom you spend your money. If you buy on payments no one east, west, north or south has to do with the contract that is given in settlement here. No attorney calls to force collection unduly. No third party to the transaction ever sees or handles the papers. Any defect that may arise from any piano we sell is taken care of and adjusted with dispatch and thoroughness. Don't let any one persuade you to go elsewhere to buy a piano.

NOT DEMOCRATIC.

> Why don't you deny the things that Democratic orators and newspapers have been saying about The Star in campaign after campaign?—Inquiry from a Reader.

Why debate with a polecat?

Those orators and those newspapers, Mr. Reader, are not Democratic; they are Metropolitan corporation orators and Metropolitan corporation newspapers. There is no principle of Democratic partisanism, no purpose of Democratic policy, involved in the insanely furious denunciations of The Star that have been bellowed at this newspaper all these years. When The Star supported Mr. Folk for Governor of Missouri and Senator Harris for Governor of Kansas, there was no cessation of the tirades, because they were in the voices of the Metropolitan, not by any means the voice of the Democratic party.

In the meantime, The Star has attended strictly to its business of making a newspaper suitable for this great and ever greater city. A considerable part of its energy has necessarily been devoted to defending the public interests against the encroachment and demoralization of the franchise corporations, of which the Metropolitan has always been the worst and the greediest.

If The Star had been in any degree susceptible to wrongful influences it would long ago have been favored with Metropolitan silence and support.

But it never would have attained the circulation of 143,000 papers, twice a day, which it has won by its guardianship of the people's interests and its efforts in the advancement of the general good.

TO EXCHANGE—CONTINUED.

FOR EXCHANGE BY C. D. DARNALL,
Established in Kansas City, 1884,
Headquarters for all Legitimate Real Estate Exchanges.
I have just had put in my hands Day's addition to the West Side. This property has been tied up for the past 20 years owing to a disagreement in the family. The property has been neglected; something like $20,000 taxes has accumulated, and I have the proposition so it can be handled very easily at this time. There is something like 150 lots, from one to three blocks from electric line, and within gunshot of several large industries, which employ a great number of men. I want someone to buy or exchange for this addition and give me the handling of same on the percentage basis; I live within one block of the property and know that we can double our money on the investment, but it is too big a proposition for me to handle; owner will consider farm or rental property, either city or country town; you trade for the addition; after you get your money back with interest, give me one-half the profits; you will be surprised at the prices on this excellent proposition. C. D. Darnall, 204-5 Dwight bldg. 10th and Baltimore.

TYPEWRITER HASH.

EVERYBODY KNOWS WHAT HASH IS—rebuilt stuff from odds and ends. We don't handle it, but we have many typewriters good as brand new (never used enough to need rehashing), at less money than others charge for the sweet perfume. Better see us about it if you want a good typewriter; we can give you the blossom of the peach, but we are short on canners. Rental is our very particular business, and it is cheaper to rent than buy; but if you want to buy we have all kinds, and we can save you money.

Grand Ave. Business Property

THE BEST SAVINGS BANK IN KANSAS CITY.
If you wish to invest idle money safely and profitably and feel uncertain what to buy, follow the lead of those who have demonstrated their good judgment by success—the Sodens, Walpoles, Holmses, McWilliams, Dickeys, Armours, Mastins, Tourtellots, Bales, Frasers, Weils, Brumbacks, Longs, McClellands, Swopes and other such successful operators who are large owners of Grand ave. property.

We have for sale a property on Grand near 18th for considerably less than it's worth even on this market. The owner wants to sell at once.

John Jacob Astor, the greatest real estate dealer this country has ever known, made his money by buying business property away from the retail centers and letting the business grow to him. Expansion is inevitable in every live, growing city.

Kansas City property is now at the present time better rented and in better demand than property in any other city in the United States. There is a reason for this.

DON'T DELAY ON ABOVE BARGAIN.

WHEN OWNERS WANT TO SELL BAD IS THE TIME TO BUY PROPERTY CHEAP.
When they tell us they must and will sell if we get 'em an offer, then we tell you about it and give you a chance to get something for "0." $17,500 has been the owner's price for an inside corner. He has reduced it first to $16,500, then to $15,000, and now to—well, what'll you give? We're going to sell it and we're the sole agent for its sale. It must be sold, when it is sold, through this office. If you want to be shown, call and secure the very best bargain. No more phone information; no longer satisfactory; it's disastrous. Put your time against ours and you'll secure best results. W. H. Royer Realty Co. "Bartlett," Mgr. Sales Dept.

Two Consistent Records.

If The Star were really the issue of this campaign the Metropolitan's attorneys and political strikers would be talking about something else.

The supporters of a bad cause always do talk about something else than the real question to be met.

While Beardsley and the candidates pledged with him have directed their canvass squarely to the Public Utilities issue the Metropolitan has sought to draw the people's attention away from that issue.

The futility of their efforts explains their fury. The men and women they must appeal to are readers of The Star. They are citizens of Kansas City who were kept posted on the fight for the Eabling Act and the Public Utilities ordinance by The Star. They have learned of the benefits of the Hughes Public Service Commission in New York chiefly through The Star. They have heard the administration condemned by a lot of grafters as being "dominated" by The Star simply because the administration could not stand for anything to benefit Kansas City without being in line with The Star.

These people, to whom the franchise grabbers must appeal, also know that the enemies of the people never accuse any other newspaper of "dominating" for good works. It is the recognized service of The Star against themselves which draws their fire.

Never has the course been so clear for the intelligent voter who wants only a square deal from the city government.

On the one side is Beardsley, consistently with his record, driving home the necessity for regulation, for a Public Utilities commission to get at the facts.

On the other is the Metropolitan, consistently with its record, frantically attacking The Star because The Star is for the people.

Exclusive Dressers

DO NOT BUY CLOTHES IN A DEPARTMENT store. No, indeed!

Neither should you buy a "hand-me-down" home from Buildem Quick & Cheap, or someone equally as bad.

Our exclusive business is to build a home to suit YOU. Tell us what you want. WE furnish plans and specifications free. WE buy the ground and build in location you desire. It costs no more. It saves you the never-ending house hunt.

A reasonable cash payment WHEN PLANS ARE ACCEPTED does the work. That's fair. Don't you think we should talk it over?

A Certain Banker

HAS SPENT ABOUT $50,000 IN IMPROVEments on a tract of 144 acres, near Centralia, Kas., which is about 108 miles from Kansas City; he has spared no expense to make this a truly ideal country home and has been 28 years trying, but circumstances are such that a change of plans is necessary; he has a 11-room house, large attic, one cedar closet, summer kitchen, refrigerator room, storm windows and screens for every window; complete water system; bathroom, hot and cold water; furnace; acetylene gas plant; sanitary sewer system; 3 never failing wells, etc.; 60 acres in bearing orchard, consisting of 4,000 apple trees, 800 peach, 100 cherry, 100 quince, 8,000 grape vines; 15 acres in corn land; 5 acres in catalpa trees; 50 acres in pasture; only 4 acres of rough land. It's a grand place for a country home and can produce a fine income from fruit and chickens; 7 poultry houses and other equipment for caring for chickens. This is one of the greatest snaps to be found and an ideal spot to enjoy the balance of your life; liberal terms, and would take some good improved clear property as part payment; immediate possession.

5 AND 10 ACRE FARMS

in the Brazos Valley of Texas, Near Houston and Galveston.

$20.00 DOWN SECURES A FARM OF 5 ACRES

balance easy monthly payments. We have subdivided 4,000 acres of Brazos Valley timber land into 5 and 10 acre farms. This land is between the Brazos and San Bernard rivers, three miles from Brazoria. Two railroads, churches and schools; in rain belt, fertile loam soil, easily cultivated, will grow oranges, figs, lemons, strawberries, Irish and sweet potatoes, vegetables and all kinds of garden truck, cotton, corn and sugar cane. A number of Kansas City people have purchased and will move on their land in the near future.

A SATISFIED CUSTOMER WRITES AS FOLLOWS:

Brazoria, Texas, March 27, 1908.

BRAZOS VALLEY COLONIZATION CO.,
Kansas City, Mo.,

Gentlemen:—I was raised in Ohio and thought we had the finest soil in the world, but since coming to Southern Texas, I have changed my mind, especially since I have seen the land between the Brazos river and the San Bernard river, which is a deep chocolate-colored loam with just enough sand to make it work nice, and the crops that are growing on it at this season of the year is enough to convince any man that it can't be beaten for fertility and your Wild Peach subdivision which I purchased two tracts of is simply immense.

I came to Texas to try to get a home and after looking over Gulf Coast country I was rather disappointed and started back from Brownsville to Houston, when by accident I met Mr. Sigmund Stern of your firm, on the train, and he asked me to come to Brazoria and look at their Wild Peach lands, and I am very glad I did come, for just as soon as I looked at the land, I said: "That is just what I am looking for." I purchased two tracts and am going to clear it up and put it in June corn, and this fall I am going to set it out in figs and oranges and garden truck, between the rows, and will have a fine home in a few years; besides, the truck one can raise at the same time will more than pay for the land.

Now, if there ever was a place for a poor man to get a home and be independent, it surely is in your Wild Peach subdivision, especially with the terms you gentlemen give a man, and I would advise any man to purchase one or two five-acre tracts and put it in figs or oranges, and in five years his holdings will be worth $500 an acre.

Now, any one wishing to write me concerning your lands, I will answer all questions and as promptly as I can. Yours respectfully,

(Signed) T. H. COFFMAN,
Brazoria, Texas.

TO KEEP THE FACTS DARK

In this campaign the Metropolitan is working desperately for concealment of the facts.

It has been asserted that the Metropolitan could give 3-cent fares and 2½-cent tickets to school children. The Metropolitan says it cannot make these reductions—

But it won't show its books.

Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland says the extension of the Metropolitan's franchise from 1925 to 1938 would be worth 10 million dollars.

The Metropolitan says the pony and beads offer was a fair one—

But it won't show the books.

Street railways in other cities pay their employees considerably higher wages than the Metropolitan pays its men—in Cleveland as high wages to beginners as the Metropolitan pays after eight years' service.

The Metropolitan answers by calling the facts "persecution," and by telling its men that they can "get cigars in the next room"—

But it won't show the books.

A Public Utilities commission will force the Metropolitan to show its books—or burn them.

Some Curious Visiting Cards

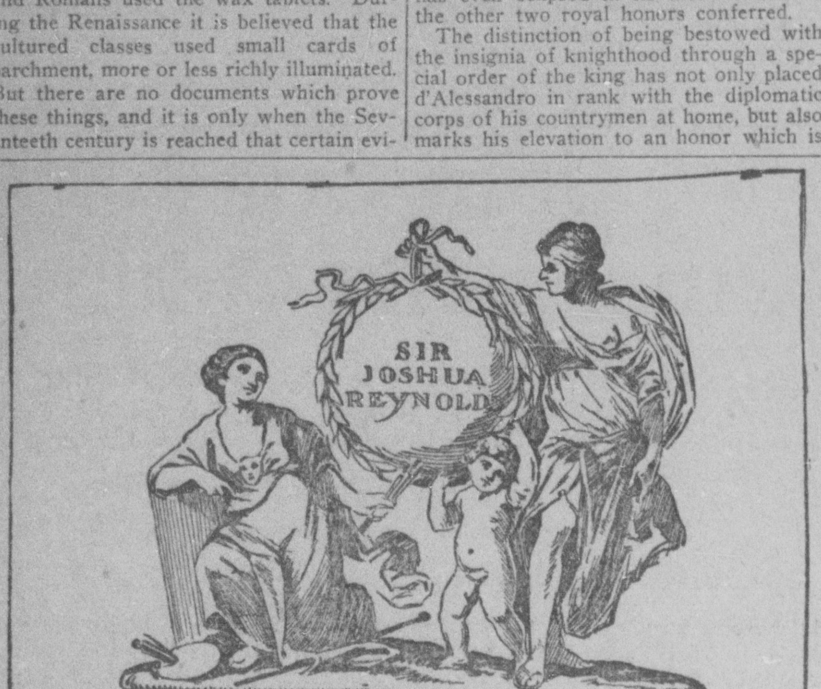
WHEN and by whom the visiting card was invented are questions to which the antiquarian has as yet offered no satisfactory answer. It is not impossible, of course, that the Assyrians used the Irishman's visiting card, a brick; that the Chinese had some sort of card ever so many centuries ago, or that the Greeks and Romans used the wax tablets. During the Renaissance it is believed that the cultured classes used small cards of parchment, more or less richly illuminated. But there are no documents which prove these things, and it is only when the Seventeenth century is reached that certain evidence of the visiting card is found. One of the strange fashions prevailing in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries was the use of playing cards as visiting cards, women generally preferring clubs and hearts. In the middle of the Eighteenth century—the century of refined elegance and supreme punctiliousness in matters of fashion—the pictorial engraved visiting card made its appearance. They first came into fashion in France under the Regency and under Louis XV. By the end of the century they were in great vogue in England and Italy. In German lands the custom took little or no hold.



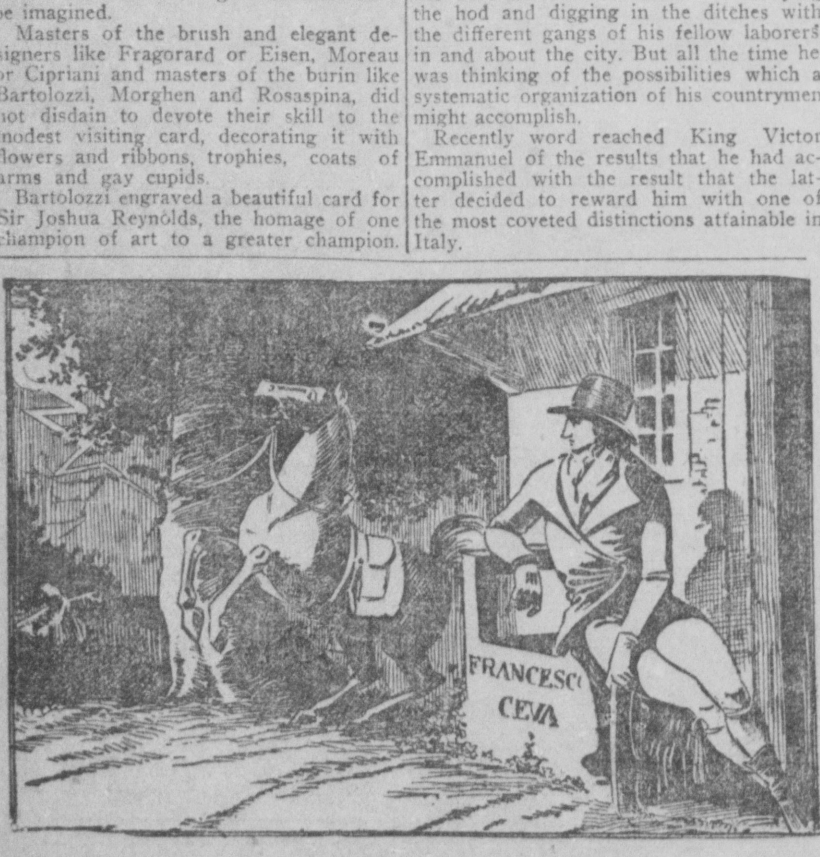
SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS'S DECORATIVE NAME CARD.

The specimens which survive may be divided into two classes: those strictly personal and those intended for general use. The former, most of which are remarkable for their beauty and were intended for persons of wealth and high social standing, must have been ordered from the artist by the owner, who probably himself suggested the motif of the design. The ornamentation often had special bearing on the user's profession, his possessions or his tastes. Sometimes it introduced the arms of his family or a remembrance of some event in his life. They generally had the name of the owner engraved by the artist, though sometimes only a white space was left in which the user would write his name in autograph to make the card more treasured.

There were, more especially in Italy, where this custom took hold even on the middle classes, visiting cards for general use, and which were for sale, in streets, at stationers' shops. Cards of this kind were, of course, intended to have the name written by hand or printed in and are distinguished by inferior workmanship and by the quality of the motifs, which were the most general that could be imagined.

Masters of the brush and elegant designers like Fragorard or Eisen, Moreau or Cipriani and masters of the burin like Bartolozzi, Morghen and Rosaspina, did not disdain to devote their skill to the modest visiting card, decorating it with flowers and ribbons, trophies, coats of arms and gay cupids.

Bartolozzi engraved a beautiful card for Sir Joshua Reynolds, the homage of one champion of art to a greater champion.



ONE OF THE MOST CURIOUS OF OLD-TIME VISITING CARDS.

Bartolozzi did not forget that the design for a visiting card must be such as not to have value as a picture in itself, but only a purely decorative worth, and that the different elements of the composition should tend toward throwing up and not concealing the name.

In "private" cards views of places and monuments were not infrequent. The examples of pictorial visiting cards herewith reproduced will illustrate fairly this long gone out fashion in visiting cards, and that Dame Fashion never wears the same dress for long.

A KNIGHTED HODCARRIER.

The King of Italy Honors an Italian Laborer of Boston.

From the Boston Post.

Suddenly elevated from the humble position of a hodcarrier to the exalted rank of a knighted and crested sir chevalier, wearing one of those golden crosses which give the possessor honored admission into the royal circles of Italy, Dominic d'Alessandro of the North end has just become the most talked of and famous Italian in this country.

While Governor Guild and President Eliot of Harvard college were likewise singled out last week by King Victor Emmanuel to be nominated as grand officers to the crown of Italy, the special insignia conferred upon the hodcarrier has even eclipsed in its interest that of the other two royal honors conferred.

The distinction of being bestowed with the insignia of knighthood through a special order of the king has not only placed d'Alessandro in rank with the diplomatic corps of his countrymen at home, but also marks his elevation to an honor which is unprecedented among those ever bestowed upon laboring Italians in America.

The wearer of the cross of the chevalier takes social rank among the nobility of his home—is admitted freely to the presence of the king, and may be appointed to any of the offices in Italy which denote the favor and prestige of royalty.

Chevalier d'Alessandro, as the labor organizer and knight is now called, first attracted the attention of King Victor Emmanuel several years ago when he first began laboring for the organization of the Italian workingmen in this country.

At this time the immigrants pouring into the United States had no means of protection against the padrone system which parceled them out to different employers of cheap labor and no intelligent organization for securing better wages.

D'Alessandro, then a young Italian earning about $1.25 per day, began studying the condition of himself and his brothers, with the result that within a short time he had called a meeting of a number of laborers in a little room near North square, and a few days later had succeeded in forming the first union of unskilled laboring Italians in this country.

Since that initial movement this federation has grown under the direction of Mr. D'Alessandro until to-day there are 5,000 organized Italians in Boston and vicinity, and throughout the country there are many other fraternities of unskilled and skilled laborers of Italy, all owing their present advantages of hours and wages to the work of the indefatigable Italian leader of Boston.

Mr. D'Alessandro arrived in Boston just twelve years ago with about fifty cents in his pocket and unable to speak a word of English. For the first two years of his life here he devoted himself to carrying the hod and digging in the ditches with the different gangs of his fellow laborers in and about the city. But all the time he was thinking of the possibilities which a systematic organization of his countrymen might accomplish.

Recently word reached King Victor Emmanuel of the results that he had accomplished with the result that the latter decided to reward him with one of the most coveted distinctions attainable in Italy.

The bestowal of this honor upon the labor leader was attended by nearly 2,000 of his countrymen, who had gathered from all parts of the city as well as from the outlying districts.

Marquise F. A. A. De Bruno, Italian counsel for this port, made the presentation speech before this immense gathering of his countrymen in the big hall at 144 North street, and his glowing tribute to the work of the Italian organizer was followed by ringing cheers and a storm of applause from all the Italians present.

Fame of Bloomfield.

From the Bloomfield Citizen.

With free delivery came an increased volume of mail. Business men all over took advantage of the new era. Manufacturers looked for a locality convenient to the great metropolis and one after another quietly settled down here, and to-day some of the greatest industries of the world are located here and Bloomfield is thus familiar to the inhabitants of both hemispheres. So much is the place known that a letter bearing simply the name of the town Bloomfield, without state or county, would come here whether dispatched from the Celestial empire or the Great Sahara desert.

A Subject for Oslerizing.

From the Baltimore American.

"Yes, indeed," said Miss Oldgirl, in reciting the story of the family's terrible experience with burglars, "the wretches came to my room first and what do you think? They chloroformed me in my sleep."

"I guess," remarked the unfeeling listener, "they thought you looked the part."

The Farmer's Retort.

From the Chicago News.

"What do you call your red automobile, mister?" drawled the old farmer at the drawbridge.

"The 'Fool Killer,'" bantered the man in goggles. "I call it that because it kills all the fools who happen to cross in front of it."

The old farmer cleaned his pipe with a straw and then replied, evenly:

'That so, mister? Wall, is there any chance of it blowing up and killing the fool inside?"

A Cut-Away Model.

From the American Register, London.

A chic little coat and skirt suit in pongee was of a soft dull blue and rather severely tailored, but was trimmed in buttons of natural pongee color trimmed in the blue silk and had collar and cuffs of the natural tone silk. A one-piece frock of pongee, was of this same lovely blue with soutache braiding and silk-covered buttons. Undersleeves and guimpe were of cream lace, and there was a little cravat of black liberty.
